

Bypass Route In Park Gets Council Support

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

The City Council Monday informally approved the currently proposed route of the West Bypass highway.

The route, which is under fire from a group known as Citizens for the Preservation of Wilderness Park, would take about six heavily-wooded acres of the park at the southern edge of the city.

The vote on the approval was 4-2, with Councilman Dick Baker absent. Voting against the route were Sue Bailey and John Robinson.

One of those who supported the route, however, said that highway officials should continue to work on a solution to problems created by taking the park land.

Citizens for the Preservation of Wilderness Park has vowed to go to court to prevent the taking of park land. The group, however, stresses that it does not oppose the bypass itself, just the proposed route.

Jeanbey said that highway officials should get the message that the public's interest will not be best served if officials "stonewall" the present route through approval channels.

Although park supporters have cited a court suit they feel gives them legal precedent to fight destroying parkland, City Council member Max Denney said Monday he does not agree.

Denney said he spent much of the weekend reading related laws and the U.S. Supreme Court ruling before concluding the decision does not apply here.

Contrary to the earlier case, Denney said, officials on the West Bypass did study the circumstances and conclude there were no other feasible and prudent alternatives.

In the Supreme Court case, Denney said, an alternatives study was not made. In that 1971 study, highway officials tried to put a highway through the middle of a park.

Council member Sue Bailey was critical of the council's vote, despite a statement from City Attorney Charles Humble that it was merely an "informal expression."

Bailey noted that no citizen comment was permitted before the vote and said, "If I were a member of the public I would be a little apprehensive..."

Black-Rule Talks Seen

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Henry Kissinger told President Kenneth Kaunda on Monday he expects Rhodesia's white rulers to clear the way by this weekend for talks leading to rule by the black majority, an African diplomat reported.

The diplomat said the secretary of state also raised several questions with Kaunda relating to the substance of a final settlement. He reportedly did so at the request of Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith with whom Kissinger conferred Sunday in Pretoria, South Africa.

Kaunda's clarifications will be transmitted to Smith through South African Prime Minister John Vorster, said the diplomat. He did not disclose details of the questions.

Smith, who flew home to Salisbury after the meeting in Pretoria, told a broadcast interviewer "concrete results" had come out of the session with Kissinger and that there was a chance of a settlement "in the near future" between Rhodesia's 270,000 whites and its 8.7 million blacks.

Vorster, too, said a Rhodesian settlement could result and said there had also been progress on the issue of South-West Africa, or Namibia, the territory the United Nations demands that South Africa give up.

Kaunda was pressed by journalists to say if he considers as acceptable the provisional three-way understanding between Kissinger, Vorster and Smith. But he declined to discuss it before consulting with three fellow black African presidents — Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, Sir Seretse Khama of Botswana and Samora Machel of Mozambique.

"We are dealing with a situation involving life and death," he said. "It would be wrong for one man to take a unilateral stand when so many leaders are involved."

Kissinger himself planned to continue his week-old African peace shuttle by flying on to Tanzania from Lusaka to see Nyerere.

Meantime, a senior U.S. official aboard Kissinger's plane told reporters the secretary thinks a Rhodesian constitutional parley, with both white and black negotiators, could begin as early as November.

On Sunday, Zambian Foreign Minister Sithe Mwale told journalists before flying off to the United Nations in New York: "Zambia doesn't care whether the efforts by Dr. Kissinger to try and solve the southern African issue, which has now reached its crucial stages, are aimed at winning President Ford's election campaign. If Dr. Kissinger will win majority rule in Zimbabwe (Rhodesia) and Namibia — also known as South-West Africa — that will be fine."

Smith has to win the approval of his full cabinet and the caucus of the ruling Rhodesian Front party for the understanding worked out with Kissinger and Vorster. The senior U.S. official said he thinks Smith, despite being accompanied in Pretoria by three key cabinet colleagues, will find it hard to persuade his political followers to endorse the Pretoria deal — but probably he will succeed.

The senior U.S. official said Smith and three of his cabinet members agreed "to report favorably" to other officials in Salisbury on a proposition that falls generally under a U.S.-British plan calling for a commitment to black majority rule in Rhodesia within two years, a constitutional conference in Geneva; the broadening of the Rhodesian cabinet to include black nationalists; and a $3-billion fund to compensate whites who leave Rhodesia and to finance development of the country under black rule.

In the interview in Salisbury, Smith said the international political and trade sanctions imposed against Rhodesia would have to be called off as part of any black-white settlement.

"I think the two must go together," Smith said. African diplomats said another request by Smith was that the guerrilla war being carried out by black Rhodesian nationalists from neighboring countries should be called off when negotiations begin.

Enlistment Bonus Sought For Guard

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska National Guard will ask the Legislature to reinstate an enlistment bonus program to help it fill its current personnel gap.

The Guard is now at about 84% of its authorized strength of 5,500. Adjutant General Francis Winner told the Unicameral's Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committee.

An earlier bonus program in 1974 had once lifted the Guard to 99.9% of its authorized strength.

That bonus plan had offered Guardsmen $100 for each year of enlistment or re-enlistment, up to a maximum of $600.

Cost to the state exceeded $1 million a year.

Winner said he would like to see a new proposal limited to the first enlistment or first re-enlistment for Army Guard infantrymen, but he said he has no dollar figure in mind.

The bonus proposal will be presented to the senators by the National Guard Association, he said, with the support of the Guard itself.

Deputy Adjutant General Burl Johnson said a bonus bill would help the Guard meet what he termed "a strength problem" by attracting more people to enlist or re-enlist.

The initial bonus program was the direct result of a loss of strength which at one time placed the Guard in jeopardy of losing an authorized battalion, he said.

Sen. Dennis Rasmussen of Scotia, committee chairman, told Winner he has found more support among Guardsmen for the higher education tuition credit granted to Guardsmen than for the previous bonus program.

The education program pays one-half of the cost of higher education tuition for Guardsmen.

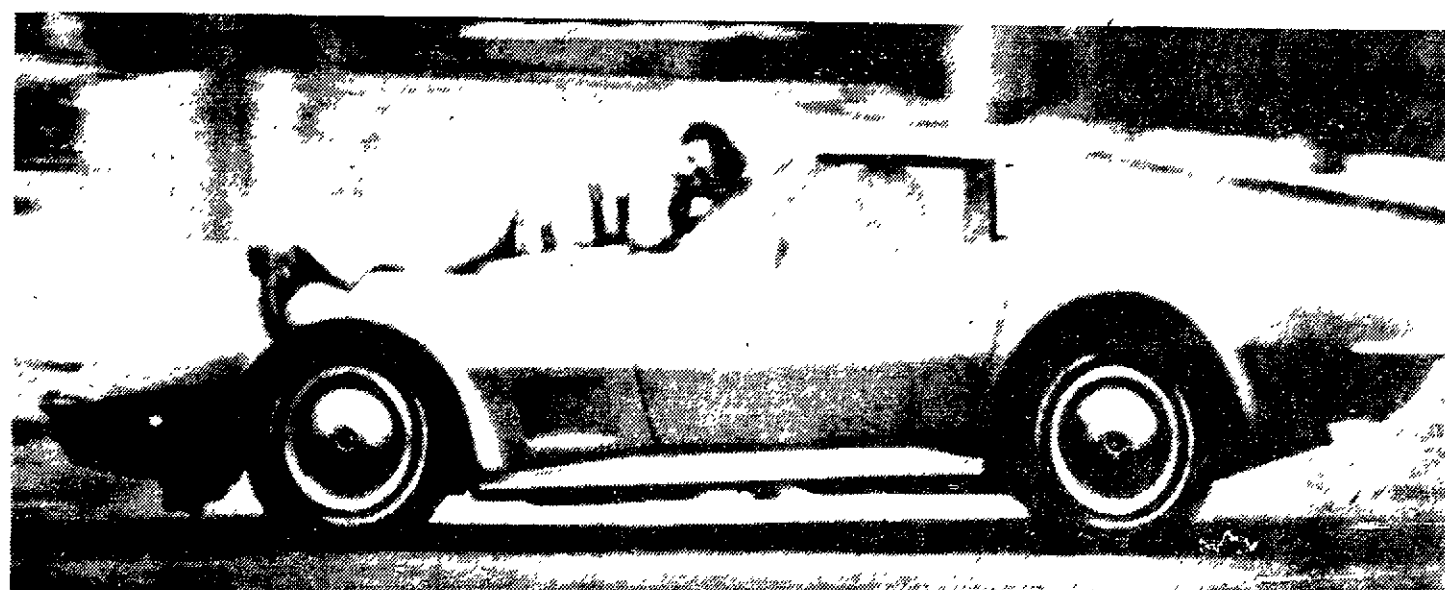

The new bonus proposal highlighted a hearing which had been expected to air an internal Guard dispute involving Robert Van Valkenburg, who is being retired as a major for cause.

Van Valkenburg had requested the opportunity to discuss his views with the committee, but his attorney, Kenneth Cobb, said he will withhold those comments until after a hearing Thursday on the Guard's decision to retire him.

On other matters, Winner told the senators that the Guard has revised its armory rental policy to somewhat reduce rates which had been sharply increased to help meet rising utility costs.

Sen. Herb Duis of Gothenburg said he had received many complaints about the higher rental charges for private use of armories.

The Guard, Winner said, will hold its first winter camp next February for Guardsmen whose occupations make it difficult or impossible for them to attend summer camp.

Driven To The Brink

Arguments over cars aren't uncommon, but seldom are there arguments on top of cars. Tenacious California husband Terry Harmon clings to the hood of a car driven by his no-less-obsessive wife Denise during a marital spat in Mobile, Ala. The couple, from Los Angeles, had argued about the car when she took off.

He wasn't far behind and jumped on the hood to try and stop her. Eight miles later they were at the police station. Officers untangled the couple, but when she drove away he leaped back on the hood. They were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. The marriage is a month old.

Suits Seek To Remove 'Obstructions'

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas announced Monday the State Justice Department is initiating two separate lawsuits seeking removal of "artificial obstructions" placed in two river floodways.

The actions are the first of this kind ever brought by the state attorney general.

The Nebraska Water Resources Department, which requested the suits, concluded that lives and property might be threatened by the obstructions allegedly restricting floodway capacities of the Little Blue River and Crooked Creek, a Republican River tributary.

Douglas said his staff and the Water Resources Department are studying other legal actions of the same nature. Both petitions name Marion E. Ball, water resources director, as plaintiff.

One petition for abatement in Webster County District Court asks that the waste treatment lagoon built by the defendant, Continental Cheese Inc., be declared a public nuisance and ordered removed at the company's expense.

The petition says that Continental Cheese in January built the lagoon structure in an area near its plant "within the floodway and floodplain of Crooked Creek," neither of which the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission (NRC) has designated or established as a commission floodway.

Further, the petition says Continental Cheese built the obstruction, used and maintained it without Ball's permission or authorization. The structure "is a public nuisance which may impede, retard or change the direction of the flow of water, either in itself or by catching or collecting debris carried by ... water to the damage or detriment of either life or property."

The petition states that Ball in May asked Continental Cheese to remove the structure but the company refused.

The second petition names as the defendant the City of Hebron, which maintains a landfill on city property adjacent to the Little Blue River.

The Thayer County District Court abatement petition states that the Hebron landfill is within the Little Blue floodway and floodplain "and is composed in part of refuse, fill and other analogous matter deposited there from March 9, 1975, until Nov. 25, 1975."

The petition, as in the Webster County action, says the NRC hasn't designated or established floodway limits, that landfill deposits were made without Ball's knowledge or permission, that no permit was issued for the artificial obstruction, and that the Little Blue flow may be altered and debris carried downstream.

The Justice Department said Ball asked Hebron officials on Nov. 20, 1975, to remove the landfill but they too refused. The petition seeks a judgment for its removal at city expense.

Ford, Union Talking

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers and Ford Motor Co. resumed formal contract talks Monday for the first time since the automaker was struck six days ago. But neither side reported progress toward a settlement as the effects of the nationwide walkout began to spread.

Full bargaining contingents for the UAW and the company met for less than two hours Monday and then recessed until Tuesday morning. A source close to the talks said the only accomplishment was that "both sides got back together."

"I wouldn't label today's discussions as making progress, optimistic, or anything like that," the source said. "Because nothing of significance occurred except that they're talking again."

Meanwhile, Ford's operations in Canada and several U.S. auto suppliers began to feel effects of the six-day-old strike by 170,000 workers.

Some 1,600 hourly Canadian workers at a Windsor, Ont., engine plant and at least 2,000 U.S. workers at supplier firms received layoff notices because of the walkout, which has kept the nation's second largest auto producer shut down since midnight last Tuesday.

Spokesmen at other supplier companies said they would have to begin extensive layoffs if the strike lasts beyond Oct. 1.

Judge Dismisses Charges Of Murder 'Conspiracy'

Omaha (AP) — Saying it takes two to tango, at least in Nebraska, a judge has dismissed murder conspiracy charges filed against a former Omaha police officer.

The ruling was made Monday in the case of Robert Lichtert, an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for Douglas County sheriff in 1974.

Douglas County District Judge James Buckley dismissed charges of conspiring to commit murder which had been filed against Lichtert earlier this year.

The charges stemmed from an alleged plot to kill Leonard "Moe" Glass, 32, a convicted gambler who was reported to be a possible witness in a federal gambling case. Glass is also a former Omaha police officer.

Reports last April said an informant told investigators that Lichtert needed Glass killed because of some gambling debts Lichtert owed.

Lichtert, 32, the owner of a private security firm, allegedly hired Albert Simon, 35, of Illinois, to handle the killing for a sum of $1,000.

Buckley, acting on a defense motion, dismissed the charges, saying state law requires that two or more persons be knowingly involved before a conspiracy can be charged.

In Lichtert's case, only one person was knowingly involved. There was no overt act by a second person, Buckley ruled.

Therefore, there could not have been a conspiracy, "although the defendant had planned a business crime," Buckley said.

Buckley also suggested that the state law should be changed because of such cases, and pointed to Minnesota's conspiracy statutes.

It was not the first time Buckley had alluded to such a statutory change.

In July, Buckley said he felt the law involved in the Lichtert case contained a serious defect which could allow a person who plots a crime to go unpunished. At that time, Buckley said his statement had no implication on Lichtert's innocence or guilt.

Lichtert's attorney, Dean Russell, argued that the charges should be dropped because prosecution could not prove that Simon, also a convicted felon, knew he was being hired to kill someone when he purchased the weapon to be used.

After finding out about the job, Simon went to Lichtert, and never intended to go through with the killing, thus a conspiracy did not exist, Russell contended.

AIM Director Says Probe Was 'Stacked'

MAHOMEN, Minn. (AP) — A spokesman for the American Indian Movement criticized on Monday a Senate subcommittee report describing the organization as "revolutionary" and "committed to violence."

Vernon Bellecourt, AIM's national field director and member of the organization's national council, said the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee investigation was a "stacked deck" in which AIM views were not sought.

Bellecourt said the subcommittee's chief witness, FBI informant Douglas F. Durham, was a "pathological liar" who was simply an "errand boy" who never was in on important AIM decisions.

The Senate unit released its report Sunday. In it the subcommittee said AIM does not speak for the American Indian. "It is a minority movement which, at the most, numbers several thousand followers," the report said.

Bellecourt was contacted at his home on the White Earth Indian Reservation.

"We had no way to really counteract Durham's allegations," said Bellecourt. "He was nothing more than a flunky to Dennis Banks, and flew him around the country. He was also used to pick up hamburgers and coffee."

The subcommittee acknowledged Sunday its report was based on testimony by Durham, whom the panel said infiltrated AIM for the FBI. Durham said he was paid $30,000 by the FBI for expenses.

"They have trampled on the civil rights of Indian, as well as non-Indian, citizens in the country," Durham was quoted as having said of AIM. "They are in cooperation with Communist groups, within the United States, Canada, Puerto Rico, Cuba."

Bellecourt called Durham's allegations "a continuation of the disruptive acts by the FBI, which many times has exploited the press."

He contended the news media "tends to feel that any story coming out of the FBI or Central Intelligence Agency has to have credibility."

Bellecourt said the published observations on AIM "are going to affect the thinking of every red neck reactionary and ignorant law officials who will step up their harassment of us."

He said AIM does speak for a broad range of opinion among American Indians, and that anyone who visited reservations would know that.

AIM was founded in 1968 and made headlines in November 1972, with seizure of the Bureau of Indian Affairs building in Washington and in early 1973 with its occupation of the town of Wounded Knee, S.D.

Doniphan Site Said Most Expensive

By United Press International

A real estate appraiser from Gibbon Monday told the Nebraska Power Review Board the site selected by the Great Plains Power Agency for a 150-megawatt power plant has the highest market value of three sites considered.

Rex Wiseman said the agency's preferred plant location near Doniphan, known as section 33 to local landowners, has a $1.6 million appraised value. The other two sites — recommended to the agency by a Kansas-based consulting engineers firm — were appraised at $1.36 million and $674,500, he said.

Both alternative sites are south of the Platte River, with one in Adams County and the other in Hamilton County.

The review board Monday began the third leg of its hearing on the agency's application to construct the coal-fired plant, which would service Grand Island and Hastings.

While testimony Aug. 10, when the hearing began, was centered around reviewing studies supporting the plant's feasibility and need, the September hearings have dealt primarily with the agency's decision to build at the Doniphan location.

This weekend, somebody let the air out of a Lincoln man's tires and stole the valve stems.

The officer, when asked to describe the items, wrote that the two valve stems and 64 pounds of air were valued at $1.

Ford, Dole Pounce On Carter Tax Plan

By United Press International
President Ford and running mate Bob Dole escalated their campaign attack on the Jimmy Carter's tax plan Monday, trying out a new slogan that said "a vote for Carter is a vote for a tax increase."

Ford also said middle income Americans need a tax cut — not a tax increase.

But the Democrats didn't sit still while Ford and Dole criticized Carter's recent statement in an interview that he favored shifting the tax burden to those with incomes above the median family level.

Carter whistled through by train through the Northeast Monday attacked the administration's unemployment record and urged voters to return the government to the people.

Walter Mondale, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, charged at a Lewiston, Maine breakfast appearance that Ford and Dole had "led the fight against much-needed tax reform and now are trying to confuse the issue."

He (Carter) is talking not about raising rates but about closing loopholes. Mondale explained.

Dole campaigning in Hollywood Fla. Monday morning told supporters, "A vote for Carter is a vote for a tax increase."

Carter really ought to go back to his plantation and take the tax system with him and spend about two weeks giving it some thought," Dole said.

Not much later at the White House Ford told a gathering of farm credit officials that "others call for additional taxes on middle-income earners," but I believe we should go in the opposite direction.

We should give them tax relief," Ford said.

Ford said under tax changes he has proposed a family of four would get an additional $1,000 in tax deductions and a family of six would get $1,500 in added tax deductions.

Presidential press secretary Ron Nessen later told reporters that Ford's comments were "an indirect reference to Carter's tax plan."

He also said Ford believes persons earning between $8,000 and $30,000 a year should have their taxes cut.

Dole seized the tax issue and said Carter apparently didn't realize that the "median family income is between $14,000 and $15,000 a year. In an interview aboard his campaign plane Sunday he said Carter's proposal was a blunder of the same magnitude as (George) McGovern's promising everyone $1,000 in 1972."

Carter told reporters in the Midwest Sunday that he was not proposing to increase taxes for people with $15,000 annual incomes.

I'm not going to add a tax burden on working families and the middle income categories," he said. "What I'm going to do is try to eliminate the tax loopholes that have been put in the tax code like the income tax shelters for large corporations."

Carter's campaign train started at dawn Monday in New York's Pennsylvania Station and rolled through Newark, Trenton, Philadelphia and Harrisburg. It then was to continue to Altoona, Johnstown and Pittsburgh.

At each stop, cheering crowds numbering in the thousands greeted him, and chants of "We Want Jobs" mingled with "We Want Carter."

Carter arranged to leave his campaign train in Pittsburgh Monday night where Mondale takes it over and continues on to Chicago Tuesday.

Carter planned to return to Georgia to prepare for Thursday's Campaign debate with President Ford.

Press secretary Nessen said Monday the President's advisers have sent a telegram to CBS saying "the White House agrees with the League of Women Voters' position that cutaway shots would be a distraction." He said Carter advisers also agreed with the ground rules, which have been protested by networks.

CBS announced Monday that it would carry the first debate on television and radio even though it had "substantial reservations" about agreeing with what it views as restrictive groundrules imposed by the league.

NBC also announced it would carry the program in a statement using much the same language.

ABC also announced it will carry the debate Thursday.

Carter: 'God Knows I Sin'

Chicago (UPI) — Jimmy Carter told Playboy magazine he has looked on a lot of women with lust and therefore "committed adultery in my heart many times." But he said God has forgiven him.

This is something that God recognizes I will do — and I have done it — and God forgives me for it," Carter was quoted as saying in a copyrighted Playboy interview for the magazine's November issue.

Asked if he felt he had reassured people who might think he would be rigid and unbending if elected president, Carter delivered a long monologue on his religious beliefs and his concept of morality.

In one portion of his explanation Carter said:

"I try not to commit a deliberate sin. Carter said 'I recognize that I'm going to do it anyway because I'm human and I'm tempted. And Christ set some impossible standards for us. Christ said 'I tell you that anyone who looks on a woman with lust has in his heart already committed adultery.'"

I've looked on a lot of women with lust. I've committed adultery in my heart many times. This is something that God recognizes I will do — and I have done it — and God forgives me for it. But that doesn't mean that I condemn someone who not only looks on a woman with lust but who leaves his wife and shacks up with somebody out of wedlock."

Christ says don't consider yourself better than someone else because one guy screws a whole bunch of women while the other guy is loyal to his wife. The guy who's loyal to his wife ought not to be condescending or proud because of the relative degree of sinfulness."

Carter, a former governor of Georgia, said his marriage to his wife Rosalynn has been successful because he loves her more than when I married her, because she's fully equal to me in every way in our relationship and because "we also share a religious faith."

Not Even Government Knows What Middle Income Is

By The Associated Press
The latest controversy over tax reform shows that one man's middle is another man's poor. Or rich.

Both Jimmy Carter and President Ford say they want to ease the burden on the middle-income taxpayer.

The only problem is figuring out what middle means.

In a Reader's Digest interview published over the weekend, Ford said: "I favor giving greater tax relief to the so-called middle-income taxpayers — those in the earning brackets of $8,000 to $30,000 a year."

Carter, in an interview with the Associated Press, refused to say exactly what he considered the middle. At one point, pressed to be specific, he said, "I don't know. I would take the mean or median income and anything above that would be higher and anything below that would be lower."

Stuart Eizenstat, Carter's chief adviser on issues, repeated later that the Democratic candidate did not know what the turning point between tax increases and decreases would be. But he described families making up to $35,000 as middle-income taxpayers.

Government statistics don't provide much help in defining the middle. Some refer to medians and others to averages. Some refer to individuals and others to families. And the latest available figures from different agencies do not always apply to the same years.

For example, The median family income in 1974, according to the Bureau of the Census, was $12,836. That means half of all American families earned more and half earned less.

The $12,836 figure refers only to families of related persons, it does not count people living alone or unrelated individuals sharing a home. For those people, the Census Bureau has another statistic: the median household income, which was $11,101 in 1974.

The average per capita income for 1975 — total personal income divided by the population — was $5,834, according to the Commerce Department. Multi-

Footprint Thieves Scot-Free

London (UPI) — Someone has stolen Finlay Munro's footsteps.

A resident of Glen Moriston in Scotland, Hugh Gordon, said "It must have been tourists who did this terrible thing. We pity them."

The Sunday People Newspaper said, "It is an eerie story," and offered a case of whisky as a reward for information leading to the return of the cursed footprints.

The story concerns Finlay Munro, a fiery evangelist who preached outdoor sermons in Scotland some 150 years ago.

At one service, because he was heckled, he put a curse on the spot where he stood.

He promised the wrath of heaven would descend upon anyone who desecrated the spot and no grass would ever grow on his footprints.

For those 150-odd years nothing did grow on the spot and people in Glen Moriston, awed by the story, put a fence around the footprints.

But last week the fence was found broken down and the earth dug up. Somebody had stolen the footprints!

The reward offered by the newspaper was accompanied by a statement that the winner must not be afraid to face the curse of Preacher Finlay.

Senate Passes Measure To Raise Vets' Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate completed action Monday on legislation that would raise veterans' pensions by 7 percent, effective next Jan. 1, and sent the measure to the White House.

The Senate also passed a bill providing an 8 per cent increase, effective Oct. 1, in government benefits for disabled veterans and for survivors of Americans killed in action. It goes to the House.

Both measures were passed by a voice vote.

Some 2.3 million veterans now receive compensation for service-connected disability. The amount varies from $36 to $707 a month, depending on the severity of the disability. Those with multiple disabilities may receive $1,139 a month.

Payments to widows of men who die of service causes range from $241 a month to $614, depending on the rank of the veteran.

The pension bill also makes permanent an 8 per cent pension hike that was enacted last year but was scheduled to expire on Oct. 1. In addition, it calls for a 25 per cent additional increase in pension benefits for veterans 70 years or older.

Ag Dept. Milk Price Supports To Rise Oct. 1

Washington (UPI) — Government price supports for milk will be increased by just over a penny per gallon effective Oct. 1 but with minimal impact on consumer prices, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz announced Monday.

The support floor for manufacturing-grade milk, currently $8.13 per hundred pounds, will be raised to $8.28 on Oct. 1, the beginning of the third quarter of the marketing year. Since a gallon of milk weighs 8.6 pounds, the hike will amount to 1.1 cents a gallon.

Bishops Approve Prayer Book Revision

Minneapolis (UPI) — The Episcopal Church's House of Bishops Monday approved a major revision of the Book of Common Prayer but amendments added by the bishops delayed final approval by the church's General Convention.

By an overwhelming voice vote, with only one dissent audible, the bishops agreed to present to the church for use for the next three years a modernized, updated book of worship and rite that changes some of the most familiar texts in Christian worship.

On Saturday, the church's House of Deputies also overwhelmingly approved the proposed new Book of Common Prayer in a slightly different form from that approved by the bishops. The bishops' version now goes back to the deputies for their concurrence.

One of the most bitterly fought issues in a convention that has been described as the Episcopal Church's Vatican II because of the radical changes being wrought in the denomination, the controversy over the prayer book seemed to vanish as the votes in each house grew near.

The biggest difference between the bishops and deputies is a single phrase in the conventional Nicene Creed known as the "filioque" or "double procession" clause.

The Nicene Creed, formulated at the 4th Century Council of Nicea, is one of the two historic statements of the essentials of Christian faith. As generally said in Western Christian churches, the creed contains a statement that says the Holy Spirit "proceeds from the Father and the Son."

However, biblical scholars believe the phrase "and the Son" was added some centuries later and Eastern Orthodox Church have never accepted its usage. It has been a stumbling block in ecumenical relations between the Orthodox and the Western Christian churches.

The original version of the Draft Proposed Book of Common Prayer, as the new book of services is called, did not contain the controversial clause but it was added by the deputies during their debate on the issue. The bishops Monday decided to knock it out.

The new book, in the making for more than a decade, modernizes and updates the language of the 400-year-old Book of Common Prayer.

It allows alternate reading of such texts as the Lord's Prayer, for example, which now begins "Our Father in heaven, hallowed be your name, your kingdom come, your will be done."

In the Psalter (Psalms) translations, the 16th century forms are done away with so that the phrase in the 23rd Psalm "he restoreth my soul" reads "he revives my soul."

Opponents of the proposed book have argued that in changing the language, the revisionists also have altered the historic doctrines of the church and placed it in a virtual state of heresy and internal schism.

A compromise suggested by Presiding Bishop John Allin, under which a committee will be appointed to find ways of continuing to make available the Book of Common Prayer now in use after 1979 when the modern version is expected to get its final approval, was credited with undercutting the opposition to the new book.

Swedish Socialists Out; Stocks Soar 18 Die As Trains Hit In The Fog

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Stocks made their biggest one-day gain in Stockholm trading history Monday and some political leaders talked about a major blow to Socialist forces in Western Europe after weekend elections ended 44 years of Social Democratic rule.

Prime Minister Olof Palme officially handed in his resignation Monday night to the speaker of Parliament, Henry Allard.

Allard accepted Palme's concession of defeat to a coalition of moderate parties and Palme, stepping out of the speaker's office in the Parliament building, told reporters "It's all very sad."

Palme maintained in a live interview over West German television that Swedish voters had not rejected the pioneering social welfare system erected by his party. What narrowly beat the Social Democrats, he said, was the vigorous campaign waged by one of the three moderate parties against government plans for a nationwide network of nuclear power plants.

Palme predicted the Social Democrats would return to power soon.

Sweden's commercial community reacted buoyantly to the Social Democratic defeat. Four hours before Palme's resignation, Stig Algott, director of the Stockholm stock exchange, reported the industrial index rose 13.35 points, the biggest one-day increase ever here, before dropping back slightly to 10.33 at the close of trading.

Thorbjörn Fälldin AP
... to be prime minister.

It rose from 423.65 to 437.00 at peak and closed at 433.90.

The victorious coalition of the Center, Conservative and Liberal parties held separate party meetings. A spokesman said Thorbjörn Fälldin, the 50-year-old sheep farmer who will become prime minister, would call them together soon for discussions to form a government and work out a program. Fälldin is leader of the Center party.

There was no official reaction from Washington, but State Department officials said privately they expect the new Swedish government to be more "even handed" on international human rights issues and less outspoken on foreign policy questions in general than the Palme government.

Palme, long an irritant to Washington because of his support of the Palestinians, at the United Nations and other Third World revolutionary movements, was accused by former American U.N. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan a few months ago of being a hypocrite on human rights.

Moynihan said Palme was indignant about arrests of political dissidents in Chile but silent about similar abuses in the Soviet Union.

The Soviet press offered little commentary except to say the "bourgeois parties" were preparing to form a new Swedish government and that there are many differences of opinion among them.

Traders on the Stockholm stock market interpreted the Socialist defeat as encouragement for private investment and an end to the Meldner plan, a proposal developed by the Social Democrat-dominated trade union council which would have taken control of business out of private hands and placed a majority of shares in worker-controlled funds.

"The change of power will positively affect the belief in the future of small and medium-size concerns here," said Axel Iveroth, president of the Swedish Federation of Industry. "We don't have to consider the Meldner funds as an immediate threat any more. This will have positive results for our entire industrial and commercial life."

with 153 parliamentary seats and their Communist allies with 17 compared to 180 for the moderate group.

Palme, who refused to take the blame for the defeat, describing himself as just another party worker, said: "It will be very interesting to see how the winners work out their promises."

He tried to minimize the effect of the non-Socialist victory elsewhere in Europe, but Bernd Carlsson, the Social Democrat official responsible for relations with other European parties, said in an interview that "the effect is bad, quite bad."

In West Germany, where national elections are scheduled Oct. 3, conservative opposition leader Helmut Kohl said the Swedish result "is a signal for Europe not to turn over our continent to the Socialist Internationale."

Kohl, chancellor candidate of the Christian Democratic Union, hopes to unseat Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and the Social Democrats.

Former German Chancellor Willy Brandt, chairman of the Social Democrats, said the Swedish results did not signify anything for Germany. He added that Kohl's party was overlooking that the Swedish opposition parties agree with the outgoing government on the social welfare state and Sweden's neutral foreign policy.

Carlsson acknowledged that the basic characteristics of Sweden would not change.

Trains Hit In The Fog

Belgrade, Yugoslavia (UPI) — The famed Orient Express train went through a red light in fog Monday and collided with a commuter train near Ljubljana, killing and injuring scores of passengers, rail officials said.

The officials said 18 persons were killed — 14 passengers aboard the commuter train and four engineers and assistants in the cabs of both trains. Another 40 persons were injured, 15 seriously.

The 16-coach Direct Orient Athens-to-Paris train, which succeeded the original Istanbul-to-Paris Orient Express about a year ago, went through a red signal in dense fog as it pulled into a small station outside Ljubljana shortly after dawn, officials said.

The electric locomotive and the mail car on the express overturned and the force of the impact knocked one of the three cars of the commuter train on its side, the officials said.

The commuter train was pulling out of the station at the time but it was not immediately clear if the collision, which occurred 200 yards outside the station, was head-on.

The Yugoslav rail system is notorious for its high accident rate. More than 700 persons have been killed and about 2,000 others injured on it in the past five years.

Glomar Will Be Put In Mothballs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy took over the multimillion-dollar spy ship Glomar Explorer Monday after the government failed in a months-long effort to find any private firm willing to lease the vessel.

The 618-foot salvage ship, which the government said was worth $85 million, was used by the CIA to recover part of a Russian submarine from the bottom of the Pacific Ocean in the summer of 1974.

After the CIA was finished with the ship, the government tried unsuccessfully to find another federal agency that might use it, and then turned it over to the General Services Administration to seek private bids.

GSA officials had declined to say how much a lease would cost, but industry estimates put the figure at about $30,000 a day. The Navy said the ship, reportedly designed to lift as much as 2,000 tons from depths of 20,000 feet, will be mothballed and kept in readiness for possible future use as a Navy salvage vessel.

The ship was built with government funds under a secret agreement between the CIA and a corporation controlled by the late billionaire Howard Hughes.

Turkish Jetliner's Pilot Thought He Was Higher

Isparta, Turkey (UPI) — The pilot of a Turkish airliner that roared over this southern town "almost at rooftop level" and crashed into a mountainside, killing all 155 persons aboard, apparently thought he was flying at 13,000 feet, reports from the scene indicated Monday.

A Turkish minister said the pilot also believed he was within one minute of his destination when in fact he was more than 10 minutes away.

Officials searching the fire-blackened wreckage of the Turkish Airlines Boeing 727 on the slopes of 7,220-foot Mt. Karatepe said they had located the "black box" flight recorder that could clarify the discrepancies.

The jet, on the final leg of a flight from Milan via Rome and Istanbul to the Mediterranean resort of Antalya, slammed into the mountain eight miles south of Isparta, 51 miles short of its destination.

The victims included a Turkish crew of eight, 23 Turkish passengers, about 80 Italians and the rest mostly German and Dutch citizens. Sources in Rome said at least four honeymooning Italian couples were among the dead.

Nahit Mentese, Turkey's minister of communications, told reporters: "The pilot asked for permission to descend to 12,000 feet from 13,000 feet and told the Antalya control tower he expected to touch down within a minute. Nothing else was heard from the plane after that message."

But the Italian tourist office, which sponsored some of the Italian passengers, said the scene of the crash was a 10-minute flight from the Turkish resort and witnesses in Isparta said the airliner passed only feet over the city.

"It was flying dangerously low, almost at rooftop level," one witness told reporters. "I heard the noise of its engines and when I looked out of the window I could even see the cabin windows of the plane."

"It crashed with a loud explosion into the side of the mountain and we saw the sky go crimson."

Briefcases Stolen From Americans Slain In Iran

(c) Washington Star
Washington — The Iranians who ambushed and killed three American employees of Rockwell International in Tehran last month took the briefcases of two of them before fleeing.

Raid by Iranian police a few days later established a connection between the murderers and an organization named Iranian People's Strugglers. An IPS member had told police earlier that documents taken from two U.S. Air Force officers assassinated by the IPS in Tehran last year had been sent to the Soviet Union.

This has caused official speculation in Iran that the main purpose of the murders Aug. 28 was not to try to terrorize the large community of Americans working there on military and civilian projects, although it has such overtones.

The ambush might instead have been set up primarily to obtain information about Rockwell International's work. This fits with Iranian suspicions that the Soviet secret police are somehow, perhaps indirectly through a third country, behind some of the terrorist activity in Iran.

The Russians have good reason to be interested in Rockwell International's project, which is code named Irbex.

Irbex is a multi-million-dollar contract to provide Iran with some of the United States' most sophisticated equipment for gathering all types of communications intelligence and to teach Iranians to use it. The system will enable Iran to monitor not only radio conversations around its borders but also the kind of complex telemetry and radar signals involved in missile firings and air defenses.

Iran already has limited capabilities of this type. It has, for instance, been listening to short-range radio communications across the border in Iraq, with whom it has periodically hostile relations.

But Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi is not so much worried about Iraq and his Persian Gulf neighbors as he is about the superpower on his northern border, the Soviet Union. Keenly aware of a long history of Russian expansionism in his direction, the shah has often spoken of the main danger being from the north.

Bloodbath Deepens In Lebanon

Beirut, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon sank deeper in its bloodbath Monday after the collapse of yet another effort to end the 17-month-old civil war.

Fighting increased along traditional Moslem-Christian fronts. In addition, rival Christian militias fought each other in two separate deadly clashes. Those apparently stemmed from undeclared inter-Christian differences over the takeover of power by President-Elect Elias Sarkis, a moderate Christian, next Thursday.

The casualty toll in the latest 24-hour period since the collapse of a tripartite Lebanese-Syrian-Palestinian peace conference at Chitoura Sunday, was 110 killed and 150 wounded, according to hospital estimates.

The night fighting in Beirut was the heaviest in two weeks. It included indiscriminate shelling by both sides of residential areas, well beyond the four-mile battle front splitting the city.

18 Die As Trains Hit In The Fog

Belgrade, Yugoslavia (UPI) — The famed Orient Express train went through a red light in fog Monday and collided with a commuter train near Ljubljana, killing and injuring scores of passengers, rail officials said.

The officials said 18 persons were killed — 14 passengers aboard the commuter train and four engineers and assistants in the cabs of both trains. Another 40 persons were injured, 15 seriously.

The 16-coach Direct Orient Athens-to-Paris train, which succeeded the original Istanbul-to-Paris Orient Express about a year ago, went through a red signal in dense fog as it pulled into a small station outside Ljubljana shortly after dawn, officials said.

The electric locomotive and the mail car on the express overturned and the force of the impact knocked one of the three cars of the commuter train on its side, the officials said.

The commuter train was pulling out of the station at the time but it was not immediately clear if the collision, which occurred 200 yards outside the station, was head-on.

The Yugoslav rail system is notorious for its high accident rate. More than 700 persons have been killed and about 2,000 others injured on it in the past five years.

Glomar Will Be Put In Mothballs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy took over the multimillion-dollar spy ship Glomar Explorer Monday after the government failed in a months-long effort to find any private firm willing to lease the vessel.

The 618-foot salvage ship, which the government said was worth $65 million, was used by the CIA to recover part of a Russian submarine from the bottom of the Pacific Ocean in the summer of 1974.

After the CIA was finished with the ship, the government tried unsuccessfully to find another federal agency that might use it, and then turned it over to the General Services Administration to seek private bids.

the figure at about $30,000 a day.

The Navy said the ship, reportedly designed to lift as much as 2,000 tons from depths of 20,000 feet, will be mothballed and kept in readiness for possible future use as a Navy salvage vessel.

The ship was built with government funds under a secret agreement between the CIA and a corporation controlled by the late billionaire Howard Hughes.

Turkish Jetliner's Pilot Thought He Was Higher

Isparta, Turkey (UPI) — The pilot of a Turkish airliner that roared over this southern town "almost at rooftop level" and crashed into a mountainside, killing all 155 persons aboard, apparently thought he was flying at 13,000 feet, reports from the scene indicated Monday.

A Turkish minister said the pilot also believed he was within one minute of his destination when in fact he was more than 10 minutes away.

Officials searching the fire-blackened wreckage of the Turkish Airlines Boeing 727 on the slopes of 7,220-foot Mt. Karatepe said they had located the "black box" flight recorder that could clarify the discrepancies.

The jet, on the final leg of a flight from Milan via Rome and Istanbul to the Mediterranean resort of Antalya, slammed into the mountain eight miles south of Isparta, 51 miles short of its destination.

The victims included a Turkish crew of eight, 23 Turkish passengers, about 80 Italians and the rest mostly German and Dutch citizens. Sources in Rome said at least four honeymooning Italian couples were among the dead.

Nahit Mentese, Turkey's minister of communications, told reporters: "The pilot asked for permission to descend to 12,000 feet from 13,000 feet and told the Antalya control tower he expected to touch down within a minute. Nothing else was heard from the plane after that message."

But the Italian tourist office, which sponsored some of the Italian passengers, said the scene of the crash was a 10-minute flight from the Turkish resort and witnesses in Isparta said the airliner passed only feet over the city.

"It was flying dangerously low, almost at rooftop level," one witness told reporters. "I heard the noise of its engines and when I looked out of the window I could even see the cabin windows of the plane."

"It crashed with a loud explosion into the side of the mountain and we saw the sky go crimson."

Briefcases Stolen From Americans Slain In Iran

(c) Washington Star
Washington — The Iranians who ambushed and killed three American employees of Rockwell International in Tehran last month took the briefcases of two of them before fleeing.

Raids by Iranian police a few days later established a connection between the murderers and an organization named Iranian People's Strugglers. An IPS member had told police earlier that documents taken from two U.S. Air Force officers assassinated by the IPS in Tehran last year had been sent to the Soviet Union.

This has caused official speculation in Iran that the main purpose of the murders Aug. 28 was not to try to terrorize the large community of Americans working there on military and civilian projects, although it has such overtones.

The ambush might instead have been set up primarily to obtain information about Rockwell International's work. This fits with Iranian suspicions that the Soviet secret police are somehow, perhaps indirectly through a third country, behind some of the terrorist activity in Iran.

The Russians have good reason to be interested in Rockwell International's project, which is code named Ibex.

Ibex is a multi-million-dollar contract to provide Iran with some of the United States' most sophisticated equipment for gathering all types of communications intelligence and to teach Iranians to use it. The system will enable Iran to monitor not only radio conversations around its borders but also the kind of complex telemetry and radar signals involved in missile firings and air defenses.

Iran already has limited capabilities of this type. It has, for instance, been listening to short-range radio communications across the border in Iraq, with whom it has periodically hostile relations.

But Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi is not so much worried about Iraq and his Persian Gulf neighbors as he is about the superpower on his northern border, the Soviet Union. Keenly aware of a long history of Russian expansionism in his direction, the shah has often spoken of the main danger being from the north.

Bloodbath Deepens In Lebanon

Bairut, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon sank deeper in its bloodbath Monday after the collapse of yet another effort to end the 17-month-old civil war.

Fighting increased along traditional Moslem-Christian fronts. In addition, rival Christian militias fought each other in two separate deadly clashes. Those apparently stemmed from undeclared inter-Christian differences over the takeover of power by President-Elect Elias Sarkis, a moderate Christian, next Thursday.

The casualty toll in the latest 24-hour period since the collapse of a tripartite Lebanese-Syrian-Palestinian peace conference at Chitoura Sunday, was 110 killed and 150 wounded, according to hospital estimates.

The night fighting in Beirut was the heaviest in two weeks. It included indiscriminate shelling by both sides of residential areas, well beyond the four-mile battle front splitting the city.

Still Not Convinced

Although University of Nebraska administrators last week explained in detail and defended a complex formula which alleges a funding inequity between UN-L and UN-O with the Omaha campus needing about $1 million to catch up, we're still not convinced that Omaha branches of the university are disadvantaged compared to the Lincoln campus.

And we hold to the fear that political force will be applied even more strongly in behalf of UN-L in the future — at the expense of UN-O.

To be sure, even as $300,000 in funding parity money was granted to UN-O this year by the Legislature, senators were giving UN-L an additional $850,000 shot in the arm to beef up undergraduate instructional programs.

That might be read as excessive legislative generosity to Lincoln at Omaha's expense, but it should be read as late recognition that some programs at Lincoln were being neglected.

And figures from the state budget office show the problem from a different perspective.

The figures show that the Lincoln campus' share of state tax funding is growing less each year. While the percentage share of the university general fund budget going to UN-O and the Medical Center at Omaha increases, the share going to UN-L shrinks. Between the two Omaha campuses, the medical center is the bigger winner.

Dollar amounts, of course, have increased, and Lincoln along with the other elements of the university has received more dollars each year. But there again, the percentage increase in tax dollar amounts enjoyed by UN-L ranks at the bottom among the campuses.

And with state legislators indicating they will be more responsive this year to Gov. Exon's annual call for spending restraints, and with a feeling among Nebraska officeholders that perhaps the university system has made out like a bandit in recent budget increases, in all likelihood the NU system may be headed for a tax dollar drought. This would doubtless affect all components of the system, but when dollar resources get short, political clout is even more important in divvying up a shrunken pot — and increased clout is evident along the Missouri River.

We are still not convinced that UN-O is the poor relation of the University of Nebraska family and all signs point to an even brighter future for that campus.

Farmers Not One-Dimensional

The SRI poll published in the Sunday Journal and Star this last week showed that in agricultural Nebraska, the Democratic Party's stance on agricultural issues are preferred to the Republican Party's farm positions.

Among farmers and ranchers the Democrats' answers to ag problems are preferred by 46% to 38% with the remainder not expressing a preference.

It is apparent that the grain sales embargo and grain and livestock price levels have something to do with a growing farmer disenchantment with GOP ag policy.

But the same polls show the rural community still pretty solidly Republican when it comes to the candidates. President Ford, despite having imposed the embargoes, leads Jimmy Carter among farmers and ranchers by 49% to 33%, about the same margin Ford enjoys in the entire Nebraska public opinion sample.

What this shows is that while Ford and the Republicans are in some trouble in the farm areas; while Carter does have the opportunity to make points in rural Nebraska, farmers and ranchers are not one-dimensional.

WALLACE TURNER

Fresno Four Freed

SAN FRANCISCO — Facts in the Fresno Bee contempt cases that were ended Friday with the release from jail of four newsmen raise the questions as to whether the confinements were illegal, because there never was a showing that the inquiry in which they refused to testify had an established legal purpose.

In the opinion of some legal experts, the courts should have recognized the two reporters' and two editors' claims to protection under the California "Shield Law," which permits newsmen to refuse to name confidential sources.

Instead of allowing the confidentiality claim, two state superior court judges insisted that the source be identified even after being told that the source was not someone covered by the court's secrecy order. California judges cannot require the identification of a newsmen's source if they know the source is not covered by a secrecy order.

When the newsmen refused to identify their sources, they were jailed on "coercive" sentences, with the understanding they would be held in jail until they talked.

A close examination of the court's actions brings out the possible illegality of the procedures that resulted in the jailing.

The judges' right to pursue the case beyond the point when the newsmen cited the shield law's protection stems from a legal theory that a judge may not be impeded by the legislature in the judge's pursuit of reasons why a lawful judicial order has been violated.

However, in this case, the judges never had direct evidence that the court's secrecy order was violated. They only inferred that there had been a violation of the order from the fact that the Fresno Bee had printed articles based on sealed testimony.

All the direct evidence the judges had was sworn testimony that the articles had been based on information provided by someone not covered by the court's orders.

The stories were about an investigation of possible civic corruption. The secret testimony would have become public had not Judge Denver C. Peckinpaugh issued an order sealing it until after the trial of a city councilman charged with conflict of interest and later charged with taking bribes.

The judge sealed the testimony, he said at the time, in fear that its disclosure would prevent a fair trial of the city councilman, a lawyer who had told the grand jury that he received $5,000 from a company that wanted the city garbage collection contract, but that the money was a legal fee, not a bribe.

The Bee withheld publication of its articles until the trials had been transferred away from Fresno. The indictments against the councilman were tried in Oakland and in San Jose. He was acquitted.

Soon after the articles appeared Judge Peckinpaugh instituted an inquiry. He had authority only to try to find who among those covered by his order had violated it.

The order could cover only the persons who worked for the court, and the attorneys involved in the case. It could not cover The Fresno Bee, some legal experts say.

When they were subpoenaed, the newsmen cited the California shield law's protections. But Judge Peckinpaugh, citing a California appellate court decision in the case of William Farr, a Los Angeles reporter, brushed aside that claim of protection.

Farr's case differed from the one in Fresno in a most significant aspect. When Farr was questioned by a judge about the source of an article based on some sealed evidence in the case, he told the judge he had got it from lawyers in the case.

The appellate decision that upheld Farr's jailing for contempt established the concept that the judge could not be barred by the legislature from enforcing orders he had lawfully issued.

In effect, this opened a narrow gap in the California shield law's protection as a newsmen's defense. The court in Fresno charged through the break, trying to widen it.

In the Fresno case, the four newsmen testified under oath that the source of their material for the story on the grand jury testimony had not been anyone covered by the court's secrecy order.

The court also questioned the people who were covered by the order, and they all denied being the source.

At this point the Fresno court ordered the newsmen to 15 days in jail. During this period, the court tried to find a sufficient judicial reason to support the jailing order.

"... AN ATMOSPHERE THAT COULD SUPPORT LIFE..."

WILLIAM V. SHANNON

The Quiet Issue

WASHINGTON — The protection of the environment is the quiet issue in this presidential campaign, not stressed as yet by either presidential candidate. But it is politically significant that the leadership of the environmental movement overwhelmingly supports Democrat Jimmy Carter.

Some leaders such as Joe Browder, director of the Environmental Policy Center, and Stewart Brandborg, until recently the executive director of the Wilderness Society, support him openly. Others who head organizations that have to protect their tax-exempt status support him privately.

The origins of this political line-up are easy to discover. President Ford was in office nearly a year before he met with the leaders of the major environmental organizations. When he did meet with them, it was at the dedication of the National Environmental Resource Center in Cincinnati in July, 1975, where he devoted his speech to developing the theme that is the pet hate of conservationists, namely, that there is an inherent conflict between a clean environment and a prosperous economy.

"I pursue the goal of clean air and water," Ford said, "but I must also pursue the objective of maximum jobs and continued economic progress. Unemployment is as real and as sickening a blight as any pollutant that threatens the nation."

"... If accomplishing every worthy environmental objective would slow down our effort to regain energy independence and a stronger economy, then of necessity I must weigh all factors involved," he added.

Carter has consistently taken the exactly opposite view. In his presentation to the Democratic Platform Committee in June, for example, he said: "I do not believe that there is an incompatibility between economic progress and environmental quality. We should not be diverted from our cause by false claims that the protection of our ecology and wildlife means an end to growth and a decline in jobs. This is not the case."

In expounding his position, Carter has frequently said:

"I want to make it clear if there is ever a conflict, I will go for beauty, clean air, water and landscape."

The clash in their basic philosophies emerges on almost every specific environmental issue. Carter has endorsed the concept — embodied in Democratic-sponsored bills in Congress — of providing federal grants to encourage states to develop plans for the better use of land. President Ford has said, "I am opposed to it, period."

The President has urged extensive revision of the Clean Air Act to delay the deadlines on automobile emission controls and to permit greater use of coal. He has expressed the view that the law "unnecessarily discourages greater coal production." By contrast, Carter told the Platform Committee that Congress should "hold fast against efforts to lower clean air requirements."

In an interview in May, Carter told Business Week that although he disagreed with two provisions of the strip mining bill passed by Congress, he would have signed it. President Ford has vetoed the bill twice.

Similarly, the President has hinted that he might veto the toxic substances bill if it contains stringent controls on industrial chemicals. Several days ago, Carter urged enactment of strict controls.

The Ford administration has aggressively urged the rapid development of nuclear energy. The Democratic nominee, who once worked for Admiral Rickover in the Navy's nuclear program, has urged caution in such development. He has urged, for example, that funding of the fast breeder reactor be "severely reduced."

In a statement on energy, Carter declared, "Unless we conserve energy drastically, make a major shift to coal, and substantially increase our use of solar energy, we will have no alternative to greatly increased dependence on nuclear power. As one who is intimately familiar with the problems and potential of nuclear energy, I believe we must make every effort to keep that dependence to a minimum."

Carter has also captured the interest of conservationists because as governor of Georgia, he blocked a dam proposed by the Army Corps of Engineers on a free-flowing river, and he opposed "stream channelization" projects urged by the Soil Conservation Service — two initiatives not usually undertaken by governors.

No one can predict with certainty how individual conservationists will vote. They are a quirky, independent-minded breed. But in the last dozen years, they have proved that environmentalism is not an elitist movement or a passing fad of the young. On the contrary, it is one of the few big, popular movements that continues to enlist volunteers, excite idealism, and evoke steadfast and unselfish commitment. Moreover, its appeal transcends normal divisions between young and old, rich and working class, city and countryside, scientist and layman.

Environmentalists have become battle-tested and politically sophisticated in many hard local and national fights. Because they exist in every region and virtually every community, they could prove to be a potent if little-noticed force in determining the outcome of this election.

Multinational Bribery

WASHINGTON — Corporate bribery of low- and middle-level government officials has become sufficiently commonplace to have lost its shock value. But when the person accused or suspected of accepting bribes stands near the pinnacle of power, the common reaction still is one of stunned disbelief. Japan and the Netherlands provide two recent cases in point.

Former Japanese Premier Kakuei Tanaka, whose private financial dealings had long been a matter of speculation, was indicted in Tokyo Aug. 16 on charges of having accepted $1.6 million to arrange the purchase of Lockheed aircraft by All Nippon Airlines. Tanaka was the first Japanese to be indicted for bribery occurring while he served as head of government.

Then, on Aug. 26, a special Dutch government commission sharply chastised Prince Bernhard, Queen Juliana's husband, for being "extremely imprudent and unwise" in his dealings with Lockheed. The commission, which spent six months investigating allegations that the prince had accepted $1.1 million in bribes, said there was no firm evidence he had taken the money. Bernhard resigned virtually all of his many military and business posts the day the commission's report was released.

The commission's findings, although not entirely unexpected, deeply saddened the Dutch people. "All Dutchmen are Calvinist at heart," Barbara Beck wrote in The Economist of London before the report was issued, "be they Protestant, Catholic, agnostic or Communist ones, with a built-in sense of earnest endeavor and a high moral tone. This explains why the accusations... (against Bernhard) were seen as so particularly shocking, for it was rather like finding one's maiden aunt with her hand in the till."

The Dutch government plans no legal action against Bernhard, and for good reason. A criminal investigation almost certainly would have led to the abdication of the popular Queen Juliana. Princess Beatrix, moreover, has hinted that she would prefer not to succeed to the throne under such circumstances. Beatrix's elder son, third in the line of succession, is only nine years old.

The Lockheed bribery scandal

threatens to spill over into at least two other European countries. Ernest F. Hauser, the company's customer-relations manager for Europe in the early 1960s, has charged that the Christian Democratic Party received $12 million in Lockheed kickbacks in 1961. Hauser also is quoted as saying that an unidentified British cabinet minister received a $1-million bribe from Lockheed in 1973 or 1974, when the Conservatives were in office. Hauser's accusations have yet to be substantiated.

Lockheed, it must be emphasized, is by no means the only multinational company to have been implicated in bribery. United Brands, Ashland Oil and several other U.S.-based multinationals have been accused of engaging in such activity.

The 24 member nations of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development approved on May 21 a strict though voluntary code of conduct for multinationals. But it is not likely that even a mandatory code could eliminate the all-too-human desire for easy monetary gain.

Laetrile Also A Vitamin

Blue Hill, Neb.

Articles by Gracia McAndrew and Harry Jackson appearing back to back in the Sept. 9 Star might have been combined into one article since both were about vitamins. Mrs. McAndrew failed to mention that fact. The article warned against Laetrile, also known as Vitamin B-17.

Mr. Jackson stated that "only two vitamins can cause dangerous side-effects when taken in massive doses — Vitamins A and D." B-17 is not dangerous.

Mr. Jackson would have done better to consult vitamin users to get information for his article. Reporting that "the general population is more vitamin and health-food conscious," he consulted none of this general population. Did he feel these people were not intelligent enough to answer his questions?

He didn't doubt his own knowledge on the subject, however, as he advised "persons using vitamins should limit themselves to a multiple vitamin pill offering the minimum requirements." He felt qualified to determine the nutritional requirements of all persons of all sizes, ages, occupations and in every possible physical condition. Obviously the requirements differ with these variables.

Laetrile or Vitamin B-17 has not been accused by the FDA of doing harm, only that the benefits have not been proven by the FDA. The current methods of treating cancer (surgery, cobalt and chemo-therapy) damage the body, cause pain and often disfigurement. B-17 does not. Why the concern? Compared to the conventional methods of treating cancer, B-17 is certainly a bargain.

I admire a man such as Alfred Schutte who takes his own time and money to do what he can to increase the quality of life for his fellow men. It is refreshing to see such unselfishness in today's grasping, greedy world.

I am sorry that neither reporter Jackson nor McAndrew did their subject justice. It's a fascinating subject and one that people need to know more about.

The Need For A Retreat

Lincoln, Neb.

I have closely observed for some time the various legal, political and environmental dialogues conducted regarding the Wilderness Park Bypass.

I, too, am deeply concerned about this issue and very definitely feel that this park should be preserved. While I think most of the arguments already exchanged by those who advocate the preservation of this park are noteworthy, my own concern stems from a deeper place. Wilderness Park is one of the few sacred public places left in the immediate area of Lincoln's growing metropolis. I and many others often retreat to Wilderness Park for periods of meditation and prayer. No matter what our specific religion is, all of us need to have ways in which we can reach our God through prayer. One can look back over history and recognize that the wisest and most advanced cultures had a deep respect for the land, for quiet and beauty. Wonderful feelings come to my heart as I recall experiences I have had in this park — I have always come back from this wild area with a stronger and fuller sense of God.

I urge Max Denney, head of Lincoln's City Council, to consider this issue on the merits of what kind of culture it is we wish to create for ourselves and for future generations. As Lincoln grows, we need to insure that we have retained some areas of the city which are natural and wild and not dedicated solely to worldly and transitory aims. Not only does such planning foster spiritual growth, which ought to be the aim of any society, but the very worldly activities we engage in can be fuller and sounder when there are opportunities to retreat from the stress of daily life.

Hruska-Sponsored Bill

Stirling Heights, Mich.

We in Michigan recently learned of a new bill in Congress called "SI" or "The Criminal Justice Reform Act of 1975." The aim of this bill is to codify present confusing federal criminal laws, and the principle itself is a good one.

However, Sections 543, 544 and 545 need to be called to the attention of Star readers, since the primary sponsor of the bill is Nebraska's own Senator Hruska. The sections can be interpreted as follows: If you shoot or otherwise do bodily harm to an intruder entering your home, even if he has come to harm you or steal your property, you will be liable for his injuries and can be forced to pay his hospitalization costs, etc.

I have it on the authority of a legislator and a congressional worker that this interpretation is quite apparent.

Now, perhaps some of his constituents might question Senator Hruska as to why he included such a horrible portion in an otherwise useful bill. Do we at this time in our national life, when crime is so rampant, need yet another protection for the criminal?

Now is the time to express our feelings about Wilderness Park. There ARE alternate routes for the West Bypass!

"Farmers are people, too," one of our farmer friends likes to point out.

It's true.

Farmers are taxpayers, have kids in school, have ideas on national defense and patriotism, are sports fans, buy cars and appliances, get sick, some need second jobs — just like all the other voters.

The bulk of farmers likely will not base their ballot decision on the unpopular price levels and embargo decisions alone, just as the bulk of Catholics likely will not vote on abortion alone.

Farmers and Catholics are like university professors, ethnics and all other compartmentalized Americans in that regard.

That is not to say that the embargo decisions and prices are not an important factor in this year's election. Among the undecided farmers and ranchers, those unpopular Ford administration policies and the current state of the market could swing some normally Republican votes to Carter and send some normally stay-at-home voters to the polls to vote for the Georgian.

But dissatisfaction over farm policy alone is not going to send Carter to the White House.

It can be argued, of course, that in sticking with an administration (if that is what farmers do) that stuck it to them, the farm vote will be regarded on both sides as dependable, predictable and unchangeable. Thus farmers can be taken for granted and will lose even more of what little political leverage they have left.

Fresno Four Freed

SAN FRANCISCO — Facts in the Fresno Bee contempt cases that were ended Friday with the release from jail of four newsmen raise the questions as to whether the confinements were illegal, because there never was a showing that the inquiry in which they refused to testify had an established legal purpose.

In the opinion of some legal experts, the courts should have recognized the two reporters' and two editors' claims to protection under the California "Shield Law," which permits newsmen to refuse to name confidential sources.

Instead of allowing the confidentiality claim, two state superior court judges insisted that the source be identified even after being told that the source was not someone covered by the court's secrecy order. California judges cannot require the identification of a newsmen's source if they know the source is not covered by a secrecy order.

When the newsmen refused to identify their sources, they were jailed on "coercive" sentences, with the understanding they would be held in jail until they talked.

A close examination of the court's actions brings out the possible illegality of the procedures that resulted in the jailing.

The judges' right to pursue the case beyond the point when the newsmen cited the shield law's protection stems from a legal theory that a judge may not be impeded by the legislature in the judge's pursuit of reasons why a lawful judicial order has been violated.

However, in this case, the judges never had direct evidence that the court's secrecy order was violated. They only inferred that there had been a violation of the order from the fact that the Fresno Bee had printed articles based on sealed testimony.

All the direct evidence the judges had was sworn testimony that the articles had been based on information provided by someone not covered by the court's orders.

The stories were about an investigation of possible civic corruption. The secret testimony would have become public had not Judge Denver C. Peckinpaugh issued an order sealing it until after the trial of a city councilman charged with conflict of interest and later charged with taking bribes.

The judge sealed the testimony, he said at the time, in fear that its disclosure would prevent a fair trial of the city councilman, a lawyer who had told the grand jury that he received $5,000 from a company that wanted the city garbage collection contract, but that the money was a legal fee, not a bribe.

The Bee withheld publication of its articles until the trials had been transferred away from Fresno. The indictments against the councilman were tried in Oakland and in San Jose. He was acquitted.

Soon after the articles appeared Judge Peckinpaugh instituted an inquiry. He had authority only to try to find who among those covered by his order had violated it.

The order could cover only the persons who worked for the court, and the attorneys involved in the case. It could not cover The Fresno Bee, some legal experts say.

When they were subpoenaed, the newsmen cited the California shield law's protections. But Judge Peckinpaugh, citing a California appellate court decision in the case of William Farr, a Los Angeles reporter, brushed aside that claim of protection.

Farr's case differed from the one in Fresno in a most significant aspect. When Farr was questioned by a judge about the source of an article based on some sealed evidence in the case, he told the judge he had got it from lawyers in the case.

The appellate decision that upheld Farr's jailing for contempt established the concept that the judge could not be barred by the legislature from enforcing orders he had lawfully issued.

In effect, this opened a narrow gap in the California shield law's protection as a newsmen's defense. The court in Fresno charged through the break, trying to widen it.

In the Fresno case, the four newsmen testified under oath that the source of their material for the story on the grand jury testimony had not been anyone covered by the court's secrecy order.

The court also questioned the people who were covered by the order, and they all denied being the source.

At this point the Fresno court ordered the newsmen to 15 days in jail. During this period, the court tried to find a sufficient judicial reason to support the jailing order.

"... AN ATMOSPHERE THAT COULD SUPPORT LIFE..."

WILLIAM V. SHANNON

The Quiet Issue

WASHINGTON — The protection of the environment is the quiet issue in this presidential campaign, not stressed as yet by either presidential candidate. But it is politically significant that the leadership of the environmental movement overwhelmingly supports Democrat Jimmy Carter.

Some leaders such as Joe Browder, director of the Environmental Policy Center, and Stewart Brandborg, until recently the executive director of the Wilderness Society, support him openly. Others who head organizations that have to protect their tax-exempt status support him privately.

The origins of this political line-up are easy to discover. President Ford was in office nearly a year before he met with the leaders of the major environmental organizations. When he did meet with them, it was at the dedication of the National Environmental Resource Center in Cincinnati in July, 1975, where he devoted his speech to developing the theme that is the pet hate of conservationists, namely, that there is an inherent conflict between a clean environment and a prosperous economy.

"I pursue the goal of clean air and water," Ford said, "but I must also pursue the objective of maximum jobs and continued economic progress. Unemployment is as real and as sickening a blight as any pollutant that threatens the nation."

"... If accomplishing every worthy environmental objective would slow down our effort to regain energy independence and a stronger economy, then of necessity I must weigh all factors involved," he added.

Carter has consistently taken the exactly opposite view. In his presentation to the Democratic Platform Committee in June, for example, he said: "I do not believe that there is an incompatibility between economic progress and environmental quality. We should not be diverted from our cause by false claims that the protection of our ecology and wildlife means an end to growth and a decline in jobs. This is not the case."

In expounding his position, Carter has frequently said: "I want to make it clear if there is ever a conflict, I will go for beauty, clean air, water and landscape."

The clash in their basic philosophies emerges on almost every specific environmental issue. Carter has endorsed the concept — embodied in Democratic-sponsored bills in Congress — of providing federal grants to encourage states to develop plans for the better use of land. President Ford has said, "I am opposed to it, period."

The President has urged extensive revision of the Clean Air Act to delay the deadlines on automobile emission controls and to permit greater use of coal. He has expressed the view that the law "unnecessarily discourages greater coal production." By contrast, Carter told the Platform Committee that Congress should "hold fast against efforts to lower clean air requirements."

In an interview in May, Carter told Business Week that although he disagreed with two provisions of the strip mining bill passed by Congress, he would have signed it. President Ford has vetoed the bill twice.

Similarly, the President has hinted that he might veto the toxic substances bill if it contains stringent controls on industrial chemicals. Several days ago, Carter urged enactment of strict controls.

The Ford administration has aggressively urged the rapid development of nuclear energy. The Democratic nominee, who once worked for Admiral Rickover in the Navy's nuclear program, has urged caution in such development. He has

In a statement on energy, Carter declared, "Unless we conserve energy drastically, make a major shift to coal, and substantially increase our use of solar energy, we will have no alternative to greatly increased dependence on nuclear power. As one who is intimately familiar with the problems and potential of nuclear energy, I believe we must make every effort to keep that dependence to a minimum."

Carter has also captured the interest of conservationists because as governor of Georgia, he blocked a dam proposed by the Army Corps of Engineers on a free-flowing river, and he opposed "stream channelization" projects urged by the Soil Conservation Service — two initiatives not usually undertaken by governors.

No one can predict with certainty how individual conservationists will vote. They are a quirky, independent-minded breed. But in the last dozen years, they have proved that environmentalism is not an elitist movement or a passing fad of the young. On the contrary, it is one of the few big, popular movements that continues to enlist volunteers, excite idealism, and evoke steadfast and unselfish commitment. Moreover, its appeal transcends normal divisions between young and old, rich and working class, city and countryside, scientist and layman.

Environmentalists have become battle-tested and politically sophisticated in many hard local and national fights. Because they exist in every region and virtually every community, they could prove to be a potent if little-noticed force in determining the outcome of this election.

Multinational Bribery

WASHINGTON — Corporate bribery of low- and middle-level government officials has become sufficiently commonplace to have lost its shock value. But when the person accused or suspected of accepting bribes stands near the pinnacle of power, the common reaction still is one of stunned disbelief. Japan and the Netherlands provide two recent cases in point.

Former Japanese Premier Kakuei Tanaka, whose private financial dealings had long been a matter of speculation, was indicted in Tokyo Aug. 16 on charges of having accepted $1.6-million to arrange the purchase of Lockheed aircraft by All Nippon Airlines. Tanaka was the first Japanese to be indicted for bribery occurring while he served as head of government.

Then, on Aug. 26, a special Dutch government commission sharply chastised Prince Bernhard, Queen Juliana's husband, for being "extremely imprudent and unwise" in his dealings with Lockheed. The commission, which spent six months investigating allegations that the prince had accepted $1.1-million in bribes, said there was no firm evidence he had taken the money. Bernhard resigned virtually all of his many military and business posts the day the commission's report was released.

The commission's findings, although not entirely unexpected, deeply saddened the Dutch people. "All Dutchmen are Calvinist at heart," Barbara Beck wrote in The Economist of London before the report was issued, "be they Protestant, Catholic, agnostic or Communist ones, with a built-in sense of earnest endeavor and a high moral tone. This explains why the accusations... (against Bernhard) were seen as so particularly shocking, for it was rather like finding one's maiden aunt with her hand in the till."

The Dutch government plans no legal action against Bernhard, and for good reason. A criminal investigation almost certainly would have led to the abdication of the popular Queen Juliana. Princess Beatrix, moreover, has hinted that she would prefer not to succeed to the throne under such circumstances. Beatrix's elder son, third in the line of succession, is only nine years old.

The Lockheed bribery scandal

threatens to spill over into at least two other European countries. Ernest F. Hauser, the company's customer-relations manager for Europe in the early 1960s, has charged that the Christian Democratic Party received $12-million in Lockheed kickbacks in 1961. Hauser also is quoted as saying that an unidentified British cabinet minister received a $1-million bribe from Lockheed in 1973 or 1974, when the Conservatives were in office. Hauser's accusations have yet to be substantiated.

Lockheed, it must be emphasized, is by no means the only multinational company to have been implicated in bribery. United Brands, Ashland Oil and several other U.S.-based multinationals have been accused of engaging in such activity.

The 24 member nations of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development approved on May 21 a strict though voluntary code of conduct for multinationals. But it is not likely that even a mandatory code could eliminate the all-too-human desire for easy monetary gain.

Laetrile Also A Vitamin

Blue Hill, Neb.

Articles by Gracia McAndrew and Harry Jackson appearing back to back in the Sept. 9 Star might have been combined into one article since both were about vitamins. Mrs. McAndrew failed to mention that fact. The article warned against Laetrile, also known as Vitamin B-17.

Mr. Jackson stated that "only two vitamins can cause dangerous side-effects when taken in massive doses — Vitamins A and D." B-17 is not dangerous.

Mr. Jackson would have done better to consult vitamin users to get information for his article. Reporting that "the general population is more vitamin and health-food conscious," he consulted none of this general population. Did he feel these people were not intelligent enough to answer his questions?

He didn't doubt his own knowledge on the subject, however, as he advised "persons using vitamins should limit themselves to a multiple vitamin pill offering the minimum requirements." He felt qualified to determine the nutritional requirements of all persons of all sizes, ages, occupations and in every possible physical condition. Obviously the requirements differ with these variables.

Laetrile or Vitamin B-17 has not been accused by the FDA of doing harm, only that the benefits have not been proven by the FDA. The current methods of treating cancer (surgery, cobalt and chemo-therapy) damage the body, cause pain and often disfigurement. B-17 does not. Why the concern? Compared to the conventional methods of treating cancer, B-17 is certainly a bargain.

I admire a man such as Alfred Schutte who takes his own time and money to do what he can to increase the quality of life for his fellow men. It is refreshing to see such unselfishness in today's grasping, greedy world.

I am sorry that neither reporter Jackson nor McAndrew did their subject justice. It's a fascinating subject and one that people need to know more about.

The Need For A Retreat

Lincoln, Neb.

I have closely observed for some time the various legal, political and environmental dialogues conducted regarding the Wilderness Park Bypass.

I, too, am deeply concerned about this issue and very definitely feel that this park should be preserved. While I think most of the arguments already exchanged by those who advocate the preservation of this park are noteworthy, my own concern stems from a deeper place. Wilderness Park is one of the few sacred public places left in the immediate area of Lincoln's growing metropolis. I and many others often retreat to Wilderness Park for periods of meditation and prayer. No matter what our specific religion is, all of us need to have ways in which we can reach our God through prayer. One can look back over history and recognize that the wisest and most advanced cultures had a deep respect for the land, for quiet and beauty. Wonderful feelings come to my heart as I recall experiences I have had in this park — I have always come back from this wild area with a stronger and fuller sense of God.

I urge Max Denney, head of Lincoln's City Council, to consider this issue on the merits of what kind of culture it is we wish to create for ourselves and for future generations. As Lincoln grows, we need to insure that we have retained some areas of the city which are natural and wild and not dedicated solely to worldly and transitory aims. Not only does such planning foster spiritual growth, which ought to be the aim of any society, but the very worldly activities we engage in can be fuller and sounder when there are opportunities to retreat from the stress of daily life.

Hruska-Sponsored Bill

Sterling Heights, Mich.

We in Michigan recently learned of a new bill in Congress called "S1" or "The Criminal Justice Reform Act of 1975." The aim of this bill is to codify present confusing federal criminal laws, and the principle itself is a good one.

However, Sections 543, 544 and 545 need to be called to the attention of Star readers, since the primary sponsor of the bill is Nebraska's own Senator Hruska. The sections can be interpreted as follows: If you shoot or otherwise do bodily harm to an intruder entering your home, even if he has come to harm you or steal your property, you will be liable for his injuries and can be forced to pay his hospitalization costs, etc.

I have it on the authority of a legislator and a congressional worker that this interpretation is quite apparent.

Now, perhaps some of his constituents might question Senator Hruska as to why he included such a horrible portion in an otherwise useful bill. Do we at this time in our national life, when crime is so rampant, need yet another protection for the criminal?

A Second Chance?

Lincoln, Neb.

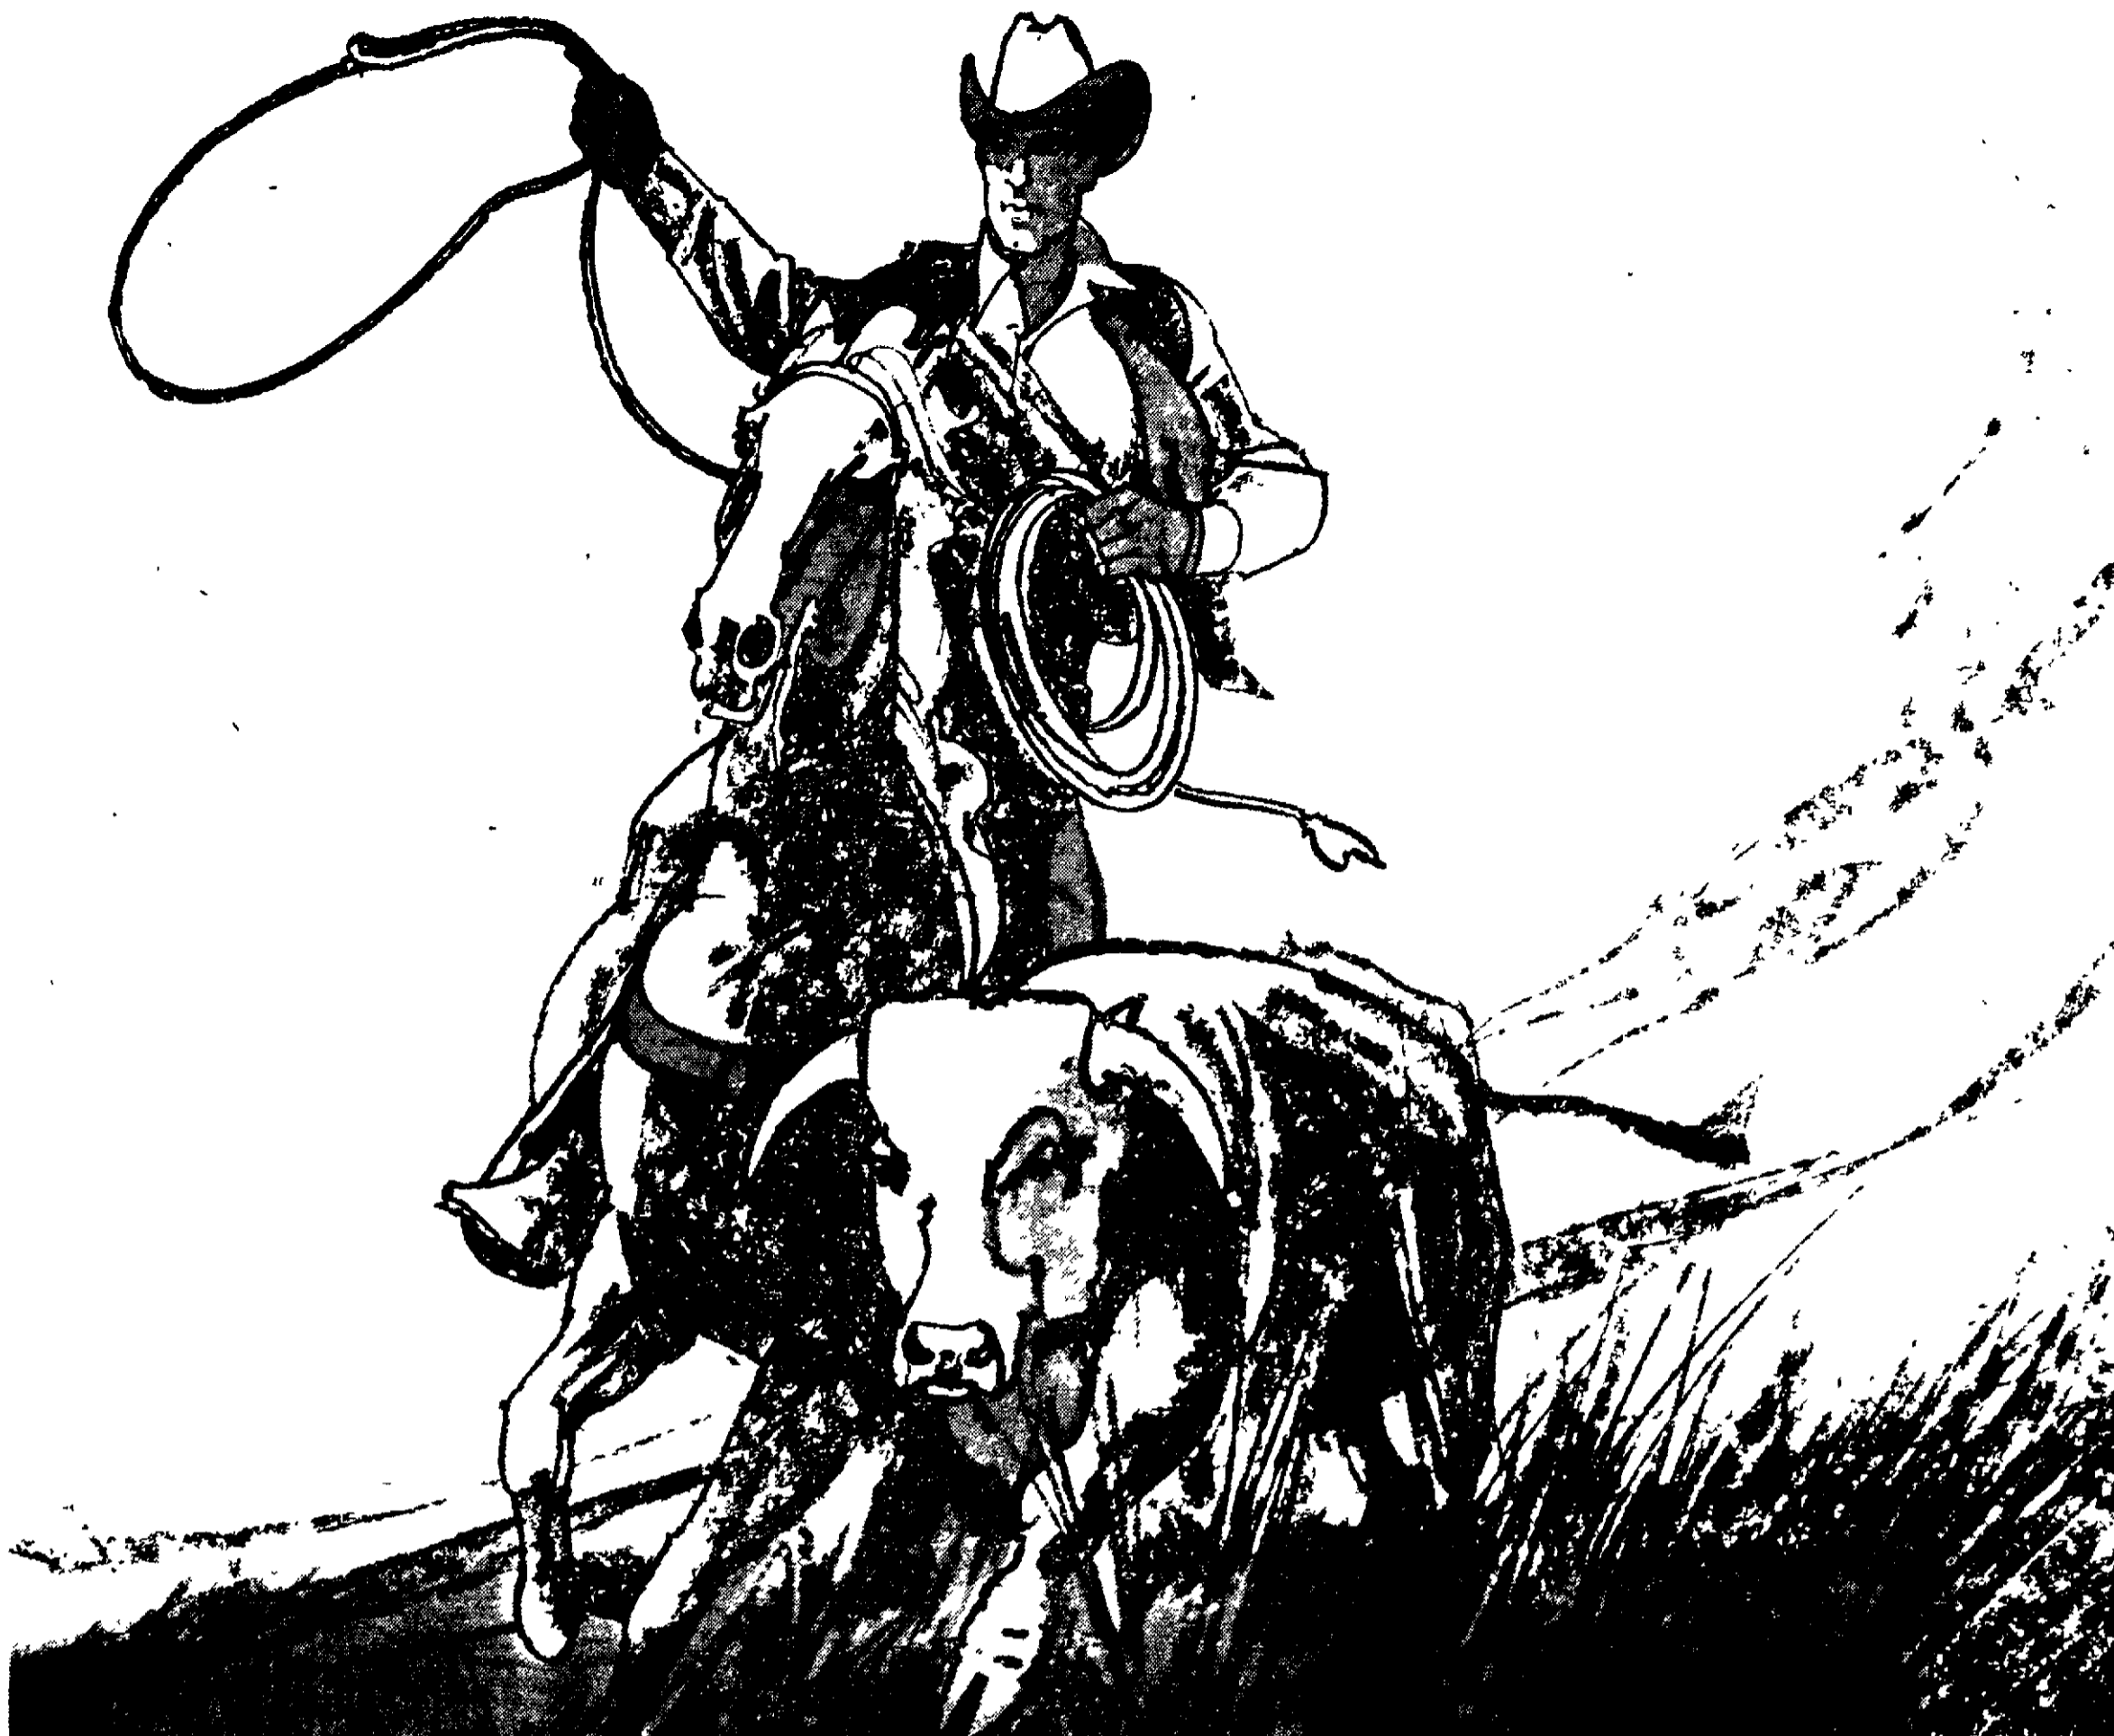

Could it be that Wilderness Park might actually get a second chance and be spared from the West Bypass? If the City Council were to ask the State Department of Roads to move the highway farther west, it just might mean the park could be saved for future generations.

Now is the time to express our feelings about Wilderness Park. There ARE alternate routes for the West Bypass!

Life Begins At Forty:

Denturists Are Beginning To Attack Restrictive Laws

By JOANNE FARRIS
A READER WRITES: Last month I went on a camping trip in Idaho. While I was out in the mountains, the top of my upper plate split. It had split and been repaired four times before. When I got to a city I didn't know anyone, but I saw an ad of a dentist. I went in and she fixed the plate so it won't break again, and she charged me $18.
She is a licensed dentist who makes full dentures for $235, which the dentists sell for $400 to $600. The Idaho Dental Society tried to prevent her from advertising in the paper. Her lawyer intervened with the paper, or else I could not have seen her ad.
I had never heard of a dentist before, but now I wonder why there aren't more of them to help us retired persons keep our dentures fixed at costs we can afford.
COMMENT: Idaho licenses denturists, who make bridges, plates, and false teeth, and can work directly with patients. Other states have laws preventing anyone but a dentist from touching a person's mouth. In some states denturists can only make the bridges, plates and false teeth for the dentists to put into the patients' mouths.
Denturists are beginning to organize so that they can work to get restrictive legislation off the books. What they want is the right to expand their practice, and they are willing to accept state training requirements and licensing in order to get recognition for their abilities.

Dentists rely on denturists to make prostheses for them, but they oppose their efforts to be allowed to work on people's mouths.
The denturists admit they are not qualified, nor do they want to treat diseases of the mouth, but they maintain that they can save the public money and do a good job making and fitting dentures. The lines are being drawn for some confrontation politics on this matter before long.

Just a week ago I was hurrying from the parking lot into the Senior Center in the rain. I slipped and fell down on the sidewalk, landing on my left hip. I couldn't move for a minute, mainly from fear, I guess. As soon as I pulled myself together I got up, tested my legs, and found that I was okay. San Francisco — A splash of autumn fell upon us on the weekend. I may be a calendar day or two early and I shall hear from Indignant Reader "Sir".

Until the atom was split, the world's clocks were off a tenth of a second. Nobody knew this until the atomic clock showed everyone it was later than you think.

The Naval Observatory was wrong. The Swiss ran their trains a tenth of a second wrong. Hens no doubt were laying on time, for a hen cannot be fooled. (Nobody thought of timing a hen.)

When the missing tenth of a second was found, the world did not spin off its axis. Nor did everyone pull the stem on his watch and reset it.

The way I know that autumn is here? I made popcorn, that's why.

I said to the moppets "When I make the first popcorn, you can set your watch by it."

But they only mumbled through the crumbs "The Cap'n's navigating by guess and by God again. This popcorn needs more salt."

Great excursions and alarms in San Francisco over the dog problem. And even in suburban Sinking Inn, the management put up a plaintive notice:

"Please do not allow your dog etc."

Sadly, the dogs cannot read. A favorite spot for the morning dog is the doormat outside my door. (I suppose the concrete is cold.)

While autumn comes to Sinking Inn, I am off to warm Mexico! I shall be flaked out on sunstruck sands. A coco loco in hand. Surrounded by beautiful birds in bikinis.

Mexican beaches turning sunset pink. Guitars pulling at your heart strings. The music of Agustin Lara — "Consentida."

I saw him in Mexico City. He walked up to the piano, a little man with a sad face. He sat down in a light blue spotlight. Began picking out the tune with one finger. "Mujer." Woman. About 10 notes, and

In back of the audience, in the dark, a dozen violins picked up the melody, a great sweep of golden strings.

Lara had plenty of love problems. When he was absolutely shattered by a love affair, he wrote his best music. Jilted poets weep their greatest sonnets. Lovelorn painters turn the canvas to great works of art.

Poets speak highly of love but badly of the object of their affections.

"A man of straw is worth a woman of gold," say the French. (But I bet they don't say it to their wives.)

Said Will Shakespeare who had been around "Frailty, thy name is woman."

"What do women want?" asked the great Freud. He'd talked to hundreds of them and he hadn't a clue.

Chinese proverb, "Never trust a woman though she has given you 10 sons."

(That ought to bring in some mail. Been lonely around here lately.)

Mexican beaches turning sunset pink. Guitars pulling at your heart strings. The music of Agustin Lara — "Consentida."
I saw him in Mexico City. He walked up to the piano, a little man with a sad face. He sat down in a light blue spotlight. Began picking out the tune with one finger: "Mujer." Woman. About 10 notes, and...

In back of the audience, in the dark, a dozen violins picked up the melody, a great sweep of golden strings.

Lara had plenty of love problems. When he was absolutely shattered by a love affair, he wrote his best music. Jilted poets weep their greatest sonnets. Lovelorn painters turn the canvas to great works of art.

Poets speak highly of love but

badly of the object of their affections.
"A man of straw is worth a woman of gold," say the French. (But I bet they don't say it to their wives.)
Said Will Shakespeare who had been around: "Frailty, thy name is woman."
"What do women want?" asked the great Freud. He'd talked to hundreds of them and he hadn't a clue.
Chinese proverb: "Never trust a woman though she has given you 10 sons."
(That ought to bring in some mail: Been lonely around here lately.)

Firefighters Fail To Get 10 Returned To Work

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Armed with petitions carrying a reported 10-914 signatures, firemen Monday tried to get the City Council to restore the jobs of 10 firemen. It didn't work.

Firefighters failed to convince a single council member to place such a motion before the council.

The 10 jobs were cut by the City Council in an effort to reduce city spending. Although the city budget has been formally adopted, firefighters have mounted a publicity campaign against the job cuts.

After the council stuck to its position Monday, Fire Fighters Union President Hobart Boswell said he was not sure what the firemen's immediate course of action will be.

But next year, he said, firefighters will again appear before the council asking that the jobs be restored.

In the meantime, he said, firefighters will be informing citizens what fire stations are operating with less than four-man crews on fire trucks.

That will be a continuation of the firefighters' publicity campaign which has included newspaper advertisements and bumper stickers with the message, "What if there was a fire and nobody came."

All but one of the eight speakers who appeared before the council were either firemen or the relatives of firemen.

Boswell, however, told the council that the number of signatures gathered in about three weeks of door-to-door solicitation showed that there was widespread community opposition to eliminating the firemen's jobs.

Firefighters contend eliminating the 10 positions, known as "floaters" because those firemen filled in for vacationing, sick or otherwise absent firemen, means that sometimes fire trucks will have only three men instead of four.

That endangers the life of potential fire victims and firemen themselves, they say, since only one fireman will enter burning buildings.

Under questioning, however, Boswell admitted that three trucks respond to fires, meaning that even if all three were short-manned, there still would be nine firemen at the scene.

The number of firemen on each truck had also been a subject earlier as the council met throughout the day with city officials. Council member Steve Cook told the council of a visit he and Assistant Fire Chief DeWayne McIntyre made recently to Moline, Ill.

There, Cook said, one firefighter was assigned to a fire truck in a district including the airport. He said he watched a demonstration of the procedures used there by a woman firefighter who entered a burning building in an asbestos suit.

Hammered at by more than one speaker was the council's sense of priorities in eliminating firemen's jobs.

"We're talking about life and death," admonished Charles Struble, a life insurance salesman and brother-in-law of two firemen.

"Beautifying O St. is not going to save my life or my kids," he said. At another point he told the council that he didn't think their budget cut could be attributed to negligence. "It's probably just ignorance," he said.

Another speaker, Donald Gibbons, of 1510 W. Garfield, who made it a point to state he was not related to any firefighters, also referred to the O St. beautification project.

"You can spend X number of dollars for brick," he said. "I went down and looked at it this morning. It's ridiculous."

Faculty Senate Chief Raps Parity 'Truth'

The University of Nebraska parity issue is far from dead, despite NU President D.B. Varner's attempt last week to clear up the confusion.

UNL Faculty Senate President Dr. Henry Baumgarten retaliated Monday with "my version of the truth" about the formula which shows that UNO is underfunded by about $1,068,000 compared to UNL.

The Faculty Senate executive committee voted unanimously last week to endorse Baumgarten's minority report, a report which questions the basic assumptions undergirding the parity formula.

A small committee, appointed by Varner this summer, combined formulas used at the Universities of Illinois and Wisconsin to arrive at Nebraska's formula.

And as a result of the parity formula the NU regents are seeking from the Legislature an extra $500,000 for the Omaha campus for next year.

But Baumgarten and other UNL faculty take issue with the formula, the assumptions on which it was built and its application as the only means to determine allocation of funds.

One of the most unfortunate aftermaths of the Lincoln-Omaha merger is the regents' insistence on equality, said Baumgarten.

Equality in education does not imply inferior or superior. It means different, he said. UNO and UNL have different missions, different faculty mixes and different histories, he explained.

The parity formula tries to answer the question — are apples equal to oranges, he said.

And the formula is based on some inaccurate assumptions including the following:

—That Lincoln and Omaha can be compared to the two campuses at the Universities of Illinois and Wisconsin. The differences are many, including much more infusion of federal funds at Wisconsin and differences in the graduate programs.

In fact Wisconsin and Illinois "do not find it useful to exchange cost per credit hour data because of the differences in their graduate programs," Baumgarten pointed out.

—That both Lincoln and Omaha are PhiI granting institutions, when Omaha has no doctorate programs.

Through letters and other documentation, Baumgarten showed that the University of Wisconsin has repeatedly warned the NU systems office that a number calculated on this type of formula should not be used by itself to allocate funds.

And that is the basic purpose of the NU formula.

In addition the University of Wisconsin has informed the NU systems office that it is educationally unwise to insist on equalizing anything under a 20% difference, Baumgarten said.

The $1-million parity figures is only a variance of 8.9%, he said and "would not be regarded by the Wisconsin system as a cause for an additional allocation."

Sikyta: Council Budget Procedures 'Not Working Out'

"Whatever we're doing is not working out right," silver-haired Max Denney said, glancing round the table at his City Council colleagues.

The subject at hand was the manner in which the council deals with budget matters, making the decisions each year on how to spend taxpayers' money.

Council members suggested a variety of improvements to present practices as the council met for about two hours Monday morning in a freewheeling planning session.

Suggestions made included one from Sikyta that methods be sought out to obtain suggestions from ordinary city employees on how to save money.

Cities facing a financial crimp similar to Lincoln's are facing the "stark realization that employees are the ones who can tell you how to save money a lot better than the politicians can," Sikyta said.

A city department head might want 25 trucks, Sikyta said, but the employees actually in the work might rather get by with 15.

Councilman Bob Jeambey suggested that perhaps employees of a department could be offered an extra 1% salary hike if they could save the department $100,000.

"That would be a pretty good inducement," Jeambey said, a smile crossing his face.

There appeared to be general agreement among the council members that present methods of negotiating wages with city employees are no longer satisfactory.

Sikyta, as other council members have suggested in the past, urged that wage settlements be agreed to before the council acts on the budget.

Council members also noted that the present set-up, with the Personnel Department handling the negotiating, leaves lingering hard feelings between the department and employees.

Council members didn't have any ready answers, however.

"Whoever does it isn't going to be loved," said Sue Bailey.

On another matter the council agreed to reopen discussions with Mayor Helen Boosalis on establishing a new city department of transportation.

Booze Questions Foam As Council Asks Study

Booze once again captured the attention of the City Council Monday.

It approved a request for two, one-day beer gardens at Casey's, 1020 P, asked for a moratorium on beer gardens and gave formal approval to a citizens liquor-study committee.

Casey's request for beer gardens on Sept. 25 and Oct. 2 now goes to the State Liquor Commission, which earlier turned down a request for a permanent beer garden at the rear of the tavern.

After the council recommended denial of three requests for liquor licenses Councilman Bob Jeambey asked the council to support a request that the State Liquor Commission delay acting on the requests until after the new citizen study committee on liquor makes its report.

Members of the committee are Ellis Dann, the Rev. Glover Leitch, Kenneth M. Brown, Richard L. White, Paul E. Galter, Thomas E. Fricke, Arthur H. Craft, Larry Bohmer, Terrence Doyle and Dale L. Young.

In other action Monday the City Council took the following action:

- Approved the plat of Fox Hollow Add. at Van Dorn and S. 74th.
- Delayed action one week on Edenton Add. at 70th and one-half mile south of Pioneer Blvd.

- Amended Lincoln Municipal Code relating to pay schedules for Lincoln Transportation System employees.
- Approved the reappointment of Paul F. Ess to the library board for a seven-year term.

- Denied application of El Monterey Restaurant at 525 N. 48th for retail beer-on sale only license.
- Denied application for Glenn's Spaghetti Shed at 720 O for Class C liquor license.

Thone Endorses Tuition Credit

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., Monday endorsed an amendment to Senate legislation allowing some income tax credit for parents who pay college or technical school tuition for their children.

"If business and professional people can deduct from their federal taxable income the expenses of cocktails, country clubs and cabin cruisers used to entertain customers and prospects," Thone said, "why can't parents obtain some tax relief for higher education?"

The Senate bill would provide for a $100 credit on 1977 income tax returns, $150 in 1978, $200 in 1979 and $250 in 1980 and in later years.

Crime Commission Needs Said Beyond City Means

The Region II Crime Commission Monday received an answer of sorts on why the City Council refused to take up the slack when the state reduced its funds.

"We questioned whether the city could afford that expensive, full-time staff," said City Councilman Bob Jeambey, drawing agreement from Council Chairman Max Denney.

Region II Crime Commission director Curt Snoberger had sought $36,977 to run the office for a year. The state cut his request back to $31,825 and Snoberger went to local officials for the difference.

The county agreed to pay half, $2,576, but the city approved only $1,000. Council Member Sue Bailey, who is also a commission member, said that the votes had not been explained.

"We never agreed to pick up any deficiencies in funding," Jeambey said. Snoberger has already advanced a plan under which he would take a month off from his job to work on another project in criminal justice.

This would make up for the so-called fund shortage, he claims.

Faculty Senate Chief Raps Parity 'Truth'

The University of Nebraska parity issue is far from dead, despite NU President D.B. Varner's attempt last week to clear up the confusion.

UNL Faculty Senate President Dr. Henry Baumgarten retaliated Monday with "my version of the truth" about the formula which shows that UNO is underfunded by about $1,068,000 compared to UNL.

The Faculty Senate executive committee voted unanimously last week to endorse Baumgarten's minority report, a report which questions the basic assumptions undergirding the parity formula.

A small committee, appointed by Varner this summer, combined formulas used at the Universities of Illinois and Wisconsin to arrive at Nebraska's formula.

And as a result of the parity formula the NU regents are seeking from the Legislature an extra $500,000 for the Omaha campus for next year.

But Baumgarten and other UNL faculty take issue with the formula, the assumptions on which it was built and its application as the only means to determine allocation of funds.

One of the most unfortunate aftermaths of the Lincoln-Omaha merger is the regents' insistence on equality, said Baumgarten.

Equality in education does not imply inferior or superior. It means different, he said. UNO and UNL have different missions, different faculty mixes and different histories, he explained.

The parity formula tries to answer the question — are apples equal to oranges, he said.

And the formula is based on some inaccurate assumptions including the following:

— That Lincoln and Omaha can be compared to the two campuses at the Universities of Illinois and Wisconsin. The differences are many, including much more infusion of federal funds at Wisconsin and differences in the graduate programs.

In fact Wisconsin and Illinois "do not find it useful to exchange cost per credit hour data because of the differences in their graduate programs," Baumgarten pointed out.

— That both Lincoln and Omaha are PhD granting institutions, when Omaha has no doctorate programs.

Through letters and other documentation, Baumgarten showed that the University of Wisconsin has repeatedly warned the NU systems office that a number calculated on this type of formula should not be used by itself to allocate funds.

And that is the basic purpose of the NU formula.

In addition the University of Wisconsin has informed the NU systems office that it is educationally unwise to insist on equalizing anything under a 20% difference, Baumgarten said.

The $1-million parity figures is only a variance of 8.9%, he said and "would not be regarded by the Wisconsin system as a cause for an additional allocation."

Do-It-Yourself Dorm Meets Campus Needs

Story And Photos
By HARRY JACKSON
Star Staff Writer

Southeast Community College students in Milford are solving a campus housing problem while getting some valuable education for themselves.

The students are constructing a dormitory to house 16 women students on the college's Milford campus.

"Normally we build two houses a year, but this came up and we decided to go with it," said Larry Kness, program chairman for building construction technology.

"We have 750 guys and only 30 girls," Kness said. "And one of the major requests we had this year was for women's quarters."

The school, dealing mainly with industrial and business education, does have two dormitories for men but until this year hasn't had a demand for women's on-campus housing.

Women students now live in apartments and private homes.

When the demand arose, Kness said his department decided to forego the housing projects and put together the dorm.

The project began in early summer when students designed the building. Work on the building started in early August.

"We're a little ahead of schedule so far," Kness said. "The worst weather time is still ahead, but we should be finished by January."

Every phase of the construction is being handled by Southeast's students.

Architectural technology students designed it, building construction is doing the construction work. Plumbing, air conditioning and electrical work will be done by those students," Kness said.

Current construction is being done by 16 men who work about four hours a day, five days a week.

"The rest of the time is spent in class," Kness said, outlining a student's average work day.

Ironically, there are no women working on the project and only four were involved in the preliminary design of the building.

"I'd like to get some women into the building and construction course," Kness said. "But that just hasn't happened yet."

The overall project will cost the school about $45,000, Kness said, a tab which could have run as high as $100,000 had conventional building contractors been used.

The two-story apartment building will have about 1,620 total square feet.

The four apartments each will have two bedrooms, a bathroom, kitchen and utility room, Kness said.

The dorm will be located on three acres of land across the street from the administration building. The land, recently purchased, will also house a future cafeteria and maintenance building, for which plans are in the making.

So far, no occupants have been named to use the dorm, "but there are enough students to take the rooms," Kness said.

The project will be the first in which the campus doesn't sell its finished product.

Normally, we build a house, then auction it off," Kness said. "The guys are getting a kick out of this because this is going to stay right here."

The last house built by the students went at auction for $36,500, Kness said. It was a two-story, frame construction.

Since the site for building houses is a permanent foundation which isn't moved, students working on the dormitory got a taste of digging the basement holes and a foundation.

"We had the guys dig the footings by hand," Kness said, "to let them find out what to do when the machines break down."

Your Own Children Didn't Sin

DEAR ABBY I was recently granted a divorce after being married for 30 years. I had a lot of suspicions about my wife but I had only a second grade education and was pretty dumb then. I didn't begin to add things up until after she had two children who couldn't possibly have been mine. Even so, I was always a good father to them, and they never had any idea they were illegitimate.

My question I'm making out my will and have brothers and sisters who could sure use some money. I own my own home plus some stocks and savings. I don't see why I should leave anything to my illegitimate children. Do you?

dear abby

WHO SHOULD BE PUNISHED?

A PROBLEM OUT EAST
DEAR PROBLEM. Any children born during your marriage are legally your children. You say you've been a "good father," and I believe you. But how can you write off all the years during which they grew up loving you and being loved in return?

To leave them nothing would be punishing them for the "sin" of their mother. Unfair. Please reconsider.

DEAR ABBY I graduated from high school last June and received some very nice gifts from friends and relatives.

Since I've had a very busy summer and hate to write letters, I decided to telephone all those who sent me gifts to thank them personally. I even called long-distance to thank those who live out of town and I intend to pay for the calls myself.

My parents aren't satisfied. They think a written thank-you note is necessary. I think a telephone call is enough. What do you think?

PHONED MY THANKS

DEAR PHONED: Phoning one's thanks strikes me as the lazy man's way. It's adequate, but those who do it right write!

'Good Old Car' Put Out To Pasture

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

One of the stalwarts of the University of Nebraska motor pool is being retired.

A 1955 Chevy, once used by the chairman of the agronomy department on the University's East Campus, is being replaced this fall, according to department head Donald K. Hanway, who, like the car, is also retiring.

Dr. Hanway said the car, "a good old one," has been "well worth the money spent for brakes and other minor repairs. But we finally got the money for a new one."

Hanway's predecessor, Dr. F. D. Keim, was in charge when the car was bought, new. For a few years it was garaged in a building which now houses a crop research lab.

As "cheap, dependable transportation," the car has won a spot in the daily lives of crop researchers in the cornfields of Havelock, Hanway said.

One can often see Dr. William Compton or Richard Powers driving to and from the lush fields with the trunk full of tools or sweet corn (used as row markers in the research plots). Trips outside Lincoln have been rare for the old car, now deemed a classic by car buffs.

The mileage on the aging vehicle? Well, the odometer stopped working three years ago, but it had 107,000 miles on it then, according to Powers who has driven it for 17 of the 21 years of service.

Bidders on the car, when it becomes surplus property at auction this fall, will probably learn that it was once owned by a bunch of farmers who used it to drive back-and-forth to the cornfields every day.

Meals Come A Long Way

Toronto (UPI) — Diners in the newly opened revolving restaurant near the top of the 1,815-foot-tall CN Tower here may not realize it but their meals travel 1,200 feet to reach their tables.

According to the chef, while there is a small kitchen in the restaurant for preparing steaks and to-order dishes, the majority of the meals are prepared in the central kitchen located in the basement.

Mushroom Output Is Mushrooming
New York (UPI) — Mushroom production is mushrooming in the United States. It hit a record high of 309.8 million pounds for the period that ended in June 1976, up more than 10 million pounds over the previous year, according to the USDA Crop Reporting Board. Although most of the crop was processed, sales of fresh mushrooms totaled 142.1 million pounds, an increase of 16% over the previous year.

Opening lead — two of spades.

It is said that a fine declarer is a confirmed pessimist, a player who always looks at the gloomy side of things and is seemingly never happy unless he is miserable. Perhaps such an attitude would be regarded as unhealthy in everyday life, but there is no doubt that it is a healthy one to carry to the bridge table.

Consider this deal where South went down in a contract he could have made. He won East's king of spades with the ace and played a low club to the ace, on which East unexpectedly showed out.

It was only trick two, but the contract was already doomed. South could no longer score more than his eight high-card tricks, and he eventually went down one.

But now let's assume that South had been a full-fledged member of the pessimists' school. In that case, as soon as dummy came down, he would have realized that only a 5-0 club division could place the contract in jeopardy.

Having given careful thought to this dire possibility, he would have taken the necessary steps to overcome a 5-0 club division on either side. He also would have led a low club towards dummy at trick two, but instead of going up with the ace after West followed low, he would have played the seven from dummy!

If the seven won the trick, he could feel certain of making at least ten tricks; if the seven lost the trick (to East's ten or jack), he could feel equally certain of ten tricks. Either way, the seven play was sure to make the contract.

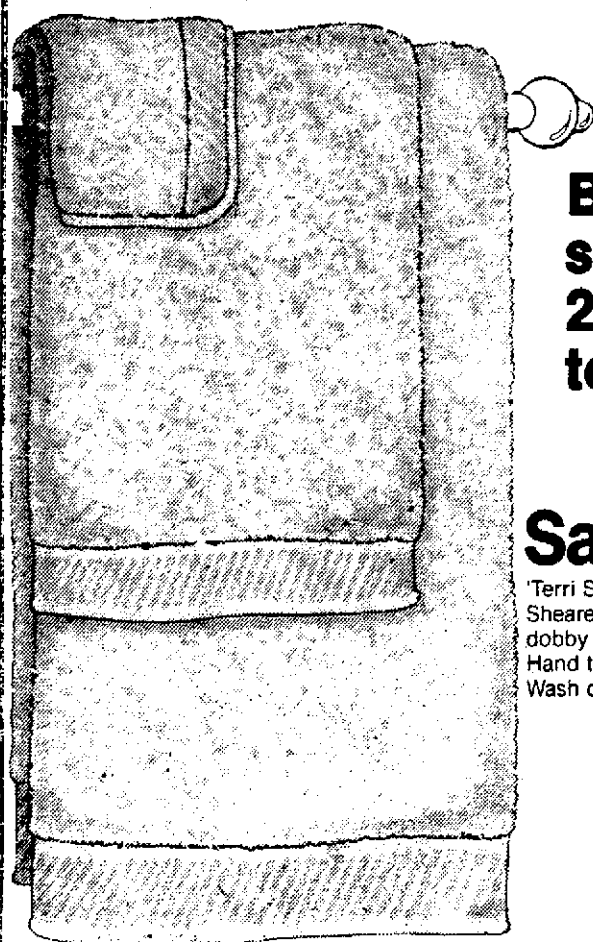

Some days it pays to be a pessimist!

pounds over the previous year, according to the USDA Crop Reporting Board. Although most of the crop was processed, sales of fresh mushrooms totaled 142.1 million pounds, an increase of 16% over the previous year.

Opening lead — two of spades.

It is said that a fine declarer is a confirmed pessimist, a player who always looks at the gloomy side of things and is seemingly never happy unless he is miserable. Perhaps such an attitude would be regarded as unhealthy in everyday life, but there is no doubt that it is a healthy one to carry to the bridge table.

Consider this deal where South went down in a contract he could have made. He won East's king of spades with the ace and played a low club to the ace, on which East unexpectedly showed out.

It was only trick two, but the contract was already doomed. South could no longer score more than his eight high-card tricks, and he eventually went down one.

But now let's assume that South had been a full-fledged member of the pessimists' school. In that case, as soon as dummy came down, he would have realized that only a 5-0 club division could place the contract in jeopardy.

Having given careful thought to this dire possibility, he would have taken the necessary steps to overcome a 5-0 club division on either side. He also would have led a low club towards dummy at trick two, but instead of going up with the ace after West followed low, he would have played the seven from dummy!

If the seven won the trick, he could feel certain of making at least ten tricks; if the seven lost the trick (to East's ten or jack), he could feel equally certain of ten tricks. Either way, the seven play was sure to make the contract.

Some days it pays to be a pessimist!

Rainfall Aids Seeding Says Report On Crops

By United Press International

Rainfall received across Nebraska last week improved surface moisture conditions and helped wheat farmers in ground preparation and seeding, the weekly Nebraska crop report said Monday.

The report, prepared by the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, said more than 40% of the wheat crop was seeded by last Friday, compared to 60% a year ago and 50% for the 10-year average.

Corn harvested for grain was underway in various parts of the state and was more than 5% complete, well ahead of the 10-year average. Silage harvest continued last week with some areas nearing completion.

Sorghum and soybeans remained in mostly fair condition statewide. Sorghum continued to mature ahead of normal and a year ago with more than 65% ripe, compared to 35% for the 10-year average and 60% a year ago.

Nearly 10% of the sorghum crop was harvested by last Friday, which was ahead of the 10-year average and a year ago. A few reports indicated some sorghum stalk breakage due to the drought conditions.

Soybeans also were maturing ahead of normal, with the harvest underway in many areas of the state. More than 60% of the soybean plants had shed their leaves, compared to 40% for the 10-year average and 45% a year ago.

The dry bean harvest in northwest Nebraska was progressing well with the favorable weather and was about 50% completed.

Alfalfa and wild hay remained in mostly fair condition across Nebraska with alfalfa conditions improving slightly. The fourth cutting was started where growth was sufficient.

Highway Meet Planned At Beatrice

Residents of the Nebraska Department of Roads District 1 have been invited by department director Tom Doyle to attend a highway informational meeting at the Beatrice City Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 27. Counties in District 1 include Butler, Saunders, Seward, Saline, Thayer, Gage, Nemaha, Lancaster, Pawnee, Richardson, Johnson, Jefferson, Otoe and Cass. "We will be looking forward to receiving citizens' opinions, suggestions, desires and evaluations of Nebraska's highway program at the meeting," Doyle said.

Two Nebraskans At FBI Session

Omaha (UPI) — Two law officers from Nebraska will be among those graduating Thursday from the 106th session of the FBI National Academy. The FBI's Omaha office said the Nebraska graduates will be Sgt. William Coleman of the Lancaster County sheriff's office, Lincoln, and Sgt. Franklyn L. Manning of the Nebraska State Patrol in Lincoln.

Bellevue Home Building Curb Draws Concern About Future

Omaha (AP) — A plan which the Air Force is implementing to curb residential development in the normal landing corridors for Offutt Air Force Base crew concerned remarks Monday from officials in Omaha and Bellevue.

The Air Force, saying some bases have been restricted or closed because of residential encroachment on their takeoff-landing corridors, believes residential building in Offutt's pattern should be discouraged.

Under the plan, there will be no more VA or FHA loans for new home construction in a wide corridor stretching from just northwest of Boys Town to a point between Pacific Junction and Glenwood, Iowa.

The Air Force set up the guidelines because of aircraft noise hazards, but some say the new rules aren't sound. Others feel the government is taking the right step.

"My first reaction is that we certainly need to protect the approach zone for Offutt, and not let them in as has been done in many metropolitan areas," said Omaha Planning Director Alden Aust.

But Robert Pettigrew, president of the Metropolitan Omaha Builders Association, sees some drawbacks.

"I don't understand why the federal government has to change the rules of the game," said Pettigrew. "It's typical of government."

Bellevue Mayor Robert Haworth feels the new rules on new home loans will virtually stop development in much of Sarpy County.

"It's going to kill Bellevue," said Haworth.

Pettigrew said the effects will also be felt in parts of Douglas County.

Aust pointed out that some of the areas in Douglas County included in the restricted corridor are now zoned as industrial or flood plain areas, and would not be residentially developed anyway.

Omaha State Sen. John Cavanaugh, the Democratic candidate for the 2nd District seat in the House of Representatives, lashed out at the new rules.

Cavanaugh said the decision will rob thousands of metro-area home owners of value in holdings "because of the senseless and ridiculous promulgations of nameless federal bureaucrats."

"I find it incredible that an action of this magnitude could be taken with no public hearings and no consultation with local elected officials," Cavanaugh said in a news release.

Bellevue officials said they will seek meetings with the VA, FHA and others in an attempt to seek a compromise.

Growers Keep Bulk Of Wheat

Omaha (AP) — At least 80% of this year's 96 million bushel wheat crop remains in the hands of growers, according to Frank Johanssen, president of the Nebraska Wheat Growers Association.

Another 25 million bushels grown in previous years has not yet been sold, he said.

Johanssen said wheat growers will be reluctant to sell unless wheat reaches a level of around $3.25 a bushel in the Bayard area, a price he calls a "break-even" one. Wheat in the Bayard area currently is selling for about $2.45 a bushel.

Bob Anderson of the Nebraska Feed Grain Dealers Association in Lincoln said he thinks there will be some grain on the ground this fall. Anderson said his association will advise elevators to aerate ground-stored grain and to cover it, if possible.

Some elevator owners lost a great deal of money last year when they paid farmers for the grain they had to store outside, Anderson said. He said terminal elevators are full or near-full now, and if grain shipments cannot be unloaded, "there'll be a shortage of hoppers at the country elevators."

Orville Stewart of Urling Grain Co. said that firm's elevators at Red Willow, Indianola and Cambridge are full of wheat and he doesn't know how to solve the storage problem for corn harvest. Stewart said other elevator operators have told him they have no space.

At Hemingford, the Farmers Co-Op Elevator only recently managed to move 215,000 bushels of wheat it had stored on the ground.

Meat Cutters Report Hormel Strike Date

Fremont (AP) — Officials of Local 216 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America have given a 48-hour strike notice to officials of the George A. Hormel packing plant here.

Similar notices have also been served at Hormel plants in Austin, Minn., Mitchell, S.D., Atlanta, Ga., Dallas, Tex., Miami, Okla., Charlotte, N.C., and Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Union workers have been on the job without a contract since Sept. 1.

While workers from the same union have settled with other big meat packers such as Wilson, Morrell, Armour and Swift, the talks with Hormel have been broken off.

Young Kimball Man Is Victim Of I-80 Crash

A young Kimball man was killed in a car-truck collision early Monday.

That raised the state's 1976 traffic fatality toll to 281, compared with 261 at this time last year.

Authorities said Michael Palmer, about 20, was killed in the car-truck collision on Interstate 80 east of Paxton.

Bigger, Juicier Apples Were 'Helped' By Frost

By The Associated Press

Apples will be bigger and juicier, but in short supply, according to growers in Nebraska and western Iowa.

A late frost in May, hail in June and a dry summer took their toll, said William Oberdieck, operator of Kimmel Orchard in Nebraska City. He estimated his 90-acre crop was reduced to 25 per cent of its normal yield.

"Oddly enough ... the frost thinned out the trees and that tends to make the apples bigger and juicier," said Mrs. Jim Gress of the Catron Orchard in Nebraska City.

Because of the shortage, Mrs. Gress estimated that apples will cost five cents a pound more than last year.

Richard Kummel, who sold Kimmel Orchards to Oberdieck in 1964, said the late spring frost probably could save the 1977 crop.

"The fruit buds are actually formed in June for the following year's fruit. Had there been apples this year, with the trees under stress, next season's crop would probably be poor, as well," Kummel said.

"We were more fortunate than most," said Mrs. Gress. "We saved about 60% of our crop," or 15,000 bushels of a potential 27,000 bushel yield.

Ed Shepard, who operates Bussey Orchard at Glenwood, Iowa, estimated he would harvest about 1,000 bushels of apples, compared with his normal yield of about 35,000 bushels.

Martin Orchard near Council Bluffs, Iowa, has estimated an 80% loss, mostly because of the frost.

Some Stranded By Switch

Some Lincoln Transportation Systems (LTS) bus riders were in for a surprise Monday.

The bus riders on the Vets Hospital, Havelock, East Vine and Gateway Special lines found that two downtown bus stops no longer exist.

According to Jim Donaghy, LTS manager, the stops at 14th and P and 14th and N during O St. construction were made both when the buses entered downtown and after they made the loop to leave.

However, he said, the buses which travel east on O St. now turn left off O onto 14th and north to P. After making the loop, the buses travel north on 14th and out on O instead of going north to P and traveling south on 16th to O.

The stop at 14th and N as the buses enter downtown and at 14th and P prior to leaving were only temporary during the construction, he said.

Bellevue Home Building Curb Draws Concern About Future

Omaha (AP) — A plan which the Air Force is implementing to curb residential development in the normal landing corridors for Offutt Air Force Base crew concerned remarks Monday from officials in Omaha and Bellevue.

The Air Force, saying some bases have been restricted or closed because of residential encroachment on their takeoff-landing corridors, believes residential building in Offutt's pattern should be discouraged.

Under the plan, there will be no more VA or FHA loans for new home construction in a wide corridor stretching from just northwest of Boys Town to a point between Pacific Junction and Glenwood, Iowa.

The Air Force set up the guidelines because of aircraft noise hazards, but some say the new rules aren't sound. Others feel the government is taking the right step.

"My first reaction is that we certainly need to protect the approach zone for Offutt, and not let them in as has been done in many metropolitan areas," said Omaha Planning Director Alden Aust.

But Robert Pettigrew, president of the Metropolitan Omaha Builders Association, sees some drawbacks.

"I don't understand why the federal government has to change the rules of the game," said Pettigrew. "It's typical of government."

Bellevue Mayor Robert Haworth feels the new rules on new home loans will virtually stop development in much of Sarpy County.

"It's going to kill Bellevue," said Haworth.

Pettigrew said the effects will also be felt in parts of Douglas County.

Aust pointed out that some of the areas in Douglas County included in the restricted corridor are now zoned as industrial or flood plain areas, and would not be residentially developed anyway.

Omaha State Sen. John Cavanaugh, the Democratic candidate for the 2nd District seat in the House of Representatives, lashed out at the new rules.

Cavanaugh said the decision will rob thousands of metro-area home owners of value in holdings "because of the senseless and ridiculous promulgations of nameless federal bureaucrats."

"I find it incredible that an action of this magnitude could be taken with no public hearings and no consultation with local elected officials," Cavanaugh said in a news release.

Bellevue officials said they will seek meetings with the VA, FHA and others in an attempt to seek a compromise.

Colleges' Budget Request Had 'Defects'

By The Associated Press

The budget request of Nebraska's state colleges was returned for more work because of defects that included earmarking of funds for different programs than those on which the money would be spent, a budget analyst said Monday.

Jon Oberg, higher education analyst in the budget division of the Department of Administrative Services (DAS), said the spending guides for the four state colleges contained "certain deficiencies."

One example he cited was the budgeting of money for academic programs that actually would end up being spent on intercollegiate athletics. "It isn't that you can't spend state general fund money for intercollegiate athletics," he said. "We just want to make sure that the budgets reflect what the funds are being spent for."

He said the DAS budget division established budgeting procedures and guidelines to provide uniformity in higher education accounting and audit matters.

"Elected officials should know what state funds are being spent for," he said. "They (state college officials) didn't want to display the budget in the manner in which we have prescribed it."

Oberg said, however, that there were improvements in data supplied and other detail in the state college budget request that "will contribute toward better procedures" when the spending guides are completed properly.

Oberg said when the budget division receives the University of Nebraska system and community college budget documents, the same guidelines will be used to determine if they are accurate.

The state colleges — Kearney, Chadron, Peru, and Wayne — this fiscal year received a total appropriation of about $14.5 million for campus operations. The new budget will cover fiscal 1977-78.

Exon Sees 'Innuendo' In Beatrice Charges

Gov. J. James Exon says a publicity-bent U.S. Justice Department is using "half-truths and innuendoes" in charges about the Beatrice State Home agreement.

Exon said he's been advised not to comment on the matter while it's in the courts.

"But when I see actions (brought via the courts) that have little effect in law and are obviously designed for publicity, I take the right to respond to some of their less than accepted ethics of an attorney allowed by the U.S. Justice Department."

The department contends Nebraska and Exon in particular failed to adhere to an agreement regarding the state home serving mentally retarded persons. The government has asked a U.S. district court hearing in Omaha on disputed issues.

In its petition, the department said the retarded involved in the settlement are suffering deprivation of their constitutional rights. The suit was brought in 1972 and the settlement reached in 1975, creating a governing board to administer depopulating the home and moving clients to community centers.

Exon noted that persons involved in the suit withdrew because they were "generally satisfied" with the agreement. Labeling it a "rehash," the governor said "when the U.S. Justice Department through half-truths and innuendoes attempts to use the federal courts or misuse the federal courts on serious legal action," that's "more press release than court action."

To the contention that Exon failed in the commitment to provide money for an administrative panel governing operations, the governor said he "did everything I could" but "the Legislature turned it down."

Exon said that contrary to what the Justice Department seems to think, "I do not have the appropriations authority."

Noting he's talked to U.S. Atty. Gen. Edward Levi, Exon said the nation's top lawyer "has such a big agency to look after, I'm not sure that the right hand knows what the left hand is doing" in the Beatrice State Home case.

Exon said the federal bureaucrats are "less than sincere and honest."

Plant Science Complex Building Contract OK'd

Gov. J. James Exon approved Monday the construction contract for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln east campus plant science complex.

Construction on the $10-million building will be completed by Dec. 1, 1978.

The revised budget includes $3,875,000 for the greenhouse-headhouse (centralized control) and $6,125,000 for the laboratory building. Demolition and Keim Hall remodeling are part of the construction cost subtotals, respectively, of $2.75 million and $4 million.

All that represents a shift from the original budget of $3,046,300 for the greenhouse-headhouse and $6,953,700 for the lab building.

The Legislature appropriated $250,000 last fiscal year, $2.53 million in 1976-77, $4.37 million in 1977-78, and $2.85 million in 1978-79 for the complex.

The low base bids approved include: General contract — Peter Kiewit & Sons, Omaha, $2,278,100; mechanical — Morrissey's Plumbing and Heating, Lincoln, $1,303,400; electrical — ABC Electric, Lincoln, $329,200; elevator — O'Keefe Elevator, Lincoln, $63,000.

2 Explosions, Fire Destroy Gasoline Rig

Scottsbluff (AP) — Two explosions and a resulting fire destroyed a gasoline tanker rig at the Slater Oil Co. storage depot in Scottsbluff early Monday.

Flames burned the outside of six large storage tanks but they did not explode.

Firemen brought the flames, visible for about six miles, under control in about 30 minutes but remained at the scene for several hours.

Ron Marks of Dix, an independent trucker, said he had driven the 8,000-gallon rig into the depot and had hooked a line to tanks, then had started to attach a ground strap to the tractor when the first explosion occurred.

Marks said he started to run and was about 25 feet away at the time of the second blast. The flames destroyed the first of four 2,000-gallon compartments in the truck.

The cab and transport were described as a total loss, with value set by Marks at about $55,000. An estimated $30,000 to $50,000 damage occurred to the oil depot, which has six tanks with storage capacity of 118,500 gallons.

Plant manager Keith Vohland said there were only about 40,000 gallons of gasoline in the tanks at the time a building at another gasoline storage facility nearby was damaged.

There were no injuries.

Tax Profile Request Gets Wary Approval

By The Associated Press

The Unicameral's Revenue Committee voted with wary unanimity Monday to move another step toward a Nebraska tax profile study, seeking to nail down an explicit contract proposal from an Ohio firm.

Voting 6-0, the panel authorized Tax Commissioner William Peters and Dr. Jack Rodgers, director of legislative research, to negotiate a contract with John Cook & Associates of Cleveland, Ohio.

The contract was to remain unsigned until reviewed by the committee, and would cover only the work plan portion of the proposed tax profile study. The work plan would cover both state and local taxation.

Cook met earlier with the committee to explain his proposal, citing a cost of $26,800 for a work plan that could be used by state personnel to provide the profile on an ongoing basis.

Columbus Sen. Donald Dworkin said he wanted a more explicit analysis of what a work plan would cover and how much it would cost.

The profile work plan, according to Cook's analysis at the last panel session, would provide guidelines to determine through available state-local data the tax burden of various Nebraskans: farmers, wage earners, businessmen, etc.

The unanimous vote on seeking an explicit contract came only after an unsuccessful 4-2 vote on the same motion. It takes five votes for committee action.

Sens. Orval Keyes of Springfield and Ron Cope of Kearney opposed the motion at first, but later switched to keep the idea alive for now.

Kennedy Offers Guides For Attracting Physicians

By DEAN TERRILL

Southeast Nebraska Bureau Crete — Positive thinking and salesmanship were hailed here Monday as the two essentials which are going to "bring a flood of doctors to rural Nebraska."

But State Sen. Tom Kennedy of Newman Grove, addressing some 50 citizens of Crete and other communities concerned about doctor shortages, stressed that each town must sell itself.

Volunteer head of the recently created Nebraska Health Manpower Referral Office, the veteran senator said enthusiasm can overcome the negative publicity to which medical students are subjected.

Quoting a recent report that one-fourth of Nebraska's medical graduates have remained in the state since 1960, Kennedy said, "This is not very good for the greatest state in the nation."

He then noted successes by such small towns as his own (population 860) and Rushville in recruiting two doctors each.

Kennedy's remarks capped a wide ranging discussion led by Crete Mayor Norm Behrens as part of a Selene County Council of Governments meeting. Special guests were Dr. Harry McFadden, interim chancellor of the University of Nebraska Medical Center, and Assistant Dean Dr. Robert Wigton.

Dr. McFadden also spoke up, timorously of retaining more doctors, principally because of a pioneering general practice specialty established in Nebraska three years ago.

He predicted that some 60% of the annual graduates will be located in the state in the near future.

Questioned by Sen. Richard Marsh about a purportedly small percentage of rural students admitted to med schools, McFadden said small communities probably have greater representation than large ones. He also said a "vast majority" of current students are interested in family practice.

The nation as a whole, he added, is "probably near an optimal production level" in educating physicians. He agreed with Kennedy that "communication and salesmanship" are the great needs in attracting doctors to rural areas.

Behrens suggested that enrolling more students in med schools might reduce medical costs and also ease small towns' shortages.

"When there are enough doctors in Lincoln and Omaha that they start getting a little hungry," he stated, "maybe they'll come out to the small communities."

Exon Reappoints Five To State Health Board

Gov. J. James Exon reappointed on Monday five State Health Board members to additional three-year terms.

They are Dr. V. Franklin Colon of Friend, Sharon Hokyoke of Ogallala, James L. McCoy of David City, Dr. Gordon W. Shupe of Wayne, and Dr. Jack Swanson of Wahoo.

Exon also announced his selections for the Nebraska State Board of Public Accountancy.

Bob F. Wohlers of Lincoln and Duane L. Thelen of Omaha were named to terms expiring Sept. 30, 1980. They succeed Dale E. Gruntorad of Lincoln and Donald L. Darst of Omaha.

William L. Murphy will succeed Calvin E. Lentz of Scottsbluff, to a term expiring Aug. 27, 1980.

Counties Miss Deadline; HEW Cancels Funds

Grand Island (AP) — Federal matching funds will be withheld from the Greater Nebraska Health Systems Agency because the 71-county agency received local money after a federal cutoff date.

The government did not tell the agency about the Aug. 9 cutoff date, according to GNHSA governing board president Clarence Cory of Columbus.

GNHSA asked the counties for money in mid-August, after the federal government said it would contribute 40 cents for every $1 the agency raised locally. The agency raised $4,057 from the counties and expected $1,623 in federal matching funds.

Cory said a representative of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare was present at all meetings where members discussed soliciting the funds.

"Those counties that do agree to support us financially do so because of matching funds from HEW," Cory said. He said GNHSA's credibility has been damaged by the loss of funds.

HEW told GNHSA it now can spend the local funds or set them aside for possible federal matching next year, he said.

Sen. Luedtke, Karthaus To Meet

Sen. Roland Luedtke will meet Tuesday with Col. C.P. Karthaus, head of the State Patrol, to discuss possible problems in the patrol's drug division.

Luedtke said he had some questions about the program that he wanted Karthaus to answer in private to prevent any possibility of endangering persons involved in drug enforcement.

After the meeting with Karthaus and possibly one other drug division official, Luedtke said he may ask the Legislature's Judiciary Committee to schedule another hearing into the drug enforcement program.

A subcommittee of that panel recently suspended hearings on the patrol drug division until a majority of the group votes to reopen the hearings.

Luedtke said he would discuss his conversation with Karthaus with Sen. Loran Schmitt, subcommittee chairman, before making any formal recommendations for more hearings or changes in the drug program.

Colleges' Budget Request Had 'Defects'

By The Associated Press
The budget request of Nebraska's state colleges was returned for more work because of defects that included earmarking of funds for different programs than those on which the money would be spent, a budget analyst said Monday.

Jon Oberg, higher education analyst in the budget division of the Department of Administrative Services (DAS), said the spending guides for the four state colleges contained "certain deficiencies."

One example he cited was the budgeting of money for academic programs that actually would end up being spent on intercollegiate athletics. "It isn't that you can't spend state general fund money for intercollegiate athletics," he said. "We just want to make sure that the budgets reflect what the funds are being spent for."

He said the DAS budget division established budgeting procedures and guidelines to provide uniformity in higher education accounting and audit matters.

"Elected officials should know what state funds are being spent for," he said. "They (state college officials) didn't want to display the budget in the manner in which we have prescribed it."

Oberg said, however, that there were improvements in data supplied and other detail in the state college budget request that "will contribute toward better procedures" when the spending guides are completed properly.

Oberg said when the budget division receives the University of Nebraska system and community college budget documents, the same guidelines will be used to determine if they are accurate.

The state colleges — Kearney, Chadron, Peru, and Wayne — this fiscal year received a total appropriation of about $14.5 million for campus operations. The new budget will cover fiscal 1977-78.

Exon Sees 'Innuendo' In Beatrice Charges

Gov. J. James Exon says a publicity-bent U.S. Justice Department is using "half-truths and innuendos" in charges about the Beatrice State Home agreement.

Exon said he's been advised not to comment on the matter while it's in the courts. "But when I see actions (brought via the courts) that have little effect in law and are obviously designed for publicity, I take the right to respond to some of their less than accepted ethics of an attorney allowed by the U.S. Justice Department."

The department contends Nebraska and Exon in particular failed to adhere to an agreement regarding the state home serving mentally retarded persons. The government has asked a U.S. district court hearing in Omaha on disputed issues.

In its petition, the department said the retarded involved in the settlement are suffering deprivation of their constitutional rights. The suit was brought in 1972 and the settlement reached in 1975, creating a governing board to administer depopulating the home and moving clients to community centers.

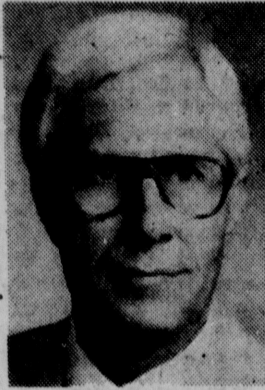

Exon noted that persons involved in the suit withdrew because they were "generally satisfied" with the agreement. Labeling it a "rehash," the governor said "when the U.S. Justice Department through half-truths and innuendos attempts to use the federal courts or misuse the federal courts on serious legal action," that's "more press release than court action."

To the contention that Exon failed in the commitment to provide money for an administrative panel governing operations, the governor said he "did everything I could" but "the Legislature turned it down."

Exon said that contrary to what the Justice Department seems to think, "I do not have the appropriations authority."

Noting he's talked to U.S. Atty. Gen. Edward Levi, Exon said the nation's top lawyer "has such a big agency to look after, I'm not sure that the right hand knows what the left hand is doing" in the Beatrice State Home case.

Exon said the federal bureaucrats are "less than sincere and honest."

William Schlaebitz

Schlaebitz Arts Council President

William Schlaebitz was elected president of the Lincoln Community Arts Council Monday.

The University of Nebraska graduate is a member of the board of directors of the Lincoln Community Playhouse, Lincoln Artists Guild and the American Institute of Architects.

Other officers elected are Keith Heckman and John Frey, vice presidents; Jack Moore, treasurer, and Mrs. Sam Van Pelt, secretary.

Directors are past president Larry Lusk, Ron Bowlin, Jack Campbell, Marjorie Mengshol and Sam Davidson, executive director of the council.

Davidson announced that the annual Festival of the Arts for Lincoln will be April 23-24, 1977.

Plant Science Complex Building Contract OK'd

Gov. J. James Exon approved Monday the construction contract for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln east campus plant science complex.

Construction on the $10-million building will be completed by Dec. 1, 1978.

The revised budget includes $3,875,000 for the greenhouse-headhouse (centralized control) and $6,125,000 for the laboratory building. Demolition and Keim Hall remodeling are part of the construction cost subtotals, respectively, of $2.75 million and $4 million.

All that represents a shift from the original budget of $3,046,300 for the greenhouse-headhouse and $6,953,700 for the lab building.

The Legislature appropriated $250,000 last fiscal year, $2.53 million in 1976-77, $4.37 million in 1977-78, and $2.85 million in 1978-79 for the complex.

The low base bids approved include: General contract — Peter Kiewit & Sons, Omaha, $2,278,100; mechanical — Morrissey's Plumbing and Heating, Lincoln, $1,303,400; electrical — ABC Electric, Lincoln, $329,200; elevator — O'Keefe Elevator, Lincoln, $63,000.

Sen. Luedtke, Karthaus To Meet

Sen. Roland Luedtke will meet Tuesday with Col. C.P. Karthaus, head of the State Patrol, to discuss possible problems in the patrol's drug division.

Luedtke said he had some questions about the program that he wanted Karthaus to answer in private to prevent any possibility of endangering persons involved in drug enforcement.

After the meeting with Karthaus and possibly one other drug division official, Luedtke said he may ask the Legislature's Judiciary Committee to schedule another hearing into the drug enforcement program.

A subcommittee of that panel recently suspended hearings on the patrol drug division until a majority of the group votes to reopen the hearings.

Luedtke said he would discuss his conversation with Karthaus with Sen. Loran Schmit, subcommittee chairman, before making any formal recommendations for more hearings or changes in the drug program.

Exon Reappoints Five To State Health Board

Gov. J. James Exon reappointed on Monday five State Health Board members to additional three-year terms.

They are Dr. V. Franklin Colon of Friend, Sharon Holyoke of Ogallala, James L. McCoy of David City, Dr. Gordon W. Shupe of Wayne, and Dr. Jack Swanson of Wahoo.

Exon also announced his selections for the Nebraska State Board of Public Accountancy.

Bob F. Wohlers of Lincoln and Duane L. Thelen of Omaha were named to terms expiring Sept. 20, 1980. They succeed Dale E. Gruntorad of Lincoln and Donald L. Darst of Omaha.

William L. Murphy will succeed Calvin E. Lenhart of Scottsbluff, to a term expiring Aug. 27, 1980.

Tax Profile Request Gets Wary Approval

By The Associated Press
The Unicameral's Revenue Committee voted with wary unanimity Monday to move another step toward a Nebraska tax profile study, seeking to nail down an explicit contract proposal from an Ohio firm.

Voting 6-0, the panel authorized Tax Commissioner William Peters and Dr. Jack Rodgers, director of legislative research, to negotiate a contract with John Cook & Associates of Cleveland, Ohio.

The contract was to remain unsigned until reviewed by the committee, and would cover only the work plan portion of the proposed tax profile study. The work plan would cover both state and local taxation.

Cook met earlier with the committee to explain his proposal, citing a cost of $36,800 for a work plan that could be used by state personnel to provide the profile on an ongoing basis.

Columbus Sen. Donald Dwork said he wanted a more explicit analysis of what a work plan would cover and how much it would cost.

The profile work plan, according to Cook's analysis at the last panel session, would provide guidelines to determine through available state-local data the tax burden of various Nebraskans: farmers, wage earners, businessmen, etc.

The unanimous vote on seeking an explicit contract came only after an unsuccessful 4-2 vote on the same motion. It takes five votes for committee action.

Sens. Orval Keyes of Springfield and Ron Cope of Kearney opposed the motion at first, but later switched to keep the idea alive for now.

Kennedy Offers Guides For Attracting Physicians

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau Crete — Positive thinking and salesmanship were hailed here Monday as the two essentials which are going to "bring a flood of doctors to rural Nebraska."

But State Sen. Tom Kennedy of Newman Grove, addressing some 50 citizens of Crete and other communities concerned about doctor shortages, stressed that each town must sell itself.

Volunteer head of the recently created Nebraska Health Manpower Referral Office, the veteran senator said enthusiasm can overcome the negative publicity to which medical students are subjected.

Quoting a recent report that one-fourth of Nebraska's medical graduates have remained in the state since 1960, Kennedy said, "This is not very good for the greatest state in the nation."

He then noted successes by such small towns as his own (population 860) and Rushville in recruiting two doctors each.

Kennedy's remarks capped a wide ranging discussion led by Crete Mayor Norm Behrens as part of a Selene County Council of Governments meeting. Special guests were Dr. Harry McFadden, interim chancellor of the University of Nebraska Medical Center, and Assistant Dean Dr. Robert Wigton.

Dr. McFadden also spoke optimistically of retaining more doctors, principally because of a pioneering general practice specialty established in Nebraska three years ago.

He predicted that some 60% of the annual graduates will be locating in the state in the near future.

Questioned by Sen. Richard Marsh about a purportedly small percentage of rural students admitted to medical schools, McFadden said small communities probably have greater representation than large ones. He also said a "vast majority" of current students are interested in family practice.

The nation as a whole, he added, is "probably near an optimal production level" in educating physicians. He agreed with Kennedy that "communication and salesmanship" are the great needs in attracting doctors to rural areas.

Behrens suggested that enrolling more students in medical schools might reduce medical costs and also ease small towns' shortages.

"When there are enough doctors in Lincoln and Omaha that they start getting a little hungry," he stated, "maybe they'll come out to the small communities."

Counties Miss Deadline; HEW Cancels Funds

Grand Island (AP) — Federal matching funds will be withheld from the Greater Nebraska Health Systems Agency because the 71-county agency received local money after a federal cutoff date.

The government did not tell the agency about the Aug. 9 cutoff date, according to GNHSA governing board president Clarence Cory of Columbus.

GNHSA asked the counties for money in mid-August, after the federal government said it would contribute 40 cents for every $1 the agency raised locally. The agency raised $4,057 from the counties and expected $1,623 in federal matching funds.

Cory said a representative of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare was present at all meetings where members discussed soliciting the funds.

"Those counties that do agree to support us financially do so because of matching funds from HEW," Cory said. He said GNHSA's credibility has been damaged by the loss of funds.

HEW told GNHSA it now can spend the local funds or set them aside for possible federal matching next year, he said.

2 Explosions, Fire Destroy Gasoline Rig

Scottsbluff (AP) — Two explosions and a resulting fire destroyed a gasoline tanker rig at the Slater Oil Co. storage depot in Scottsbluff early Monday.

Flames burned the outside of six large storage tanks but they did not explode.

Firemen brought the flames, visible for about six miles, under control in about 30 minutes but remained at the scene for several hours.

Ron Marks of Dix, an independent trucker, said he had driven the 8,000-gallon rig into the depot and had hooked a line to tanks, then had started to attach a ground strap to the tractor when the first explosion occurred.

Marks said he started to run and was about 25 feet away at the time of the second blast. The flames destroyed the first of four 2,000-gallon compartments in the truck.

The cab and transport were described as a total loss, with value set by Marks at about $55,000. An estimated $30,000 to $50,000 damage occurred to the oil depot, which has six tanks with storage capacity of 118,500 gallons.

Plant manager Keith Vohland said there were only about 40,000 gallons of gasoline in the tanks at the time. A building at another gasoline storage facility nearby was damaged.

There were no injuries.

Osborne Won't Play 'Poll Game'

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Warning to football fans who like to bet on the games: Nebraska coach Tom Osborne isn't playing the "poll" game.

"We're not looking at the point spread," Osborne told Extra Point Club guests at the weekly luncheon at the Elks Club. "We're looking at how good we can be down the road."

"When you look at the tough games ahead you know you're apt to get people hurt and you're going to have to have experienced people to put in. So, when we get a chance to play people we're going to do it."

Osborne was candid in his assessment of the next Cornhusker opponent, Texas Christian, and said, "I think I'd be lying to you if I said this was a great football team. If we play well we should win, but if we suffer turnovers or don't move the ball well early it might be a 60-minute deal."

Osborne predicted the 76,000-plus fans will see the Horned Frogs throw the football 40 to 50 times. "I'll guarantee you they'll throw the ball," he said.

TCU uses a 4-3 defensive alignment, which is different than the Huskers will face the rest of the season against Big Eight teams. "We'll have to revise our blocking scheme and go out and hit them and be prepared to play 60 minutes of football."

Texas Christian will come to Lincoln with an 0-2 record. The Frogs lost to Southern Methodist in the opener 34-14 and dropped a 31-0 decision to Tennessee last Saturday despite producing 400 yards in total offense.

TCU marched the ball up and down the field, but penetrated within the 10-yard line only once against the Volunteers.

"We don't know how to win,"

TCU coach Jim Shofner said. "We can't execute inside the 20-yard line. We played pretty good offense; it's just a matter of figuring out how to score."

Osborne said he was generally pleased the way the Huskers performed against Indiana in the 45-13 victory at Bloomington, Ind. "I'm not sure the team played a whole lot different than at LSU (6-6 tie), but the kicking was better and we had better field position."

One positive factor in both NU games this season has been that there has been only one turnover (at LSU). "We had two or three fumbles against Indiana, but we didn't lose any," he said. "That statistic may not excite you but it does me."

A negative factor was that the Huskers were penalized 10 times for 115 yards. That's a high over the past three seasons. "We've got to do better, although when you play away from home you're going to get more calls against you," Osborne said. "We played six of our last seven games away from home and we're looking forward to our return to Memorial Stadium this week. I hope the officials will know who the home team is."

Osborne handed out some kudos to several Husker players, both from the offensive and defensive units.

"Mike Fultz made some things happen," he said of the NU senior defensive tackle. "Jeff Pullen played an extremely fine game. He's quick, aggressive and agile. He played the whole game."

Larry Valasek, 5-10, 160-pound safetyman, played despite having suffered a hyperextended elbow in practice. "He's one of the toughest people I know," Osborne said. "Dave Butterfield also played well."

On the offense, Osborne singled out tight end Ken Spaeth. "I can't believe this is the same guy we had last season," he said. "I didn't think he'd ever play tight end for us."

Only two Huskers appear to be out of the TCU game. Middle guard Oudious Lee severely sprained an ankle and linebacker Percy Eichelberger tore a tendon on a finger, requiring surgery.

Lee Kunz and Jeff Carpenter will be the backup linebackers to Clete Pilen and James Wightman against the Frogs.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Michigan's 51-0 rout of Stanford earned the Wolverines 31 first place votes from the UPI board of coaches Monday and pushed them past Ohio State into the No. 1 ranking among the major college football teams.

The Wolverines, runnerup in last week's inaugural ballot of the season, a mere six points behind Ohio State, collected 405 points for its steamroller performance to move considerably ahead of the Buckeyes, who fell to second place.

Ohio State was named on five first place ballots and registered 335 points after its slim 12-7 victory over Penn State.

Pittsburgh moved up a notch to third place on the strength of a 42-14 triumph over Georgia Tech. The Panthers drew four first place votes and a 304 point total.

UCLA, with a single first place vote, dropped one rung to fourth place with 285 votes, while Oklahoma remained fifth with 262. Nebraska, with the only other first place vote from the 42 coaches, moved up two spots to sixth place on 151 votes.

Missouri, upset by Illinois, 31-6, dropped out of the top 20 after being named to sixth place last week Oklahoma State also failed to make the elite group

Last week, Ohio State grabbed 16 first place votes and collected 349 points. Michigan was on 17 first place ballots with 343 points.

Track Bosses Disliking Bill

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska horse race track managers aren't all happy with a new bill before President Gerald Ford. In fact, they are upset with it.

The measure, sent to President Ford last Thursday, is likely to be signed into law by the President sometime this week. It will go into effect 90 days later.

The bill says that anyone who wins $1,000 or more on a single bet must pay a 20 per cent withholding tax to the Internal Revenue Service. This does not only apply to high-priced daily doubles and exactas. If a gambler bets $500 on a winning 2-1 horse, $200 of his profits will be withheld at the cashier's window.

"This is going to put a load on us to police it," noted State Fairgrounds' general manager Henry Brandt. "I haven't seen the bill in its entirety yet so I really can't comment much."

"But it makes it inconvenient for the bettor and for us," he continued. "How do I know how many tickets someone bought on a horse unless I station someone at every window?"

Presently, bettors are required to fill out IRS Forms 1099 when they collect on a payoff of $300-1 or more. In other words, whenever they cash a double worth $600 or more or an exacta worth $900 or more they must fill out an income tax slip before they get their winnings.

"It looks like we're going to start working for the government," said Harold Smock, general manager of the Atokad Races near South Sioux City. "I don't understand the logic of the bill. It doesn't make a lot of sense."

"I think it's terrible. It's going to drive bettors to the bookies. Then the state will get nothing and the IRS will get nothing," I think somebody is just money hungry or doesn't like racing."

Smock questioned the bill's enforceability. "Does winning a single bet mean one ticket? If that's the case, people will just start buying $2 tickets and cash them one at a time."

Rookie Shocks Pirates

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie Lee Mazzilli slammed a two-run homer with two out in the ninth inning Monday, lifting the New York Mets to a 3-4 victory over Pittsburgh, stalling the Pirates' pennant drive.

The loss, Pittsburgh's third in the four-game series against the Mets, dropped the Pirates 4½ games behind Philadelphia in the National League East. The Phils were idle Monday.

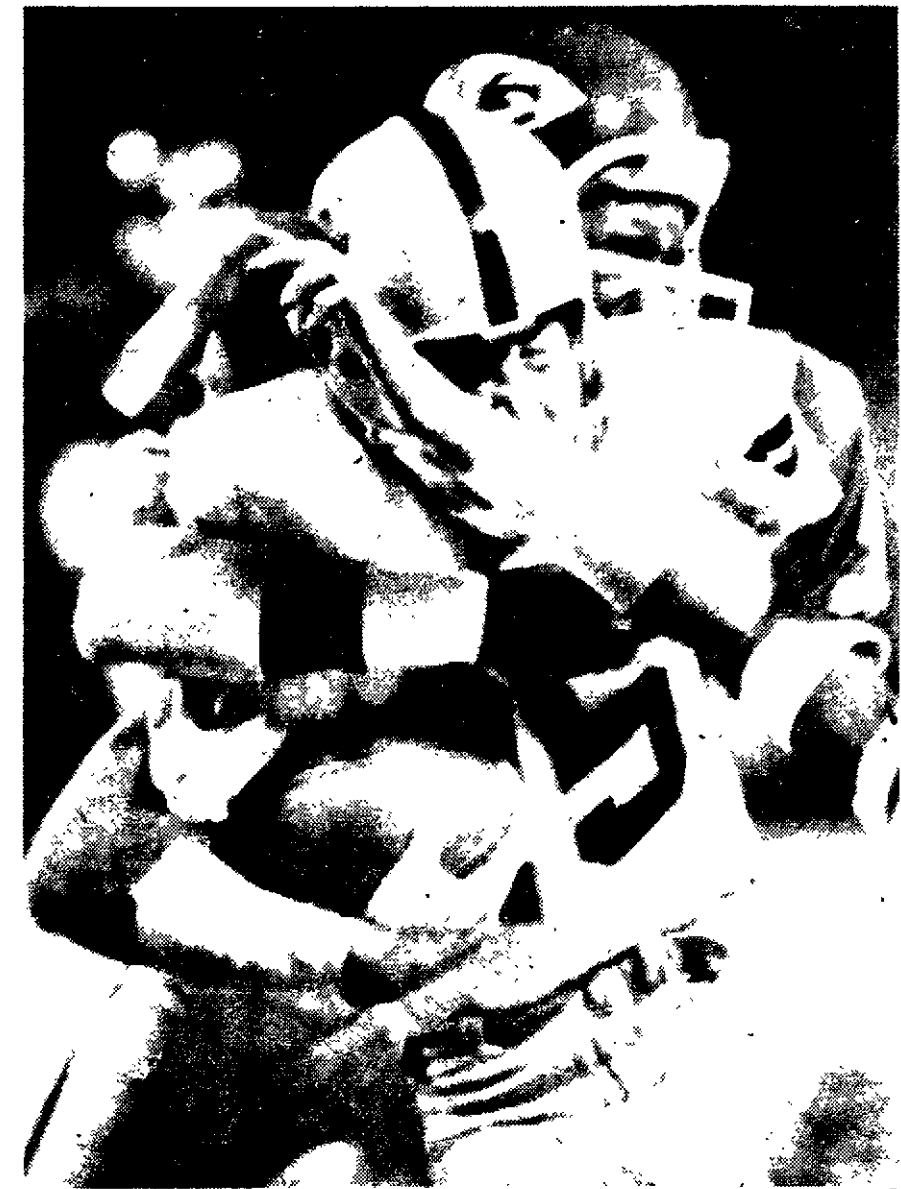

The Pirates had erased an early 3-0 deficit to take a 4-3 lead in the eighth inning on Willie Stargelli's 19th homer of the season.

Pinch hitter John Milner singled off Pirates reliever Kent Tekulve, 5-2, and Mazzilli, who was brought up earlier this month, followed with his second home run of the season over the fence in right-center.

The Mets took a 3-0 lead in the third inning, bunching five singles off Pirates starter John Candalaria.

Football Fan Gives Birth

Pontiac, Mich. (AP) — Pontiac Stadium almost became an impromptu maternity ward when an unidentified woman went into labor during Sunday's Detroit Lions-Atlanta Falcons pro football game.

The woman was rushed into an ambulance which headed for one of the huge double doors located at both ends of the mammoth domed stadium.

But the ambulance crew was told they couldn't make their exit until the doors at the other end of the stadium were shut. The facility is covered by a unique fabric roof kept aloft by air pressure and, according to officials, if doors at both ends of the stadium were opened simultaneously, the roof would collapse atop the thousands of fans watching the game.

Stadium officials say the door problem was solved, and the mother-to-be apparently made it to a hospital before she gave birth. The Lions, meanwhile, went on to beat Atlanta 24-10.

Raiders Hold Off Chiefs

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler, using the forward pass like a surgical instrument, carved through the Kansas City defense for 234 yards and three touchdowns Monday night as the Raiders held off the Chiefs 24-10.

Stabler, before leaving the National Football League game in the fourth quarter with a strained right knee, completed 22 of 28 passes. He connected on scoring strikes of 15 yards to Dave Casper, 10 yards to Cliff Branch and 14 yards to Mike Siani.

The Chiefs, 0-2, completely outclassed by the unbeaten Raiders in the first half, charged back in the second. They got a pair of touchdowns touchdowns in the nationally televised game on a one-yard run by MacArthur Lane in the third period and by quarterback Mike Livingston in the fourth.

Then they cut the final margin to a field goal—a 37-yarder by Oakland's Fred Steinetfort in the second quarter—when Livingston passed 25 yards to Billy Masters with 2:53 to play.

The Raiders totally dominated the first half, amassing 16 first downs and 288 total yards while the Chiefs managed only two first downs and 37 yards over-all.

On Oakland's second possession of the game, Stabler swept the Raiders 67 yards on 12 plays. He covered the final 15 on a quick pass to Casper, who beat rookie cornerback Tim Collier with 11:37 gone in the first period.

A bad snap on Steinetfort's extra-point attempt apparently wiped out the extra point—but the Chiefs were called for off-sides. Then the Boston College rookie, who made national headlines when he beat George Blanda out of a job, made good on his second attempt.

The Raiders rolled 72 yards in 12 methodical plays to grab a 14-0 lead at 10:35 of the second period. Three straight thrusts

Pisarkiewicz May Not Play Against OSU

KANSAS CITY (AP) — What's wrong with the Missouri football team? Steve Pisarkiewicz, for one thing.

"I just don't think he'll be able to play this week against Ohio State unless he gets well real quick," said Tiger Coach Al Onofrio Monday.

"His shoulder is real sore and he won't practice for the next couple of days. It's been 10 days now and it's just not getting better."

The Missouri quarterback injured his passing shoulder while diving after a fumble in practice. It seemed to have no effect on his performance in the Tigers' opening game upset of Southern California, but he was forced out of their surprising 31-6 loss to Illinois Saturday in the third quarter.

"It's sore on the front and underneath of his shoulder and he picked up some bruises against Illinois," said Onofrio. "We won't send him out there this week unless he's 100 per cent."

Onofrio said Pete Woods would probably start at quarterback Saturday against Ohio State, but he said he wasn't ruling out the possibility that Pisarkiewicz would make the trip.

But the Missouri bow had no other easy answers for the Tigers' rollercoaster performance in their first two games.

"It's hard. You play these things back after the game. There are so many things that can affect it. It's so hard to say," Onofrio told sports writers at the Big Eight Conference telephone briefing.

Most of the remaining Big Eight coaches had happier things to talk about. All but Jim Stanley at Oklahoma State and Ellis Rainsberger at Kansas State were victors in weekend play against nonconference foes.

Barry Switzer expressed pleasure at the continued fine play of his Oklahoma defense and optimism concerning a maturing offense following a 28-17 win over pass-happy California.

"We moved the ball quite a bit better against California. But a reason, I think, was that California doesn't have as good a defense as Vanderbilt. But they also didn't have as long to prepare."

The Sooners host Florida State this weekend and Switzer predicted a sterner test for quarterback Denn Eblein and the Oklahoma attack.

"They (Florida State) look better prepared for the wish-bone and probably are stronger defensively than California," he said. "But they really don't compare on offense."

Kansas Coach Bud Moore, his Jayhawks off a 3-0 start for only the sixth time in their history, called their 37-16 triumph over Kentucky one of their better games.

"It's hard to say whether it was the best we've played. We've had several good quarters and halves since I've been here, but I do feel it was an outstanding performance," he said.

Iowa State, 2-0 after whipping Air Force, 41-6, is off to one of its best starts, but Coach Earle Bruce hedged on evaluating his thus-far explosive Cyclones.

"I don't know. How good is Alabama or Missouri?" asked Bruce, whose team hosts Kent State this Saturday. "I can't tell. How good is USC? They lose one week and win, 53-0, the next. What can you say?"

The thing that pleased Colorado Coach Bill Mallory about his Buffaloes' 21-7 conquest of Washington was their ability to eliminate the errors that cost them their first contest.

"I was happy we didn't turn the ball over like last week and kill ourselves. We only threw seven times but we hit five of them and they were all in key situations," said Mallory as the Buffaloes prepared for a home encounter with Miami of Florida.

Oklahoma State escaped from a 16-10 loss to Arkansas with no major injuries, except one.

"I have an injured heart," admitted Coach Jim Stanley. "They had the ball a lot and our defense was on the field a lot. But their offense had something to do with that."

The Cowboys have the week-end off before hosting North Texas State Oct. 2.

Kansas State Coach Ellis Rainsberger blamed an erratic offense for the Wildcats' 34-14 loss to Texas A&M, but admitted the Aggies were better than last year's crew.

"I knew that before the game and I certainly think so, now. They have speed outside and they're throwing more. They're just doing more things."

Wake Forest invades Manhattan this Saturday as the Wildcats try to boost their record to 2-1.

Friday night's Creighton Prep-Omaha South battle at UNO shapes up as a classic No. 1 vs. No. 2 ratings matchup, featuring one of the state's most explosive offensive teams in South against the state's stingiest Class A defensive outfit in Prep.

The irony, though, is that No. 2 South considers itself as defensively sound as any team and No. 1 Prep believes its offense will rise to meet any challenge.

"This is the best hitting team I've had in six years here," says South coach John Fairman. "Monte Kiffin (Nebraska's defensive coordinator) and Roger Higgins (Omaha Bryan's head coach) said this is one of the best hitting high school teams they've ever seen, too."

Tom Jaworski, Prep's fifth year head coach, has a highly productive rushing game and believes his passing game could surprise. "Our quarterback (John Sempak) has only thrown

Tom Jaworski Hasn't Opened Up

21 times and completed 14," he points out. "He's one of the best around I just haven't opened up yet."

Those observations are proof the ingredients are there both offensively and defensively. Pursists, however, might want to digest more facts for closer analysis.

Prep has posted three shutouts, defeating defeating Omaha Roncalli (29-0), Omaha

Central (20-0) and Omaha Benson (27-0). South's victories have been over Omaha Bryan (34-12), Benson (23-12) and Council Bluffs Abraham Lincoln (29-14).

In three games, the comparative yardstick looks like this:

	Prep	South
Rushing offense	252.4	168.0
Passing offense	64.6	281.0
Total offense	317.0	369.0
Rushing defense	38.0	67.7
Passing defense	9.7	45.6
Total defense	47.7	113.3

"I don't know if Creighton Prep has any weaknesses," Fairman says. "but I sure hope we give them their biggest test on both offense and defense."

"I know we can't blow them out," he admits. "but we'll still play it open. If they stop our running, we won't hesitate to throw the ball from anywhere on the field."

Fairman has developed the utmost confidence in junior Tom Miller, the quarterback replacement for the graduated Mike Mancuso. "He's a fine athlete.

He started the last five varsity basketball games as a sophomore and ran on our gold medal 880 relay team last spring," Fairman notes.

Miller has hit 35 of 69 passes for 186 3 yards a game. He has utilized his receivers almost equally. Tight end Rick Pesek has caught 13 for 201 yards and a touchdown. Split end Kelly Switek has caught 12 for 212 yards and two touchdowns and slotback Jean Montes has snagged nine for 141 yards and a touchdown.

Prep relies principally on the ground-guiping talents of running back Randy Brooks and fullback Thurman Cotton, a pair of solid major college prospects.

Their speed concerns Fairman most. Brooks clocks .045 in the

John Fairman Hard-Hitting Team

40-yard dash. Cotton authors .047.

South is minus the services of preseason all-state center Dave Remington, who underwent knee surgery after the Packers' first game against Bryan 1-back Dave Patlan. Slowed with an Achilles tendon injury, will return to the South lineup and alternate with Durcas Patterson.

who has averaged 82 yards a game rushing while picking up the slack.

If most things turn out equal, looking could be the difference in the showdown. Prep has Pat LeClare, an all-Metro and preseason all-state kicker. He has kicked a 26-yard field goal in his only attempt this season. He is consistently accurate from 30 to 40 yards, according to Jaworski.

South offers a threat in Roy Chis teammates all him Roy Bravo, who has kicked 25 and 35-yard field goals in his only two attempts this season. He has booted six of seven conversions.

A crowd of 10,000 is expected for the Prep-South battle. It's a bitter traditional rivalry, which draws well even when it's not a showdown," Fairman says.

"I hope they stuff people in the rafters," Jaworski says, adding. "I think they'll have to, too."

"Mike Fultz made some things happen," he said of the NU senior defensive tackle. "Jeff Pullen played an extremely fine game. He's quick, aggressive and agile. He played the whole game."

He also mentioned defensive ends George Andrews and Tony Samuel for playing well as a pair. Samuels went to right end when Ray Phillips suffered a bruised back and Andrews worked at the left side.

Larry Valasek, 5-10, 160-pound safetyman, played despite having suffered a hyperextended elbow in practice. "He's one of the toughest people I know," Osborne said. "Dave Butterfield also played well."

On the offense, Osborne singled out tight end Ken Spaeth. "I can't believe this is the same guy we had last season," he said. "I didn't think he'd ever play tight end for us."

Only two Huskers appear to be out of the TCU game. Middle guard Oudious Lee severely sprained an ankle and linebacker Percy Eichelberger tore a tendon on a finger, requiring surgery.

Lee Kunz and Jeff Carpenter will be the backup linebackers to Cleto Piller and James Wightman against the Frogs.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Michigan's 51-0 rout of Stanford earned the Wolverines 31 first place votes from the UPI board of coaches Monday and pushed them past Ohio State into the No. 1 ranking among the major college football teams.

The Wolverines, runnerup in last week's inaugural ballot of the season, a mere six points behind Ohio State, collected 405 points for its steamroller performance to move considerably ahead of the Buckeyes, who fell to second place.

Ohio State was named on five first place ballots and registered 336 points after its slim 12-7 victory over Penn State.

Pittsburgh moved up a notch to third place on the strength of a 42-14 triumph over Georgia Tech. The Panthers drew four first place votes and a 304 point total.

UCLA, with a single first place vote, dropped one rung to fourth place with 295 votes, while Oklahoma remained fifth with 262. Nebraska, with the only other first place vote from the 42 coaches, moved up two places to sixth place on 151 votes.

Missouri, upset by Illinois, 31-6, dropped out of the top 20 after being named to sixth place last week. Oklahoma State also failed to make the elite group.

Last week, Ohio State grabbed 16 first place votes and collected 349 points. Michigan was on 17 first place ballots with 343 points.

Track Bosses Disliking Bill

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska horse race track managers aren't all happy with a new bill before President Gerald Ford. In fact, they are upset with it.

The measure, sent to President Ford last Thursday, is likely to be signed into law by the President sometime this week. It will go into effect 90 days later.

The bill says that anyone who wins $1,000 or more on a single bet must pay a 20 per cent withholding tax to the Internal Revenue Service. This does not only apply to high-priced daily doubles and exactas. If a gambler bets $500 on a winning 2-1 horse, $200 of his profits will be withheld at the cashiers' window.

"This is going to put a load on us to police it," noted State Fairgrounds' general manager Henry Brandt. "I haven't seen the bill in its entirety yet so I really can't comment much."

"But it makes it inconvenient for the bettor and for us," he continued. "How do I know how many tickets someone bought on a horse unless I station someone at every window?"

Presently, bettors are required to fill out IRS Forms 1099 when they collect on a payoff of 300-1 or more. In other words, whenever they cash a double worth $600 or more or an exacta worth $900 or more they must fill out an income tax slip before they get their winnings.

"It looks like we're going to start working for the government," said Harold Smock, general manager of the Atokas Races near South Sioux City. "I don't understand the logic of the bill. It doesn't make a lot of sense."

"I think it's terrible. It's going to drive bettors to the bookies. Then the state will get nothing and the IRS will get nothing." I think somebody is just money hungry or doesn't like racing."

Smock questioned the bill's enforceability. "Does winning a single bet mean one ticket? If that's the case, people will just start buying 52 tickets and cash them one at a time."

Al Swihart, general manager of Fonner Park in Grand Island, termed the bill "unreal and terrible."

"I don't know all the details of it, but it's going to be impossible to enforce," he said. "Right now, it's a nuisance for the bettors and for us to fill out the forms after big doubles and exactas. But there aren't very many of them."

"We're required 30 days after our meet ends to send the Form 1099s in. At the end of the year, we send in Form 1099s which are just compilations of what we send in before. It'll mean more bookkeeping for us," Swihart said.

Robert Volk, assistant general manager of Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha, said Ak-Sar-Ben doesn't like to harass its customers.

"We don't know how many big bettors we have here. We don't care in that sense. You don't go up to a person and say how much did you bet or how much did you win on a race?"

"We were led to believe, however, that the bill would only affect payoffs of 300-1 or more on straight bets. At least that's what the American Horse Council said in its newsletter. We haven't really talked about it too much here," he said.

Warren Albert, general manager of the Columbus Races said it is one more item the government will make the race tracks perform.

"Now they're making us income tax collectors," he said. "It's bad enough we have that work to do on doubles and exactas. But they are stepping into a whole new thing now. What's to prevent them from saying $100 in winnings. There's nothing magic about $1,000."

"Maybe anyone who wins $10 will have to pay taxes. Maybe that's too extreme, but I don't know when this will end," he said. "This will drive some people to bookies. It's true the federal government doesn't get anything from horse racing now, but the State of Nebraska does and the taxpayers will be hurt by the money not coming through the mutual windows."

Rookie Shocks Pirates

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie Lee Mazzilli slammed a two-run homer with two out in the ninth inning Monday, lifting the New York Mets to a 5-4 victory over Pittsburgh, stalling the Pirates' pennant drive.

The loss, Pittsburgh's third in the four-game series against the Mets, dropped the Pirates 4½ games behind Philadelphia in the National League East. The Phils were idle Monday.

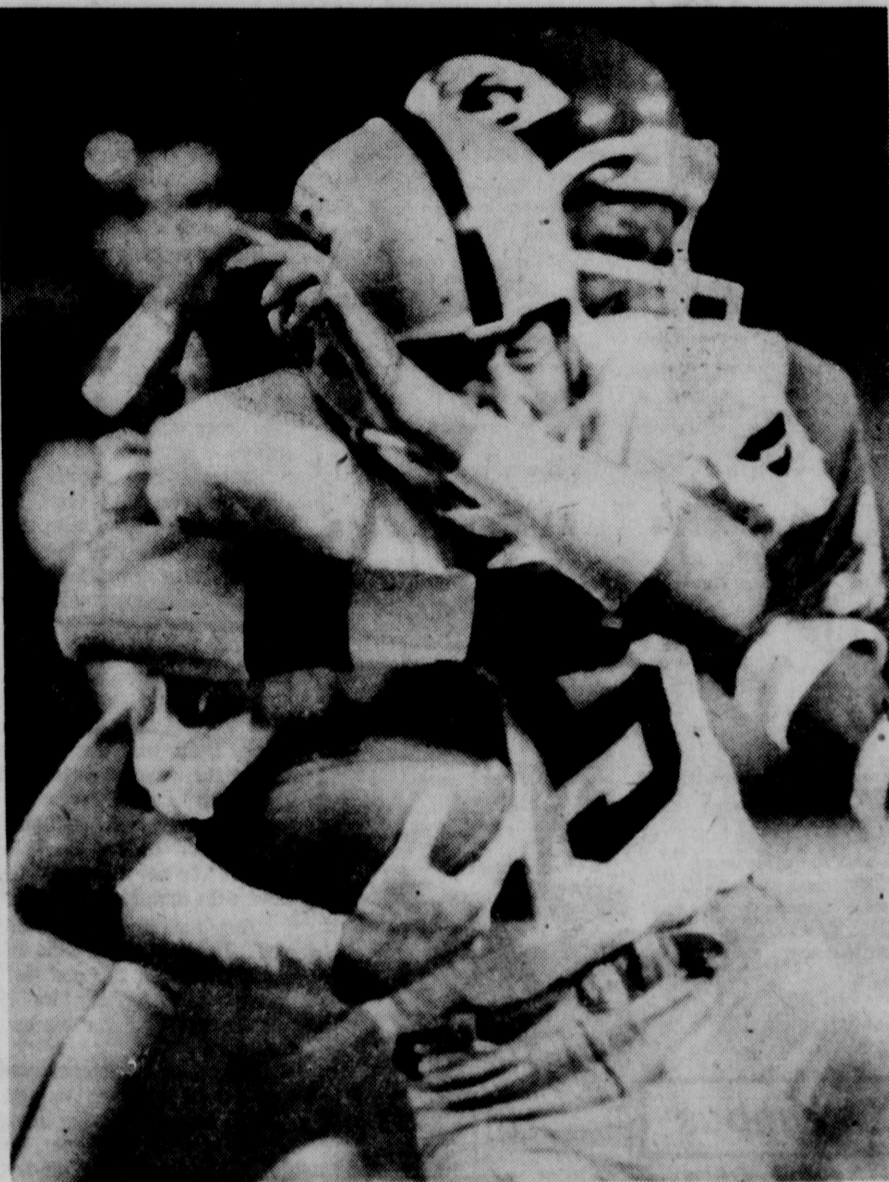

The Pirates had erased an early 3-0 deficit to take a 4-3 lead in the eighth inning on Willie Stargell's 19th homer of the season.

Pinch hitter John Milner singled off Pirates reliever Kent Tekulve, 5-2, and Mazzilli, who was brought up earlier this month, followed with his second home run of the season over the fence in right-center.

The Mets took a 3-0 lead in the third inning, bunching five singles off Pirates starter John Candelaria.

Football Fan Gives Birth

Pontiac, Mich. (AP) — Pontiac Stadium almost became an impromptu maternity ward when an unidentified woman went into labor during Sunday's Detroit Lions-Atlanta Falcons pro football game.

The woman was rushed into an ambulance which headed for one of the huge double doors located at both ends of the mammoth domed stadium.

But the ambulance crew was told they couldn't make their exit until the doors at the other end of the stadium were shut. The facility is covered by a unique fabric roof kept aloft by air pressure and, according to officials, if doors at both ends of the stadium were opened simultaneously, the roof would collapse atop the thousands of fans watching the game.

Stadium officials say the door problem was solved, and the mother-to-be apparently made it to a hospital before she gave birth. The Lions, meanwhile, went on to beat Atlanta 24-10.

Raiders Hold Off Chiefs

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler, using the forward pass like a surgical instrument, carved through the Kansas City defense for 224 yards and three touchdowns Monday night as the Raiders held off the Chiefs 24-21.

Stabler, before leaving the National Football League game in the fourth quarter with a strained right knee, completed 22 of 28 passes. He connected on scoring strikes of 15 yards to Dave Casper, 10 yards to Cliff Branch and 14 yards to Mike Siani.

The Chiefs, 0-2, completely outclassed by the unbeaten Raiders in the first half, charged back in the second. They got a pair of touchdowns in the nationally televised game on a one-yard run by MacArthur Lane in the third period and by quarterback Mike Livingston in the fourth.

Then they cut the final margin to a field goal—a 37-yarder by Oakland's Fred Steinfurt in the second quarter—when Livingston passed 25:33 to Billy Masters with 2:53 to play.

The Raiders totally dominated the first half, amassing 16 first downs and 288 total yards while the Chiefs managed only two first downs and 37 yards over-all.

On Oakland's second possession of the game, Stabler swept the Raiders 67 yards on 12 plays. He covered the final 15 on a quick pass to Casper, who beat rookie cornerback Tim Collier with 11:37 gone in the first period.

A bad snap on Steinfurt's extra-point attempt apparently wiped out the extra point—but the Chiefs were called for off-sides. Then the Boston College rookie, who made national headlines when he beat George Blanda out of a job, made good on his second attempt.

The Raiders rolled 73 yards in 12 methodical plays to grab a 14-0 lead at 10:35 of the second period. Three straight thrusts

Pisarkiewicz May Not Play Against OSU

KANSAS CITY (AP) — What's wrong with the Missouri football team? Steve Pisarkiewicz, for one thing.

"I just don't think he'll be able to play this week against Ohio State unless he gets well real quick," said Tiger Coach Al Onofrio Monday.

"His shoulder is real sore and he won't practice for the next couple of days. It's been 10 days now and it's just not getting better."

The Missouri quarterback injured his passing shoulder while diving after a fumble in practice. It seemed to have no effect on his performance in the Tigers' opening game upset of Southern California, but he was forced out of their surprising 31-6 loss to Illinois Saturday in the third quarter.

"It's sore on the front and underneath of his shoulder and he picked up some bruises against Illinois," said Onofrio. "We won't send him out there this week unless he's 100 per cent."

Onofrio said Pete Woods would probably start at quarterback Saturday against Ohio State, but he said he wasn't ruling out the possibility that Pisarkiewicz would make the trip.

But the Missouri boss had no other easy answers for the Tigers' rollercoaster performance in their first two games.

"It's hard. You play these things back after the game. There are so many things that can affect it. It's so hard to say," Onofrio told sports writers at the Big Eight Conference telephone briefing.

Most of the remaining Big Eight coaches had happier things to talk about. All but Jim Stanley at Oklahoma State and Ellis Rainsberger at Kansas State were victors in weekend play against nonconference foes.

Barry Switzer expressed pleasure at the continued fine play of his Oklahoma defense and optimism concerning a maturing offense following a 28-17 win over pass-happy California.

"We moved the ball quite a bit better against California. But a reason, I think, was that California doesn't have as good a defense as Vanderbilt. But they also didn't have as long to prepare."

The Sooners host Florida State this weekend and Switzer predicted a sterner test for quarterback Dean Eblevin and the Oklahoma attack.

"They (Florida State) look better prepared for the wish-bone and probably are stronger defensively than California," he said. "But they really don't compare on offense."

Kansas Coach Bud Moore, his Jayhawks off a 3-0 start for only the sixth time in their history, called their 37-16 triumph over Kentucky one of their better games.

"It's hard to say whether it was the best we've played. We've had several good quarters and halves since I've been here, but I do feel it was an outstanding performance," he said.

Iowa State, 2-0 after whipping Air Force, 41-6, is off to one of its best starts, but Coach Earle Bruce hedged on evaluating his thus-far explosive Cyclones.

"I don't know. How good is Alabama or Missouri?" asked Bruce, whose team hosts Kent State this Saturday. "I can't tell. How good is USC? They lose one week and win, 53-0, the next. What can you say?"

The thing that pleased Colorado Coach Bill Mallory about his Buffaloes' 21-7 conquest of Washington was their ability to eliminate the errors that cost them their first contest.

"I was happy we didn't turn the ball over like last week and kill ourselves. We only threw seven times but we hit five of them and they were all in key situations," said Mallory as the Buffaloes prepared for a home encounter with Miami of Florida.

Oklahoma State escaped from a 16-10 loss to Arkansas with no major injuries, except one.

"I have an injured heart," admitted Coach Jim Stanley. "They had the ball a lot and our defense was on the field a lot. But their offense had something to do with that."

The Cowboys have the weekend off before hosting North Texas State Oct. 2.

Kansas State Coach Ellis Rainsberger blamed an erratic offense for the Wildcats' 34-14 loss to Texas A&M, but admitted the Aggies were better than last year's crew.

"I knew that before the game and I certainly think so, now. They have speed outside and they're throwing more. They just do more things."

Wake Forest invades Manhattan this Saturday as the Wildcats try to boost their record to 2-1.

Friday night's Creighton Prep-Omaha South battle at UNO shapes up as a classic No. 1 vs. No. 2 ratings matchup, featuring one of the state's most explosive offensive teams in South against the state's stingiest Class A defensive outfit in Prep.

The irony, though, is that No. 2 South considers itself as defensively sound as any team and No. 1 Prep believes its offense will rise to meet any challenge.

"This is the best hitting team I've had in six years here," says South coach John Faيمان. "Monte Kiffin (Nebraska's defensive coordinator) and Roger Higgins (Omaha Bryan's head coach) said this is one of the best hitting high school teams they've ever seen, too."

Tom Jaworski, Prep's fifth year head coach, has a highly productive rushing game and believes his passing game could surprise. "Our quarterback (John Sempek) has only thrown

Central (20-0) and Omaha Benson (27-0). South's victories have been over Omaha Bryan (34-12), Benson (23-12) and Council Bluffs Abraham Lincoln (29-14).

In three games, the comparative yardstick looks like this:

Rushing offense	252.6	160.0
Passing offense	44.6	203.0
Total offense	319.0	363.0
Rushing defense	38.0	67.7
Passing defense	9.7	45.6
Total defense	47.7	113.3

"I don't know if Creighton Prep has any weaknesses," Faيمان says, "but I sure hope we give them their biggest test on both offense and defense."

"I know we can't blow them out," he admits, "but we'll still play it open. If they stop our running, we won't hesitate to throw the ball from anywhere on the field."

Faيمان has developed the utmost confidence in junior Tom Miller, the quarterback replacement for the graduated Mike Mancuso. "He's a fine athlete.

He started the last five varsity basketball games as a sophomore and ran on our gold medal 880 relay team last spring," Faيمان notes.

Miller has hit 35 of 69 passes for 186.3 yards a game. He has utilized his receivers almost equally. Tight end Rick Pesek has caught 13 for 201 yards and a touchdown. Split end Kelly Swotek has caught 12 for 212 yards and two touchdowns and slotback Jean Montes has snagged nine for 141 yards and a touchdown.

Prep relies principally on the ground-gulping talents of running back Randy Brooks and fullback Thurman Cotton, a pair of solid major college prospects.

Brooks, the state 180-yard low hurdle record-holder, is averaging close to 100 yards a game rushing. Cotton is averaging more than 80, according to Jaworski.

Their speed concerns Faيمان most. Brooks clocks :04.5 in the

who has averaged 82 yards a game rushing while picking up the slack.

If most things turn out equal, kicking could be the difference in the showdown. Prep has Pat LeClare, an all-Metro and pre-season all-state kicker. He has kicked a 26-yard field goal in his only attempt this season. He is consistently accurate from 30 to 40 yards, according to Jaworski.

South offers a threat in Roy (his teammates all him Rio) Bravo, who has kicked 25 and 35-yard field goals in his only two attempts this season. He has booted six of seven conversions.

A crowd of 10,000 is expected for the Prep-South battle. "It's a bitter, traditional rivalry, which draws well even when it's not a showdown," Faيمان says.

"I hope they stuff people in the rafters," Jaworski says, adding: "I think they'll have to, too."

Morning Briefing

Williams On Cavs Roster

Chuckie Williams Makes First Cut

The Cleveland Cavaliers announced Monday that five rookies had been added to the roster and will begin practice with the 12 Cav returnees at Richfield Coliseum Friday. The rookies, selected after last week's rookie camp, are Chuckie Williams of Kansas State, Mo Howard of the University of Maryland, Harry Davis of Morris Brown, Gary Cole of Wisconsin Parkside and Earl Hill of Sanford, Ala.

Other Basketball

Larry Costello, coach of the Milwaukee Bucks of the National Basketball Association, sank 357 consecutive free throws in a demonstration at a basketball clinic at Two Rivers, Wis., over the weekend. He was still far away from the record, however, 1,704 by Ted St. Martin, of Jacksonville, Fla.

The New York Nets of the NBA have acquired forward Larry McNeill from the Kansas City Kings for cash and a future draft choice.

Baseball

Major League baseball attendance through Sunday's games has surpassed the total for the entire 1975 season and baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office forecasts the all-time record will be broken in the next few days.

Hardluck Chicago White Sox pitcher Wilbur Wood rejured his ailing left knee Sunday and underwent surgery Monday at suburban Skokie Valley Community Hospital.

The Chicago White Sox said late Monday that doctors have repaired the left knee of Wood.

The San Francisco Giants Bill Rigney, expected to step aside as manager at the end of the National League season, will announce his plans at a news conference Tuesday night.

An assault charge against Cincinnati Reds pitcher Pat Zachry was dropped Monday in the Cincinnati Municipal Court. An out-of-court settlement was reached. Zachry was charged with assault after a game last month in which fan Daniel Davis claimed the pitcher "hit me with his fists several times" and "cursed Davis' wife after turning down an autograph request by Davis' 11-year-old brother.

Tommy Davis, a well-traveled major league veteran of 17 seasons who twice won the National League batting title with the Los Angeles Dodgers, was sold Monday by the California Angels to the Kansas City Royals.

Football

The Cincinnati Bengals have forced tight end Bob Trumpy to give up a show he was hosting for a Cincinnati radio station. The Bengals' policy is based on a fear the player might say something on the air which could be harmful to club morale, general manager Mike Brown said.

The Chicago Bears said Monday that surgery on outside linebacker Doug Buffone's left Achilles tendon was successful. He will be in a leg cast for six weeks and in a walking cast for six more weeks.

Veteran wide receiver Gary Garrison will be sidelined the rest of the 1976 season by a shoulder injury, the San Diego Chargers said Monday.

The New York Jets have placed cornerback Roscoe Word and Clifford Brooks on waivers, the NFL team announced Monday following Sunday's 46-3 loss to the Denver Broncos.

Wide receiver Freeman Johns was lost to the Los Angeles Rams for the rest of the season Monday when he underwent surgery to repair torn knee ligaments.

Veteran Miami cornerback Tim Foley was operated on Monday for a knee injury suffered in the Dolphins' 30-14 Sunday loss to the New England Patriots. Foley will probably be out the rest of the year.

Teams from Grambling State University and Morgan State arrived in Japan Monday for the first regular season U.S. college football game outside the Western Hemisphere.

The doctors from the cardiac unit at St. Anthony's Hospital at Denver conducted a series of tests Monday to determine how much heart damage New York Jets president Phil Belin suffered when he collapsed during halftime of Sunday's game with the Denver Broncos. He is reported in stable condition.

Officials of the Maritime Administration said Monday they had not decided whether to appeal a ruling that George Paterno must be reinstated as head football coach at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy. Paterno is the younger brother of Penn State coach Joe Paterno.

Boxing

Ken Norton, sounding much like his opponent in the Sept. 28 heavyweight championship fight, declared Monday that "I will make Muhammad Ali quit."

World Boxing Council lightweight champion Esteban de Jesus is being sought for questioning in connection with a drug bust at a luxury apartment in San Juan, a police source said Monday.

Other Sports

The First National Bank of Winter Garden is still trying to collect a $150,000 loan from former baseball star Phil Rizzuto which Rizzuto denies he obtained.

Former harness racing trainer Aston Menas pleaded guilty in federal court Monday to charges he helped fix a race at Sportsman's Park in suburban Cicero four years ago.

The University of Alabama swimming team, which includes world record holder Jonty Skinner, set two American records for 25 meter pools at an international men's meet here Monday. Skinner won the 100-meter freestyle in 50.1 seconds while the Alabama team won the 100-meter medley relay in 3:56.7. Both times were announced as American records.

Royals, A's Seeking 3-Game Series Sweep

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — The Oakland A's need a sweep of their upcoming three-game series at Kansas City to keep themselves in contention for the American League West championship. The Kansas City Royals need a sweep for the sake of their pride.

"It would mean a lot for the organization and the future of this ball club if we just sweep them," said Royals' designated hitter Hal McRae, whose team has a six-game lead on Oakland with 12 games left in the season. "We'd like to sweep them so we can win the pennant for ourselves instead of having someone else do it for us."

If the Royals sweep Oakland in the upcoming series, Kansas City's magic number for the AL West title will be one. After the Royals go to Texas for a three-game series this weekend they will be in Oakland for three more games before closing the regular season at home Oct. 1-3 against Minnesota.

"Psychologically it is important for us to beat Oakland and win this thing for ourselves," said McRae, whose team has won seven of 13 games against the A's this year. "We don't want to sit around and let someone else do our work."

The Royals, looking for their first division title, came into the series in good shape. After winning only one of 10 games, they have responded with eight wins in their last 13 games and four victories in a row.

Meanwhile, Oakland, five-time AL West champion, has split its last six games.

"My main concern was that we would not be flat when Oakland came in here and we have avoided that," McRae said. "We have to have an edge because we have played our worst ball in the past month or so and they have played their best and we're still six games up. The pressure is definitely on them."

Oakland, which moved to the West Coast from Kansas City in 1968, comes into the game knowing even a sweep would leave it three games out of first place and with only slight hopes of overtaking the Royals, a 1969 expansion team.

"Of course we have to sweep them," said Oakland third baseman Joe Rudi, "but we can't go in there thinking that way. We have to concentrate everything on the first game and if we win that one, then go on to the next. This is a funny game and anything can happen."

But the A's—other than always optimistic manager Chuck Tanner—are realistic enough to know they are in trouble.

"We haven't played all that well against them," said outfielder Sal Bando. "Of course, we could, but it's going to be pretty tough to do."

Tanner figures the second game of a Sunday doubleheader against Texas, which the A's won 13-3, may have brought his team out of its recent doldrums.

"That kind of hitting (14 hits) is exactly what the doctor ordered," Tanner said. "It should prove a big plus going into Kansas City. Sure we have to sweep and I think we can do it."

The A's will open the series Tuesday with Stan Bahnsen (8-6) going against Kansas City's Doug Bird (11-9). The remainder of the series will feature Oakland's Vida Blue (18-13) against Marty Pattin (8-13) on Wednesday and Mike Torres (14-11) against Kansas City's Dennis Leonard (17-8) Thursday.

Chuckie Williams Makes First Cut

The Cleveland Cavaliers announced Monday that five rookies had been added to the roster and will begin practice with the 12 Cav returnees at Richfield Coliseum Friday. The rookies, selected after last week's rookie camp, are Chuckie Williams of Kansas State, Mo Howard of the University of Maryland, Harry Davis of Morris Brown, Gary Cole of Wisconsin Parkside and Earl Hill of Samford, Ala.

Other Basketball

Larry Costello, coach of the Milwaukee Bucks of the National Basketball Association, sank 357 consecutive free throws in a demonstration at a basketball clinic at Two Rivers, Wis., over the weekend. He was still far away from the record, however, 1,704 by Ted St. Martin, of Jacksonville, Fla.

The New York Nets of the NBA have acquired forward Larry McNeill from the Kansas City Kings for cash and a future draft choice.

Baseball

Major League baseball attendance through Sunday's games has surpassed the total for the entire 1975 season and baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office forecasts the all-time record will be broken in the next few days.

Hardluck Chicago White Sox pitcher Wilbur Wood reinjured his ailing left knee Sunday and underwent surgery Monday at suburban Skokie Valley Community Hospital.

The Chicago White Sox said late Monday that doctors have repaired the left knee of Wood.

The San Francisco Giants' Bill Rigney, expected to step aside as manager at the end of the National League season, will announce his plans at a news conference Tuesday night.

An assault charge against Cincinnati Reds pitcher Pat Zachry was dropped Monday in the Cincinnati Municipal Court. An out-of-court settlement was reached. Zachry was charged with assault after a game last month in which fan Daniel Davis claimed the pitcher "hit me with his fists several times" and cursed Davis' wife after turning down an autograph request by Davis' 11-year-old brother.

Tommy Davis, a well-traveled major league veteran of 17 seasons who twice won the National League batting title with the Los Angeles Dodgers, was sold Monday by the California Angels to the Kansas City Royals.

Football

The Cincinnati Bengals have forced tight end Bob Trumpy to give up a show he was hosting for a Cincinnati radio station. The Bengals' policy is based on a fear the player might say something on the air which could be harmful to club morale, general manager Mike Brown said.

The Chicago Bears said Monday that surgery on outside linebacker Doug Buffone's left Achilles tendon was successful. He will be in a leg cast for six weeks and in a walking cast for six more weeks.

Veteran wide receiver Gary Garrison will be sidelined the rest of the 1976 season by a shoulder injury, the San Diego Chargers said Monday.

The New York Jets have placed cornerbacks Roscoe Word and Clifford Brooks on waivers, the NFL team announced Monday following Sunday's 46-3 loss to the Denver Broncos.

Wide receiver Freeman Johns was lost to the Los Angeles Rams for the rest of the season Monday when he underwent surgery to repair torn knee ligaments.

Veteran Miami cornerback Tim Foley was operated on Monday for a knee injury suffered in the Dolphins' 30-14 Sunday loss to the New England Patriots. Foley will probably be out the rest of the year.

Teams from Grambling State University and Morgan State arrived in Japan Monday for the first regular season U.S. college football game outside the Western Hemisphere.

The doctors from the cardiac unit at St. Anthony's Hospital at Denver conducted a series of tests Monday to determine how much heart damage New York Jets president Phil Iselin suffered when he collapsed during halftime of Sunday's game with the Denver Broncos. He is reported in stable condition.

Officials of the Maritime Administration said Monday they had not decided whether to appeal a ruling that George Paterno must be reinstated as head football coach at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy. Paterno is the younger brother of Penn State coach Joe Paterno.

Boxing

Ken Norton, sounding much like his opponent in the Sept. 28 heavyweight championship fight, declared Monday that "I will make Muhammad Ali quit."

World Boxing Council lightweight champion Esteban de Jesus is being sought for questioning in connection with a drug bust at a luxury apartment in San Juan, a police source said Monday.

Other Sports

Veteran Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., defeated young Gene Mayer of Wayne, N.J., 7-6, 6-2, Sunday to win the singles championship of the $50,000 Bermuda Tennis Classic.

The First National Bank of Winter Garden is still trying to collect a $150,000 loan from former baseball star Phil Rizzuto which Rizzuto denies he obtained.

Former harness racing trainer Anton Menas pleaded guilty in federal court Monday to charges he helped fix a race at Sportsman's Park in suburban Cicero four years ago.

The University of Alabama swimming team, which includes world record holder Jonty Skinner, set two American records for 25 meter pools at an international men's meet here Monday. Skinner won the 100-meter freestyle in 50.1 seconds while the Alabama team won the 100-meter medley relay in 3:55.7. Both times were announced as American records.

Royals, A's Seeking 3-Game Series Sweep

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — The Oakland A's need a sweep of their upcoming three-game series at Kansas City to keep themselves in contention for the American League West championship. The Kansas City Royals need a sweep for the sake of their pride.

"It would mean a lot for the organization and the future of this ball club if we just sweep them," said Royals' designated hitter Hal McRae, whose team has a six-game lead on Oakland with 12 games left in the season. "We'd like to sweep them so we can win the pennant for ourselves instead of having someone else do it for us."

If the Royals sweep Oakland in the upcoming series, Kansas City's magic number for the AL West title will be one. After the Royals go to Texas for a three-game series this weekend they will be in Oakland for three more games before closing the regular season at home Oct. 1-3 against Minnesota.

"Psychologically it is important for us to beat Oakland and win this thing for ourselves," said McRae, whose team has won seven of 13 games against the A's this year. "We don't want to sit around and let someone else do our work."

The Royals, looking for their first division title, come into the series in good shape. After winning only one of 10 games, they have responded with eight wins in their last 13 games and four victories in a row.

Meanwhile, Oakland, five-time AL West champion, has split its last six games.

"My main concern was that we would not be flat when Oakland came in here and we have avoided that," McRae said. "We have to have an edge because we have played our worst ball in the past month or so and they have played their best and we're still six games up. The pressure is definitely on them."

Oakland, which moved to the West Coast from Kansas City in 1968, comes into the game knowing even a sweep would leave it three games out of first place and with only slight hopes of overtaking the Royals, a 1969 expansion team.

"Of course we have to sweep them," said Oakland third baseman Joe Rudi, "but we can't go in there thinking that way. We have to concentrate everything on the first game and if we win that one, then go on to the next. This is a funny game and anything can happen."

But the A's—other than always optimistic manager Chuck Tanner—are realistic enough to know they are in trouble.

"We haven't played all that well against them," said outfielder Sal Bando. "Of course, we could, but it's going to be pretty tough to do."

Tanner figures the second game of a Sunday doubleheader against Texas, which the A's won 13-3, may have brought his team out of its recent doldrums.

"That kind of hitting (14 hits) is exactly what the doctor ordered," Tanner said. "It should prove a big plus going into Kansas City. Sure we have to sweep and I think we can do it."

The A's will open the series Tuesday with Stan Bahnsen (8-6) going against Kansas City's Doug Bird (11-4). The remainder of the series will feature Oakland's Vida Blue (16-12) against Marty Pattin (8-12) on Wednesday and Mike Torrey (14-11) against Kansas City's Dennis Leonard (17-8) Thursday.

Phillies Fight Choke Image As End Nears

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Like a culture hovering menacingly over a wounded animal, one question follows the Philadelphia Phillies every time they lose a game.

Hanging on to an endangered lead in the National League East, the Phillies are forced to contend with a nightmare of the past. "Does the team feel it's 1964 all over again?" comes the question from reporters. Over and over again, the question comes.

Patience, they answer 'no.' What happened 12 years ago when a Philadelphia team blew a 6 1/2-game lead with 13 games remaining has no bearing on this team at all, they say outwardly. Inwardly, the recollection of the infamous choke gnaws at them.

"I'd like to win just to shut them up," said Greg Luzinski after a sportscaster hit manager Danny Ozark with the question during the weekend series with the Chicago Cubs.

"Win this thing, and we'll never hear that again," he added. "The way it is now, that's always the first thing they ask."

"They don't say, 'Hi, how are you?' They say, 'What's the difference between this and '64?' You get sick of it. Hell, I was 14 years old in '64," the big outfielder said.

The Phillies once commanded a 15 1/2-game lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates. Now, after losing 19 of their last 35 games, it's down to 4 1/2. After an off-day, they open a three-game series at home against St. Louis Tuesday. Only 14 games remain.

$ Problems For Erving

NEW YORK (AP) — Julius Erving, the New York Nets' star forward, said Monday he would not report to the National Basketball Association season's training camp this week until his contract negotiations with the club are settled.

"I am eager to play, but I won't join the team because I can't be myself during this time," said Erving, who led the Choke, is a harsh word to be professional. But it's been tossed around frequently with the same breath as the Phillies. One cruel joke floating around town is that the team will be moved to The Philippines and renamed the "Manila Folders."

Slugging third baseman Mike Schmidt shrugs off such talk.

"If I fail in a crucial situation and you, the media, want to say I failed because of the pressure, that's your business," he said.

"And if the fans want to believe that, that's their business. All I know, it's tougher to make a five-foot putt on the 18th green when the tournament's riding on it than it is to make it on the first hole."

Because the race has tightened up so dramatically, all eyes are on the Phillies now. They are news. And shortstop Larry Bowa doesn't like life in a fishbowl.

"Everything gets blown up," the fiery competitor said. "Make an error in April or May and it's no big thing. It's just 'E-Bowa.' Make an error in September and it's headlines: 'Bowa Chokes.'"

The Phillies got a pep talk on the subject of 1964 from Coach Bobby Wine, who lived through the agony of the 10-game losing streak that cost the Phillies the pennant.

"I told them the same little things happened then as now," Wine said, "but we didn't have time to work it out then."

Wine's message was clear—the Phillies can still put the brakes on a frightening skid and right themselves. Then "the question" can be laid to rest.

Royals Fans Buy Tickets

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Royals baseball fans provided a scene at postoffices in the Kansas City area early Monday reminiscent of income tax deadline time.

Jimmy Palmarine, director of events for the Royals, and an assistant picked up the first two sacks of ticket requests at 9 a.m. Monday. J. A. Williams, senior customer service representative, estimated the sacks held about 2,500 letters.

Switzer Warns Foes: Sooner Fullbacks Better Than Ever

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer had some bad news Monday for opponents of the two-time defending national champions.

While stressing that the Sooners still had some problems to iron out on offense, Switzer predicted Oklahoma would have a better inside running attack than a year ago.

"I think we've got the best fullback we've ever had," Switzer said at his weekly press luncheon.

Fullbacks Kenny King and Jimmy Culbreth ran for a combined 378 yards in Oklahoma's 38-17 victory over California Saturday, and Switzer also had high praise for freshman George Cumby, the No. 3 fullback.

"I think we'll be able to run the ball better inside than a year ago," he said.

He described Culbreth, a senior walk-on, as "probably the best inside runner...more of a trash runner. He makes good cuts."

"King's like a rocket," Switzer said of the speedy sophomore who was moved to fullback in the spring.

And Cumby? "I'm not sure Cumby isn't the best of them all," he said, adding that "Cumby would make a great linebacker."

Switzer said execution of the wishbone is still not up to past standards. "We're not great on the corners."

He said junior quarterback Dean Eblevin played better against California than in his starting debut the week before at Vanderbilt, but added "he's got a long way to come yet."

"He's trying hard, getting more confidence, which has got to help him."

Switzer said he was pleased with the defensive effort, but said the Sooners were "still making too many mistakes. We're not tested at all."

The Sooners are expected to have an easy time this Saturday against twice-beaten Florida State, a 47-0 victim last week of state rival Miami.

Despite the lopsided loss, Switzer said the Seminole defense isn't that bad.

"I really believe they're a better defensive football team than California, playing against us. Their defense hasn't been able to stand up because their offense hasn't been able to move the ball," he said.

One player that impressed him was Willie Jones, freshman defensive tackle. Switzer said Oklahoma recruited him last year but wound up not signing him "because of the 30 scholarship limit."

He said the Sooners won't be looking ahead for the Big Eight opener at Iowa State or the annual grudge dual against Texas in Dallas.

"They will play us good—you wait and see," Switzer said of the Sooners. Returning starter Victor Hicks was still listed as doubtful for the Florida State game, but Switzer said talented halfback Billy Sims "can probably play." He said tackle Anthony Bryant, a starter a year ago, "may play." All three have missed the Sooners first two games with injuries.

Switzer Warns Foes: Sooner Fullbacks Better Than Ever

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer had some bad news Monday for opponents of the two-time defending national champions.

While stressing that the Sooners still had some problems to iron out on offense, Switzer predicted Oklahoma would have a better inside running attack than a year ago.

"I think we've got the best fullbacking we've ever had," Switzer said at his weekly press luncheon.

Fullbacks Kenny King and Jimmy Culbreth ran for a combined 370 yards in Oklahoma's 28-17 victory over California Saturday, and Switzer also had high praise for freshman George Cumby, the No. 3 fullback.

"I think we'll be able to run the ball better inside than a year ago," he said.

He described Culbreth, a senior walk-on, as "probably the best inside runner...more of a trash runner. He makes good cuts."

"King's like a rocket," Switzer said of the speedy sophomore who was moved to fullback in the spring.

And Cumby? "I'm not sure Cumby isn't the best of them all," he said, adding that "Cumby would make a great linebacker."

Switzer said execution of the wishbone is still not up to past standards. "We're not great on the corners."

He said junior quarterback Dean Blevins played better against California than in his starting debut the week before at Vanderbilt, but added "he's got a long way to come yet."

"He's trying hard, getting more confidence, which has got to help him."

Switzer said he was pleased with the defensive effort, but said the Sooners were "still making too many mistakes. We're not tested at all."

The Sooners are expected to have an easy time this Saturday against twice-beaten Florida State, a 47-0 victim last week of state rival Miami.

Despite the lopsided loss, Switzer said the Seminole defense isn't that bad.

"I really believe they're a better defensive football team than California, playing against us. Their defense hasn't been able to stand up because their offense hasn't been able to move the ball," he said.

One player that impressed him was Willie Jones, freshman defensive tackle. Switzer said Oklahoma recruited him last year but wound up not signing him "because of the $0 scholarship limit."

He said the Sooners won't be looking ahead for the Big Eight opener at Iowa State or the annual grudge dual against Texas in Dallas.

"They will play us good—you wait and see," Switzer said of the Sooners.

Returning starter Victor Hicks was still listed as doubtful for the Florida State game, but Switzer said talented halfback Billy Sims "can probably play." He said tackle Anthony Bryant, a starter a year ago, "may play." All three have missed the Sooners first two games with injuries.

Outdoor Report

Sandhills

Grouse hunters generally fared about the same as last year's opener, considering conditions were generally not the best. In most areas it was hot and windy on Saturday and cold and windy on Sunday. Game Biologists at check stations across the state reported an average of about one bird per hunter. Pressure seemed to be lighter than last year with about half the number of hunters out in the field.

According to conservation officers in the field, best areas were:

Panhandle — Few grouse hunters reported having fair to good success; most doves moved out ahead of cold front, before the hunters were having fair to good success, lots of archery deer hunters reported in the Pine Ridge.

Lake McCaughy (Ogallala) — anglers taking on occasional striper to 16 pounds on chubs.

Bell, Dorsett Earn Spots

On UPI Team

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ricky Bell of Southern California and Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh, two of the leading candidates for this year's Heisman Trophy, turned in superb performances for the second straight week Saturday to earn spots on United Press International's Backfield of the Week.

Bell carried 33 times for 193 yards and scored four touchdowns, three of them in the first half, to carry USC to a 53-0 rout of Oregon. Dorsett, who also earned backfield honors last week for his performance against Notre Dame, carried for 113 yards and three TDs in Pitt's 42-14 romp past Georgia Tech.

Bell ran 67 yards for a TD on the third play of the game and added scoring runs of eight, two and 12 yards. Dorsett scored on bursts of six, five and 10 yards.

Joining Dorsett and Bell in the Backfield of the Week are Rice quarterback Tommy Kramer and Texas fullback Earl Campbell.

Kramer hit 28 of 43 passes for 319 yards and four TDs and scored a fifth on a one-yard run in Rice's 43-23 triumph over Utah. Campbell, playing with a sore leg, carried 33 times for a career-high 268 yards, including an 83-yard TD dash, that helped lift Texas to a 17-14 victory over North Texas State.

Honorable mention at quarterback went to Wayne Stanley, who threw four TD passes to spark Iowa State to a 41-6 rout of Air Force; Matt Robinson, whose three TD passes carried Georgia to a 41-0 victory over Clemson.

MU Perplexes Hayes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Woody Hayes has a problem this week.

Should his Ohio State football team prepare for the Missouri that wiped out Southern California or the Missouri that took a drubbing from Illinois?

"We'll assume the real Missouri team is the one that played Southern California," Hayes said Monday of the Tigers' opening 46-25 rout of the Pac-8 power.

"We are not unimpressed that Illinois is a much improved team. Illinois is by far better than last year. They played an expert game," said Hayes of the Illini's 21-0 victory at Missouri on Saturday.

After looking at films of that game, Hayes hinted the unbeaten Buckeyes, shopping for their third victory, will follow the Illinois tactics.

"The fact that they do so well, we'll probably bear heavily on Illinois' plans. We'll probably do the same thing both of-ensively and defensively," said Hayes, preparing for Missouri's visit to Ohio Stadium Saturday.

Hayes told newsmen during his weekly press conference that the 13-7 regionally televised victory at Penn State "didn't prove too much. The margin was in our favor because we didn't make any major mistakes."

He conceded the defending Big Ten champions played conservatively, sending the Nittany Lions down to their first loss in two games.

"We played it close to the vest because Coach (Joe) Paterno's teams are noted for taking advantage of your mistakes. We felt they were trying to stay buttoned up like us, too," said Hayes.

Prior to the intersectional test, Hayes said his team should show its biggest improvement between the first and second games.

Nebraska Girl Golf Team 6th

Oklahoma City — Nebraska recorded a 327 score for sixth place after opening-round play Monday in the Susie Maxwell Bering All-College Golf Classic. The two-day event ends Tuesday.

Tulsa is first in the team race heading into Tuesday's play with a 286 score. Arizona State is second with a 304 and SMU third with a 306.

Journalist Sentenced

Belgrade, Yugoslavia (AP) — The district court of Ljubljana sentenced Viktor Blazic, a journalist, to two years in jail on a charge of making hostile propaganda, the official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported.

The court ruled Blazic "maliciously and falsely presented the sociopolitical situation in the country, and in particular foreign policy relations," Tanjug said. It did not elaborate.

Regents Meeting Saturday On Varner's Replacement

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents will hold a special meeting Saturday to discuss names of candidates to succeed university President D.B. Varner.

A board spokesman said the regents will go immediately into closed session to discuss the candidates, procedures for interviewing them and deadlines for selecting Varner's successor. No other items are on the agenda, the spokesman said, and there will be no public discussion.

A list of five to seven names will be sent to the board this week from the search committee. Varner has announced his resignation effective Jan. 1 to become a University of Nebraska Foundation official.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

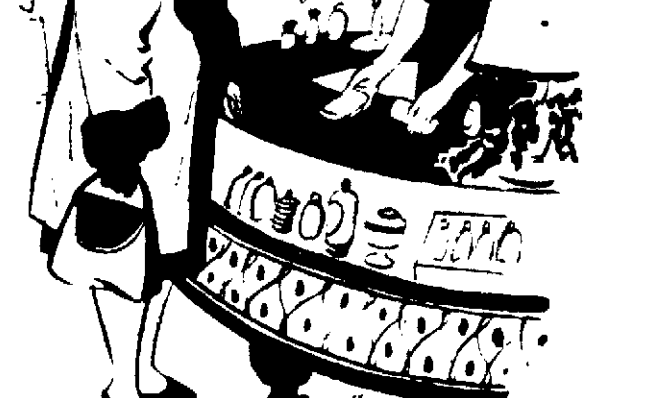

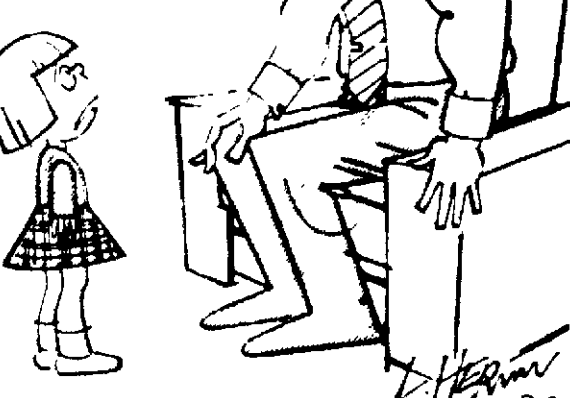

By SIDNEY OMARR

Tuesday, Sept. 21, 1976
Born under Aries - on the 3rd, 12th or 21st - you are active, bright, independent, original, attractive, have tendency to do too much at once, are very much aware of physical condition and appearance. You must find ways of self-expression. This often comes about through the written word. Travel indicated for you this year - you made valuable contacts this month. You make significant change that could involve journey - this comes about in November.
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Work procedures, knowledge of nutrition, recreation, getting together with those who share interests - these areas are highlighted. You finish rather than begin a project. You find ways of getting favorable attention. Libra is involved and so is another born under your sign, Aries.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good Moon aspect coincides now with creativity, travel, investigation, change - and love. Children could also figure prominently. Leo, Aquarius persons command a part of your personal scenario. Get to heart of matters. Express yourself, important personal style.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are on a more solid base than might be imagined. What you own increases in value. Above all, don't sell yourself short. You're going places - and you'll skip some unpleasant places and persons. You discover all of this and an Aquarius is involved.
CANCER (June 21-July 20): Be versatile without scattering efforts - diversify. Express humor and artistic abilities. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Relatives, short trips calls, messages are on agenda. You'll expand horizons and enjoy.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent on collections, payments, artistic abilities. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Be practical. Obtain promises in writing. Otherwise, you can expect excuses and delays. Cash flow is due to improve.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Lunar conjunction - be a self-starter. Means getting on your own without waiting for others. Stress independence, originality, new starts in new disciplines. Personality, personal appearance, personal magnetism - these are highlighted. You could win popularity contest.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You gain behind scenes glimpses. You may be visiting one in hospital, could be representing club, organization or special group. Face facts as they exist - make peace with family member. Shake off fears, doubts, you're in strong position. Know it and act as if aware of it.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Study Libra message. What appears on surface may not reflect accurate story. Avoid self-deception. Don't be swayed by emotions or hysterics. See as is, not through haze of romantic notions, wishful thinking. A wish comes true. You are flattered, paid sincere compliments. You don't need "false friend."
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Production, Organization are featured. Relationship intensifies. If playing games, go away. If serious, your marital status is solid ground. money, partnership, investments could be highlighted. Nothing is halfway - it is hot or cold, all or a vacuum. Involvement is name of game.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Good lunar aspect coincides with long-range projects, education, publishing and travel. You complete what is a major transaction; you feel good about it. Aries, Libra are spotlighted. Philosophical concepts mean more than in recent past.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Investments, taxes, leases, security as it affects life are highlighted. Last object is located - and you are beneficiary. Emotions surge - you feel alive, ready to grasp opportunity. A new person in your life adds to excitement.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Go slow - refuse to be rushed into judgment. Accent on music, relationships with people who can "pull strings" for you. Aquarius, Cancer, Leo persons could be part of scenario. Let others reveal their plans. Be discreet. Play cards close to chest.
IF SEPTEMBER 21ST IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are fond of travel, lectures, food, humor - you are generous, artistic, sensitive, possess great intellectual curiosity. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. This is a "big year" and September should prove one of your most memorable months of 1976. You're in business - more responsibility, obligations.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 2. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
